AFTER INFLUENZA

The Grip, Fevers, and Other Blood-Poisoning, Prostrating Diseases,

The best course of restorative treatment, purifying the blood, strengthening the nerves, stimulating the liver, is:

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the standard blood purifier, before eating,

Peptiron, a real iron tonic (chocolated pills), after eating,

Hood's Pills (cathartic, mild and effective) as needed.

These three great medicines make convalescence real, rapid and perfect. They are also of service in the prevention of disease and the preservation of health. They form Hood's Triple Combination Treatment.

Each is good alone; all are good together. Get them today.

FEVERISH, CONSTIPATED. IF YOUR CHILD IS CROSS,

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated, cleanse little bowels with "California Syrup of Figs."

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.—Adv.

The Quick Way to Stop a Cough

This home-made syrup does the work in a hurry. Easily prepared, and saves about $2.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant, too—children like it—and it is pure and good.

Pour 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle; then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make a full pint—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous for its healing effect on the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

ABOUT MY FATHER'S BUSINESS.

About my Father's business all the while,
About it with a purpose and a smile,
With a determination to succeed
In every act and every deed.

About my Father's business, gath'ring in
Weary wanderers from the paths of sin;
About His precious business let me be.
Working and praying continually.

About it with assurance pure and sweet,
About it never once to know defeat;
About it with salvation fully found;
About it with His loving arms around.

About my Father's business evermore
With my cup so full that it's running o'er;
Surely mine will be the same sweet story,
Joy unspeakable and full of glory.

A HELPFUL LETTER.

I have been thinking for quite a while that I would love to tell the children through the dear old Advocate how much I love its pages. It has been a welcome visitor in our home for quite a while, and I have received much spiritual food for my poor soul, that does hunger and thirst after more of God's love, through its pages. Yes, I am trying to live close to my blessed Savior, who suffered and died that I might live. Bless His holy name!

Yes, I am getting old and feel that I die daily, and yet I live. Yes, I'll live on through eternity. I am trying to live a meek and lowly life, for I do believe that there is a knee-route from earth to heaven. I do love to enter into my closet and have sweet communion with Him that is able to bind up the poor broken-hearted, and dry the penitent tears of those that call on Him in humility. The blessed Savior said, "Take my yoke upon you and learn of me; my yoke will become easy and burden light." I have long since learned that it is a high and holy way from earth to heaven. Oh, heaven, sweet heaven! I feel as if there is heaven in my soul.

Listen: I want to tell the little children how to learn to take the yoke of righteousness upon them. Be loving and kind, honor papa and mamma, quit doing wrong, go to doing right, try to make everybody happy and then you'll be happy.

Our little church at Rocky Mount is coming right along. Rev. J. F. Dring is our pastor and we have all learned to love him and his dear family. He has certainly done a great work in this part of the Master's vineyard. He certainly knows how to plead with the sinner and how to show the Christian it's better further on. Children, I feel that it is time for everybody to get busy. Let's pray for more workers in the vineyard. The harvest is white and the laborers are few. Little children, remember that yesterday is gone; to-morrow never comes, so let's work to-day.

I'm getting old, and I am reminded very often of being twice a child. God bless the children; how I love them all! I want you all to be workers in the vineyard and meet me over in the summerland of love. Oh, yes, it will be glory over there! We can walk the streets of gold and sing over in the glory land; won't that be grand? Sing children, sing, and after awhile we will sing the new song in heaven above.

We do earnetsly pray that the dear old Advocate may soon be in every Methodist home and its pages searched more earnestly than ever before. Pray for me.

Mrs. G. B. MAYFIELD.

Scientific Treatment For Rheumatism.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood. In order to be cured of rheumatism it is necessary to neutralize this acid. RENWAR is a salt combination scientifically prepared to neutralize the uric acid in the blood. There is nothing in Renwar to injure the stomach or affect the heart. It acts solely upon uric acid, completely eliminating it from the blood and thereby relieving your rheumatism. It is harmless but effective. Positively guaranteed by money-back offer. It is a godsend to sufferers from rheumatism. Renwar also corrects constipation. Mr. J. M. Willis of the Nashville Railway and Light Company says: "I must say that Renwar far surpassed my expectations, for it gave me almost immediate relief; too much can not be spoken in behalf of 'Renwar' for rheumatism." Sold by druggists; price 50 cents, or by mail from WARNER DRUG COMPANY, NASHVILLE, TENN.

THE REALITY OF LOVE.

Love is not merely an article of faith, but a reinforcement of the sinking powers of life. Divine grace according to the old phrase, is a real emanation. When no change has taken place in the outward circumstances, when everything seems an unbroken pall and sphere of darkness, the spirit, it knows not how, finds itself strangely nerved and succored. It is helped through the very darkest hour, and secretly made aware that the worst darkness cannot last forever.—W. Robertson Nicoll.

EAT LESS AND TAKE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Take a Glass of Salts before Breakfast if Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You.

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.—Adv.

A GOOD REPORT FROM SHELBY, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: Will you grant me space in the Advocate to "render honor to whom honor is due" by commending the efficient board of stewards and loyal membership of the Shelby church for the excellent report they have made it possible for their pastor to carry up to the approaching Annual Conference? They are a generous, noble people; warm-hearted, and true to the Church. We have had a pleasant year together. God has blessed us in many ways. Thirty-two have been added to the Church, ten of them on profession of faith.

We have a live Missionary Society which is giving a good account of itself. Our splendid women are a force in the community and in the Church. Through the kindness of one of them, Mrs Janie P. Shelby, a handsome Service Flag was dedicated to our brave boys who have gone forth from Shelby Methodism to defend the flag of our great country. A gold star in its center speaks mutely but eloquently of the Shelby lad who sleeps beneath the lilies of France, having made the supreme sacrifice in the thickest of the fight on June 8.

The Advocate is in high favor among us. Early in the year we went "over the top" in our subscription campaign; having practically doubled the quota assigned us. Our presiding elder's report for the third quarter shows that in the number of subscribers for Church papers, in the Greenville District, Shelby stands "next to head," with only one subscriber less than the "head" man. If we can "catch him napping," we may "turn him down," and go "head" some day. Apropos of presiding elders, Curtis is a live wire, on his job all the time looking after the interests of his district and his men.

Our good people have so reconstructed, enlarged and improved their parsonage, as to make it second to none in "up-to-dateness" and attractiveness in the Conference. It is a joy to an itinerant preacher to live among a people who reflect their own high standards of living, and register their genuine respect for the Church and its ministry in the character of the home they provide for their pastor, for in the last analysis it is really an index to both.

Through the liberality of a member of the Shelby Church, twelve thousand dollars have been given to our Methodist colleges this year. Thanks to Mr. H. L. Wilkinson.

We are now ready for Conference; finances paid in full, two weeks before our fourth quarterly conference. "Praise God, from whom all blessings flow;" and thanks to the faithful, generous members whom He has used as His agents in bringing these results to pass.

We shall greet you cordially at our Annual Conference, Mr. Editor. Success to you in your great work.

Cordially yours,
J. M. WYATT.

Shelby, Miss., Nov. 6.

RHEUMATISM AND INDIGESTION.

Practically all physicians and medical writers are agreed that there is a close relationship between Indigestion and Rheumatism. This view is substantiated by the fact that Shivar Spring Water, which is probably the best American mineral water for Dyspepsia and Indigestion, relieves Rheumatism and the Rheumatoid diseases, such as Gout, Sciatica, Neuralgia and Nervous Headache. All of these diseases are probably related and all are probably due in whole or in part to imperfect digestion or to imperfect assimilation of food. Physicians who have studied this water and who have observed its effects in their practice believe that it relieves these maladies by rendering the digestion complete and perfect and thereby preventing the formation of those poisons which inflame the joints and irritate the nerves, and also by eliminating, through the kidneys, such poisons as have already been formed.

The following letters are interesting in this connection:

Dr. Crosby, a South Carolina physician, writes: "I have tested your Spring water in several cases of Rheumatism, Chronic Indigestion, Kidney and Bladder troubles and in Nervous and Sick headaches and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time will give permanent relief. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the Liver and Kidneys and Bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter."

Dr. Avant of Savannah writes: "I suffered for years with a most aggravating form of stomach disorder, and consulted a number of our best local physicians, went to Baltimore and consulted specialists there and still I was not benefited. I had about despaired of living when I began using Shivar Spring Water, and in a short time I was entirely relieved."

Mr. Rhodes of Virginia writes: "Please send me ten gallons of Shivar Spring Water quickly. I want it for Rheumatism. I know of several who were relieved of Rheumatism with this water."

Editor Cunningham writes: "The water has done me more good than any medicine I have ever taken for Rheumatism. Am entirely free from pain."

Mr. McClam of South Carolina writes: "My wife has been a sufferer from Rheumatism and after drinking twenty gallons of your Mineral Water was entirely relieved of the horrible disease."

Mr. Carter of Virginia writes: "Mrs. Carter has had enlarged joints on her hands, caused by Rheumatism. Shivar Spring Water removed every trace of the enlargement. The water is simply excellent."

If you suffer from Rheumatism or any curable disease accept the guarantee offer below by signing your name. Clip and mail to the NOTE.—"I have had the pleasure of serving the little church at Shivar Spring as Pastor for years, and am therefore well acquainted with Mr. Shivar and his associates, whom I gladly commend as an honorable business man and worthy of the confidence of the public. I have personally derived great benefit from the use of the Shivar Mineral Water and have knowledge of its beneficial effects in a great number and variety of cases."—Rev. A. McA. Pittman.

TO BE REMEMBERED.

Frugality is good, if liberality be joined with it. The first is leaving off superfluous expenses; the last bestowing them to the benefit of others that need. The first without the last begins covetousness; the last without the first begins prodigality; both together make an excellent temper.—William Penn.

A GOOD EXAMPLE.

Dear Brother Carley: For three Sabbaths I have been denied the privilege of worship in the Church, but am glad to know that I can begin my last round of nine appointments on November 3:

I have been assisted efficiently by Brothers Howard, Reams, and Harrell, in my meetings, and to date report eight infant and three adult baptisms, and fourteen accessions to the Church, and Conference collections, and war work assessment over-paid, and more than $100 pledged; yet, when the whole matter is considered, I feel greatly humiliated at the meager results. While it has required considerable effort to gather up the funds required for the various benevolences, yet one planter on my charge reports that the recent rains caused him to lose more than twice that amount, in the loss of hay alone.

We all should believe God's Word and put Him to a test, especially after this awful dispensation of war, famine, and pestilence, due to failure of devotion to God, failure to keep the Sabbath, failure to reverence the sanctuary, failure to walk in His statutes, and to keep His commandments and do them. Leviticus, 26. 27. It pays to worship God in spirit and in truth, and honor Him with our substance even above the tithe.

As one preacher testified that looking over one page of my memorandum had proved a help to him, both temporarily and spiritually, I feel led to give the Advocate readers the contents of a page which has helped us. To date, receipts for our support on assessment have been $63 per month, and page 38 of my memorandum is: Paid by W. J. Porter and wife (1918) E. A. Vail (mission worker) $5; Armenian sufferers, $5; Ruston Orphanage, $15; Anti-Saloon League, $12; to the poor, $6; Sunday schools, $5; Red Cross, $15; Conference collections and war work, $40; ministerial aid, $9; Belgian sufferers, $5; Methodist Benevolent Association, $36; Ministerial support $18; Centenary College, $20; Rev. T. H. McClendon's monument, $5; Hospital bed in Huchow, China, $50; Salvation Army, $5; Y. M. C. A., $5; Superannuate Endowment Fund, $25. Total $281.

In addition, to help win the war, we loaned Uncle Sam our best milk cow and horse and buggy, by selling them for $250 and investing that amount in Bonds and War Savings Stamps.

RECEIVING WAR CROSS

The patriotic spirit and devotion with which American women have so far performed war-service work and made sacrifices has never been equalled in the history of any country. Mothers, wives and sisters support this burden with strength and fortitude. But those who are already miserable from the complaints and weaknesses which are so common to women, should take the right tonic for the womanly system.

If a woman is borne down by pain and sufferings at regular or irregular intervals, by nervousness or dizzy spells, by headache or backache, "Favorite Prescription" should be taken. "Favorite Prescription" can now be had in tablet form as well as liquid at most drug stores. Send to Doctor Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., for a ten-cent trial package of tablets.

Slocomb, Ala.—"I have tried Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and have derived wonderful benefit from its use. My health began to fail last November and grew worse all the time until I was not able to stay up. We called in the doctor in January and I was under treatment until February. Then he told my husband that nothing but an operation would save my life. I went to the hospital and remained there two weeks but had such a horror of an operation that I begged to return home. The doctors told me that if I didn't undergo the operation I had but a short while to live, but I returned home and my husband bought me a bottle of 'Favorite Prescription' and when I had finished taking it I was able to sit up and when I had taken four bottles and used two boxes of the Strengthening Lotion Tablets I could do all my own housework, and I feel stronger and better than I have for years. I never suffer a pain now. I wish I could stand on the highest tower and shout it to the world of suffering women what Dr. Pierce's Medicines will do. Every bottle is worth its weight in gold."

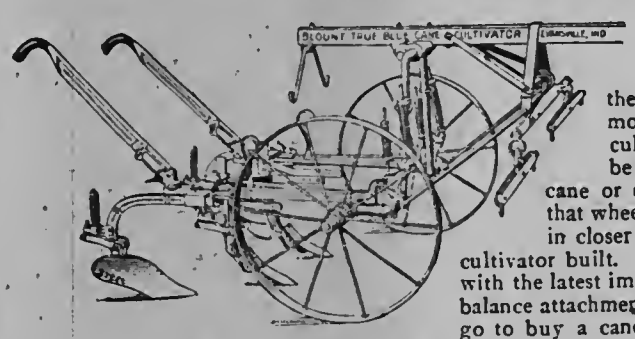
If Col. Blount
Were Alive Today

He Would Have Some Mighty Interesting Things About Blue Painted Plows.

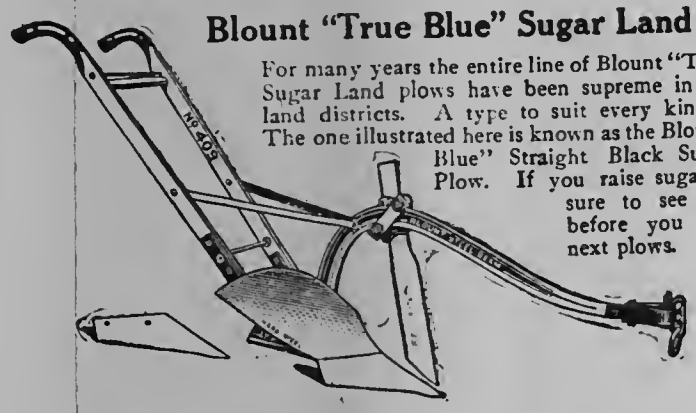
Col. Henry F. Blount



Many thousands of Southern planters fondly remember the late Col. Henry F. Blount, founder of the famous "True Blue" line of plows, for his fixed principles, superb honesty and sterling integrity. Like that celebrated English blue yarn manufacturer, 300 years ago, whose product became world famed for its unchanging true blue color, Col. Blount painted his plows "True Blue" because they were true blue clean through. There were other blue yarns, but only one true blue just as there are now other blue painted plows, but only one genuine "True Blue"—

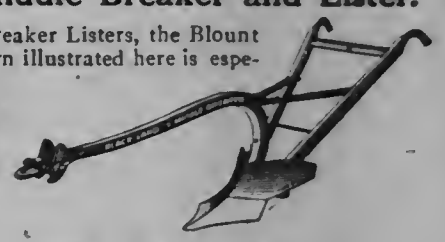
The Blount "True Blue" Honest Clean Through.

Beneath the blue paint on the Blount "True Blue" are quality and workmanship unexcelled. The "True Blue" stamp is your guarantee of all that and more. And that guarantee is backed by the reputation of more than fifty years of honest plow making. Col. Blount's original principles are still rigidly enforced in the great factory he left as a monument to his True Blue ideals.



Be sure to look for the Blount stamp when you go to buy a plow. There is a Blount "True Blue" Plow and Implement for every purpose. And everyone is made to last and give satisfaction.

Blount "True Blue" Cane Cultivator.

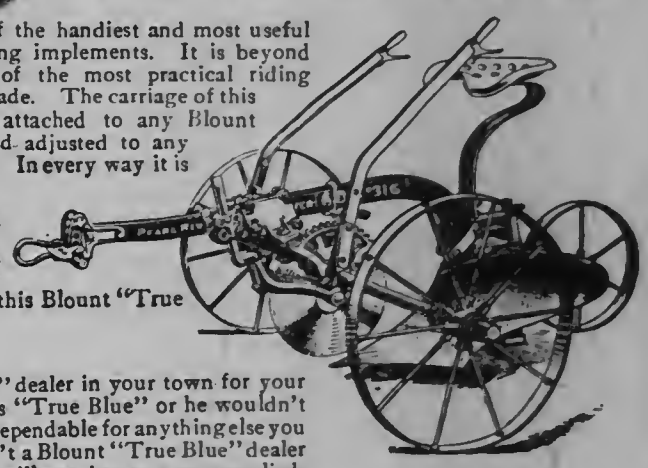


When it comes to cultivators, this is one of the simplest and most useful of all cultivators. Can be used for either cane or corn. So built that wheels can be drawn in closer than any other cultivator built. It is equipped with the latest improved trips and balance attachments. Before you go to buy a cane cultivator, be sure to have your dealer show you the Blount "True Blue."

Blount "True Blue" Sugar Land Plows.

For many years the entire line of Blount "True Blue" Sugar Land plows have been supreme in the sugar land districts. A type to suit every kind of land. The one illustrated here is known as the Blount "True Blue" Straight Black Sugar Land Plow. If you raise sugar cane, be sure to see this plow before you buy your next plows.

Blount "True Blue" Middle Breaker and Lister.



When it comes to the Middle Breaker Listers, the Blount again stands supreme. The pattern illustrated here is especially adapted to heavy black land. It is built to meet the requirements of the most exacting and like all other Blount "True Blue" Plows, built to last twice as long as any other good plow.

Blount "True Blue" Pulverizer.

Of all the modern implements for increasing crop yield and cutting down labor, none is of more vital importance to the farmer than this Blount King Pulverizer, Packer and Clod Crusher. Not only does it crush every clod and thoroughly pack the soil for holding the proper moisture to feed the roots of the new plant, but it pulverizes and ridges up the surface soil for a quicker and easier sprouting of the grain. Does the work of a roller, tooth harrow and disc combined and does it better.

Blount "True Blue" Riding Lister.

Here is one of the handiest and most useful of all cultivating implements. It is beyond question one of the most practical riding attachments made. The carriage of this lister can be attached to any Blount Steel Plow and adjusted to any width desired. In every way it is "True Blue"—honest clean through. If you need a Lister, be sure to investigate this Blount "True Blue."

Go to the Blount "True Blue" dealer in your town for your plows and implements. He is "True Blue" or he wouldn't have the line, and thoroughly dependable for anything else you want in his line. If there isn't a Blount "True Blue" dealer in your town, write us. We will see that you are supplied.

Sunday School

NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

Ordered four Home Department quarterlies for families at Crenshaw. This means four family altars that will back up the preacher in his ministry to the congregation and a training school for the little ones in teaching them how to worship God. Mrs. Hal Crenshaw has charge of the beginners' department and has her department up to the third rank standard.

Eight Home Department quarterlies were ordered for as many families at Eudora and eleven books for mothers and other teachers. The mother is the child's first and most important teacher; the home is the place where the habit of worship can be most easily formed. Four teachers at Poplar Corner ordered books and the leaders of this school promised to have a Home Department in their school.

The superintendent and one teacher at Cherry Tree agreed to take the full teacher-training course. Five teachers at Mineral Wells have enlisted as individual students, each ordered a book in the elementary department and expect to earn one unit within six months. Mineral Wells thinks it is not asking too much of the teachers to complete one book before they are put in charge of a department in the school.

Rev. J. H. Holder, presiding elder of the Sardis District, carried me in his car to all of the above mentioned places and gave me right of way in his quarterly conferences. Representative congregations gathered at every place. We spent a good part of each day in the Sunday school work. The stewards and others enjoyed the institutes. The financial obligations are being met cheerfully and in full. The preachers have worked hard and are more nearly ready for Conference than usual.

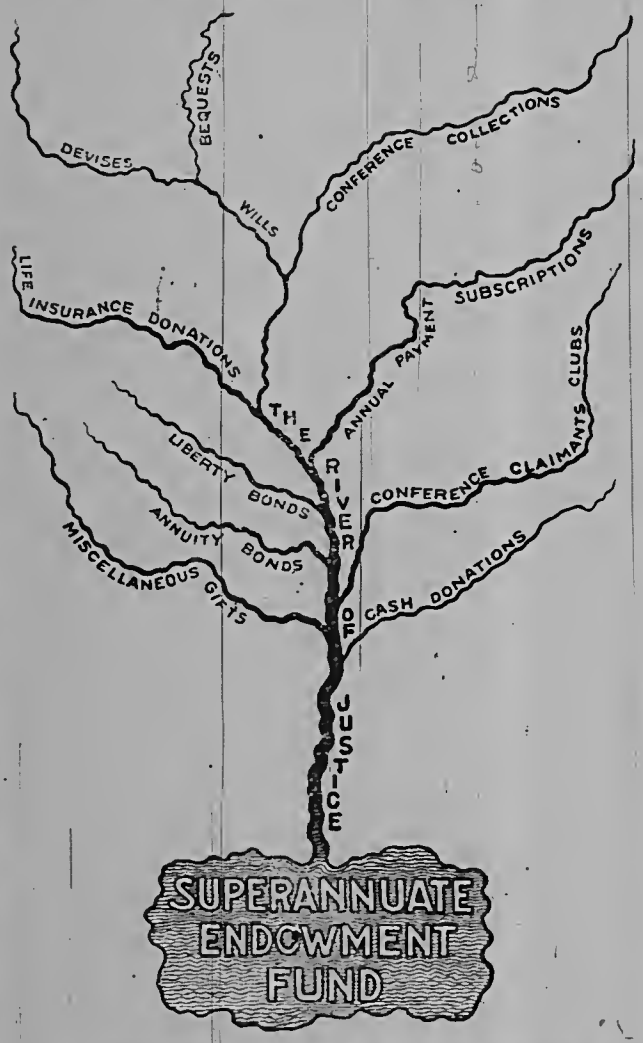
The people of Pleasant Hill are grieved over the recent death of Brother Gilliland, their devoted superintendent. Mrs. J. O. Bridgforth was elected to take charge of the school. God buries his workmen but carries on his work. This school is about ready to say that no one should be permitted to hold an office or to teach in the school that has not obtained one unit. The preacher, superintendent, and three teachers ordered books to make good their contention. Brother Bruner and I organized a school at Lewisburg that has been suspended for a time.

The Home Department was promised at Cockrum, four teachers enrolled for the course in the elementary department. This school says every officer and teacher ought to have at least one unit before taking charge of a department. When we say that every officer and teacher must have some definite preparation for conducting the school of religious education we will have more and better teachers. Our standard is too low to appeal to the heroic in human nature; big things are sought after; small tasks are ignored. Now is the time to make the Sunday school what it ought to be.

RESOLUTIONS BY THE METHODIST SUNDAY SCHOOL AND WOMAN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY OF KOSCIUSKO, MISS.

Whereas we stand in the shadow of a great sorrow and are deeply conscious of an inestimable loss in the death of our friend and sister, Mrs. Katie Lowery; And whereas she has served us as teacher in the Sunday school, and as one of the officers in the Missionary Society and was faithful to every trust, living a life of purity, service and of constant devotion to the great interests of the Church and Society, being an inspiration to the community. Therefore be it resolved by the Missionary Society and Sunday school jointly:

1. That the members of the Woman's Misionary Society and those of the Sunday school of the Kosciusko Methodist Church have lost a faithful co-laborer; That her noble example and cheerful service among us will be sadly missed, while the hand that wrought so well will be richly rewarded in due season.



2. That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved husband and dear little sons, and commend them to the loving care of God, our Great Father.

3. That a copy of these resolutions be furnished to each of the city papers, the New Orleans Christian Advocate, and the bereaved family.

MAKE THE RIVER FLOW!

The plight of an old, worn-out,
Heroic preacher being compelled to
End his fruitful days under the
Yoke of pitiless poverty is tragic!

Shall the great M. E. Church, South,
Having more than 2,000,000 members,
Allow its superannuated preachers to
Lack the bare necessities which their
Long and faithful service has earned?

Now is the time to remove this
Odium of neglect, which shames
The Church we love so much.

When the river flows abundantly,
All the drooping flowers take on
New life, and the blighting drouth
Turns away its doleful face!

Make the river flow. Send your offerings, of whatever nature, to the Board of Finance of the M. E. Church, South, 801-803 Mercantile Building, St. Louis, Mo.

Brings the Best Into Co-Operation.

It is no wonder that many are finding the new medicinal combination, Hood's Sarsaparilla before eating, Peptiron, a real iron tonic, after eating, and Hood's Pills as needed, remarkably effective as a course of treatment for giving vitality, vigor and vim, and increasing strength and enduranee.

Among the medicinal substanees that this combination brings into co-operation are such cleansers, tonics and digestives as sarsaparilla, nux, iron and pepsin, whose great merit has been fully established.

Good results from such a combination, in cases amenable to treatment, seem to be among the "inevitables." The combination is especially recommended for those who are rundown, whose blood is poor, because of impurity or lack of iron, whose nerves are weak or unstrung, livers torpid or sluggish. Try it.—Adv.

END STOMACH TROUBLE, GASES OR DYSPEPSIA.

"Pape's Diapepsin" makes sick, sour, gassy stomachs surely feel fine in five minutes.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach, headache, you can get relief in five minutes by neutralizing acidity. Put an end to such stomach distress now by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder caused by food fermentation due to excessive acid in stomach.—Adv.

NEW ORLEANS
CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Vol. 65—No. 47. Official Organ of the Louisiana, Mississippi, and North Mississippi Conferences, Methodist Episcopal Church, South Whole No. 3274.

HENRY T. CARLEY, Editor. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 21, 1918. CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Manager.

A LETTER FROM BISHOP KILGO TO THE LOUISIANA, THE MISSISSIPPI, AND THE NORTH MISSISIPPI CONFERENCES.

Dear Brethren:—In these weeks of anxious waiting and trials of your faith I have partaken of your sorrows and your cares. By daily prayers I have borne you on my heart before the throne of grace from which alone comes all our comfort and security, and truly the mercies of God have abounded unto us amid all our trials, and I request our preachers and people in their places of worsbip to give thanks unto God for His boundless and ceaseless goodness, and this I am sure their own hearts will readily move them to do.

The unusual circumstances of these closing months of the Conference year entail great labor upon you. Not only presiding elders and pastors are bearing exceeding burdens, but every devoted member of the Church shares with them in these heavy tasks. It is needful that every member shall do all possible to achieve full success in the urgent tasks which engage their preachers, and I have confidence that not one will fall short in bearing his share of the work. It is a time to test our devotions and should inspire all to earnest self-examination, zeal and joyous sacrifice. What we undertake in the name of the Lord should be done with glad hearts.

In changing the dates of the Conferences I have acted in tbe light of what appeared to be wisest, after taking counsel with those most intimately concerned. May I request all to appreciate the circumstances which called for the changes, especially at the time they were decided upon, and give themselves fully to the work before us? You must know that I would not impose unnecessary inconveniences on my brethren, and although one or the Conferences will be held at a date which will impose inconveniences on those who may change their fields of labor, this hardship could not be avoided, and gives me more pain and solicitude than it likely gives them.

I ask all of you to join with me daily in prayers that our Conference sessions may be seasons of great grace and heavenly fellowship, being blessed unto the edification of our faith, and fitting us for happier and larger labors.

JNO. C. KILGO.

NOT WHAT BUT HOW.

The question that ought to concern us most today is not, "What shall we preach?" but "How shall we preach?" The "what" of preaching was settled by Christ himself and his early followers in the record of their ministry in the New Testament. But the "how" is to be determined by the times in which we live and the conditions under which we carry on our ministry. Truth never changes—by the very nature of the case, it cannot change. But times and conditions do change.

In determining how we shall preach, we must realize tbat the world's attitude toward religion today is different from what it was a short time ago. That attitude was, we believe, respectful and serious and earnest. But there was lacking the element of immediate personal need on the part of a great many people that caused their interest to be more or less academic. All that has been changed. The war has brought men face to face with the great realities of death and duty and immortality and sin and redemption and suffering and hate and sorrow and love and sacrifice and hell and heaven and tbe devil and Christ and God. The nation-wide epidemic of disease that has laid low its tens of thousands, many of them in the strength of youth, has emphasized the urgency of men's need of spiritual strengtb and help. How shall we preach to men under these circumstances?

It is hardly necessary to say that we should preach simply. An intricate and complicated and elaborate presentation of the plan of salvation to men who are calling for a remedy for their spiritual ills, is manifestly out of place. "What must I do to be saved?" is the question that is ringing in our ears to-day. We ought to answer it as quickly and as simply as we can.

BISHOP JNO. C. KILGO,
Who will Preside Over the Louisiana, the Mississippi, and the North Mississippi Conferences.

We ought to preach with a passionate earnestness. It is no small thing that men are dying in their sins every day, and it is no trivial mission that we have been charged with. We have been made ministers of a gospel that has in it the power to save every one tbat can be brought to believe in it. Without that gospel, without faith in it, men must go down to destruction. They will be lost. That is an awful word—lost! We cannot force men to accept the offers of grace, but we can deal with them with such passionate earnestness as will belp tbem to realize their own needs and help them to make up their minds to accept Christ. But whether they respond to our appeals or not, we cannot afford to be less than dead in earnest in our efforts to save them.

We should preach with a faith that expects definite results to follow our preaching. Some salesmen are very skillful in presenting their proposition in the most favorable way, but they fail at the critical moment of "closing the deal." With the salesman, it may be a matter of business method, or of psychology; but with the preacher, it is largely a matter of faith in God. What excuse can I have, anyway, for claiming to represent one whose word I do not accept, and whose promises I mistrust? We cannot inspire in others a faitb that we have not ourselves. The very atmosphere of our preaching should be that of confidence that God will honor our ministry.

We should preach in terms of present-day thinking. Our message may be simple, and it may be delivered with earnestness and faith, but it may fail to grip our hearers because it is detached from the ordinary thought processes and experiences of our hearers. It may have the gospel in it, but it is so unrelated in terminology and application to the modern man that he cannot comprehend its meaning. Maybe he ought to comprehend it—maybe he ought to bring with him from the past the modes of thought and the forms of expression that were familiar to our fathers a half century ago. But as a matter of fact, he has not done it, and he is not going to do it. We have to deal with men, not as they might be, or as they ought to be, but as they are. And if we want them to listen to us to-day, we must speak to them in a language that they understand. This is merely another way of saying that the preacher must know the times in which he lives. Unless he himself is a part of his own times, he cannot interpret tbe needs and signs of the times to those who are living in the present.

We have just received a letter from one of our preachers who is now serving as a chaplain in France. He speaks of the simple faith of the men in God, and their habits of Bible reading and prayer, while at the same time many of them seem to be unmindful of the deeper spiritual requirements of our religion. And then he adds this word: "The great task of the Church is to take these men and show them what genuine Christianity can do for a man." That task can never be performed by men who cannot relate themselves very vitally to the life of tbese soldiers who have faced all the temptations of army life, and have come into contact with the forces that make this the most marvelous of all ages. Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, to-day, and forever. It is our business to interpret him in terms of to-day.

THE VIRTUE OF SAYING NOTHING.

A fire will die out if it is not kept supplied with fuel. Even twigs will keep the embers glowing for a long time. A quarrel is much like a fire—it must have something to feed on. Sharp words may kindle the aroused passions into a flame that will destroy peace and harmony of long standing. It is a good thing, even under stress, to practice the virtue of saying nothing.

TRYING TO BE A CHRISTIAN.

By Andrew Gillies.

Is there such a thing as "trying to be a Christian," or, as it is usually put, "trying to lead the Christian life"? Usage answers, in the affirmative, for the expression is common, in both the interrogative and declarative forms. One cannot travel far in a distinctly religious environment without hearing some men asked if they will try to be Christians and others account for themselves by saying that they are trying, and modern thought would seem to sanction the usage, for the gospel as preached to-day is pre-eminently a call to service. Christianity is looked upon as a program of social readjustments, an ethical ideal to be attained. Even our own Church asks of the candidate for admission, "Will you endeavor to lead a holy life?" And the candidate is expected to answer, "I will endeavor so to do, the Lord being my helper."

Henry Drummond's Way.

The question as included in the Church ritual is scripturally correct and eminently wise, for it is but another form of that which Henry Drummond so persistently put to the students at Edinburgh—"Gentlemen, do you mean business?" But the phrase, especially as used by so many to explain this relation to God and his kingdom, may well arouse suspicion and provoke inquiry.

It is significant that the New Testament makes use of no term or combination of terms which can be so translated. Jesus never asked anybody to try to follow Him and had scant courtesy for those who suggested a discipleship falling short of complete self-renunciation. Furthermore, by repeated statement and insistent emphasis, He made it clear that the Christian life is not merely an ideal to be attained, but an inner spiritual transformation to be experienced. To use His own symbol (flung at a philosopher who came to Him as to an authoritative teacher of an exalted ethic), it is a spiritual rebirth, the making of a mortal into an immortal by the power of the Holy Spirit. It is true that this change is elsewhere called "conversion," a turning around, thus emphasizing the fact that there is a human as well as a divine element in the transaction, but even that means primarily not a changed course of conduct, but a changed attitude toward God. It means love instead of indifference or hate, faith instead of unbelief, submission instead of rebellion.

In this as in all else, the Acts and the Epistles are in perfect accord with the Gospels. When those who were cut to the heart on the day of Pentecost cried, "What shall we do?" Peter replied in no uncertain terms: "Repent and be baptized, every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ, unto the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit." Whether approaching the matter from the legal or the biological standpoint, Paul's conclusion is always the same: "By grace are ye saved, through faith, and that not of yourselves. It is the gift of God." Drawing a line of demarcation which must be disconcerting to the scoffer at the "twice-born" throng, John says, "He that hath the Son hath the life." The solemn warnings in the Epistle to the Hebrews are to the end that believers shall stop shilly-shallying and make ultimate salvation absolutely sure by unwavering faith in and devotion to Him who made atonement for their sins. And even James, in all his talk about works, is but emphasizing the fact that a man's faith must be vital, or his so-called Christianity is but despicable hypocrisy.

Dead in Earnest.

Of course there are passages aplenty affirming that man's part in this divine-human transaction is active as well as passive, that the Christian life is a pilgrimage as well as a possession, that there is hard fighting all along the road, and that many who start bravely fail to reach the goal, but all such are complementary and not contradictory to the truth as already stated. Jesus' solemn advice to "strive to enter in at the strait gate" is but a much needed warning that only he who is so dead in earnest about salvation and discipleship that everything else becomes as nothing can hope to become a Christian at all. In other words, the second birth differs from the first in that it is voluntary and that the one born must often travail and suffer agony. The statement, "He that shall endure unto the end, the same shall be saved," is but one of a multitude of assertions that salvation, in the case of the Christian, is not only past but future and that victory is not assured until the spirit sloughs off the flesh. Saint Paul's injunction to "work out your own salvation," is a reminder that individual salvation has vast social implications, and the apostle does not pause until he reminds his readers further that, even in the carrying out of that task, "it is God that worketh in you both to will and to do of His good pleasure." And those puissant promises to the overcomer, contained in the Apocalypse, are made to him who meets life's tests, not as a poor mortal, trying to climb "the steep and thorny road to heaven," but as "a new creature" in Christ Jesus, strengthened by the resistless might of an unconquerable God.

In all this, however imperfectly the truth may be expressed, there is more than a splitting of hairs or the making of a distinction without a difference. The modern change of emphasis from Christianity as a mystical something which Jesus Christ wrought for and works in man to Christianity as a something or series of something which man does for God has not proved an unmixed blessing. To use a trite phrase, a crying need of this crucial time is the certainty that springs from a definite faith and the victory born of a conscious spiritual experience. Popular opinion to the contrary notwithstanding, there is a definite line of cleavage between the Christian and the non-Christian. A man is in the kingdom of God or he is not. He has accepted Jesus Christ as his Master or he still belongs to the devil. At first he may be a "carnal" Christian, as Saint Paul says, but he is nevertheless a Christian. He may fall again and again in his conflict with tyrannical habits, as did Jerry McCauley, but if he repent and believe he will rise again and become "more than conqueror."

Finney's Test Question.

A man becomes a Christian, not by "trying," but by believing, by repentance and faith. "This is the work of God, that ye believe on Him whom He hath sent." It is necessary to bring forth fruits meet for repentance, but it is first necessary to repent. When Charles G. Finney went about among those who were seeking God, he asked not, "Will you try?" but "Have you surrendered?" Man's first victory over self and the world is capitulation to God. It is of more than passing significance that, in Bunyan's immortal allegory, the beginning of Christian's journey as "pilgrim of the infinite" was marked by the passage through the strait gate and the rolling away of his burden at the foot of the Cross.

Making every concession to native humility and the wisdom of urging the discouraged and fallen to "try again," it is well to remember that "undiscouragable faith" is the only basis of spiritual recovery and assurance of ultimate victory. "I am trying to be a Christian" smells too strongly of a discipleship with mental reservations or a timidity that spells defeat. "This is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith." Saint John did not write, "we are trying," but "we know," and "now are we the sons of God." Saint Paul did not say, "I am trying." He said, "I am crucified with Christ," and "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

For years John Wesley tried to live the Christian life. By fasting and prayer he endeavored to find peace and he touched two continents in his efforts to do the will of God. Both prayers and labors seemed fruitless, for he found no rest and accomplished but little. But then came that memorable meeting of the Moravians during which he felt his heart strangely warmed and attained the consciousness that he had passed from death into life. Whether or not you accept the statement that that experience constituted his real conversion, certain historical facts cannot be gainsaid. From that day unutterable peace filled his heart and almost unparalleled results marked his ministry. He became a preacher of extraordinary power, the leader of a new Reformation, a Christian statesman of astonishing wisdom and foresight, the founder of a Church which to-day exercises a world ministry, God's agent in the salvation of countless thousands.

I cannot help thinking of an incident which occurred in the West some years ago. A Y. M. C. A. secretary was talking seriously with a promising young business man and at last asked him point-blank to become a Christian.

"I will try," said the young man.

"I don't want you to try," said the secretary, "I want you to trust."

The young man saw the difference, opened his heart to the waiting Savior, and became a Christian leader of marked spiritual power and wide influence.—The Christian Advocate (New York).

A QUESTION OF PRAYER.

By William E. Doughty.

An emergency arose in a field in China. A gift of a thousand dollars was imperatively needed to meet the emergency. A cablegram was sent by the leader in China to the mission board concerned, with the statement that prayer was being made that the money might be found at once and the need met. The cablegram was on the secretary's desk when he went to his office in the morning. He gave himself to prayer over the cablegram, that God might put it in the mind of some steward of His to give the money. He then went about his work with a quietness in his heart, expecting that the money would be found.

In the afternoon a plainly clad old man entered the office and asked for the secretary. His appearance at first made the clerk who received him suspicious, but after consultation with the secretary the man was admitted. He asked if there were any special emergency on any of the fields that some money would meet. For answer the cablegram was put in his hands. As he read it his eyes filled with tears. Controlling his emotion with difficulty, he said that he and his wife had been deeply moved while engaged in family prayers that morning, and the conviction had come that they ought to do something more generous for the Lord's work than hitherto. That conviction had led the man to call at the mission board office. Putting his hand into the outside pocket of a very much work-worn overcoat, he drew out a roll of bills and handed it to the secretary. With a great light of joy on his face, the old man quietly withdrew. When the bills were counted the sum was found to be exactly one thousand dollars. Intercession in China, more intercession behind a secretary's desk, still more prayer in the quiet of the family, God putting thoughts into receptive minds, and generous impulses into loyal hearts—and a great need was met by releasing money before the day closed.

If the history of sacrificial gifts for the uplift of the world could be fully known, many another case like this would be discovered. It is also, alas, too true that many a crying need remains unmet because there is no intercessor. Such illustrations as that given above are a stumbling block to some people because they say that there are many cases where earnest prayer was made but the money did not come. Sometimes when there is an intercessor the other links in the chain are missing. There is no patent method of getting all the money one thinks he needs even for the work of the Kingdom, for there are many elements involved. Kept within reasonable bounds, however, here is a secret of financing the Kingdom, the possibilities of which have not been really put to the test as yet by the Church.—The Central Christian Advocate.

A LETTER TO THE ADVOCATE FROM BISHOP LAMBUTH.

Somewhere in France, Oct. 14, 1918.

My Dear Brother Carley: It is a pleasure to write a few lines from an old, historic chateau in France, where my host is Major John A. Randolph, formerly of the 2nd Engineers, 2nd Division, A. E. F., now General Headquarters Chaplain and in charge of the School for Chaplains by authority of General Pershing and appointment of the Committee in charge of this branch of the service. A royal host and an important position, since it becomes his duty to receive recruits, see that they are domiciled, drilled, equipped, instructed, and recommended to the Committee for assignment to their respective posts. It is needless to say to Mississippians that the Major is not only equal to his task, but performs it in such fashion as to commend himself to those in the highest military circles as well as to the humblest man who comes within the reach of his influence. We may be thankful that we have such a representative in France.

A wonderful place, this. The chateau stands in the center of an estate of some five hundred or more acres of the best agricultural and grazing land in all this section of the republic. It borders upon Brittany, and shares with that region in alternating forest and meadow areas. The grass is almost as green as in Ireland and as nourishing. The herds of Jerseys and Guernseys indicate by their lines their immediate descent from their blooded predecessors on the islands of the same names off the northwest coast. Two things have surprised me greatly, the abundance of cattle in this part of France and the amount of forest growth. It has been told me by Frenchmen that during the first two years of the war, marked and almost disastrous inroads were made upon the stock; but later the supply was replenished by the careful instruction of peasants who could not go into the war, and by the women and the older children giving their time to the herding of the cattle in small pastures where there was abundance of succulent grass. The forestry laws have been so faithfully carried out that the contrast of our denuded country where we have been absolutely reckless is painful.

From the window where I am writing, one can see in a great semi-circle skirting the lawn, sturdy oaks, chestnuts, elms, magnolias, pines, larches, quinces, the red haw with its crimson berries, azalias as high as your head and the holly with the deepest and richest green leaf I have ever seen. Frost has come and these trees are a blaze of color and of glory. It makes the crime of the Hun with his wretched vandalism all the blacker when one thinks of what I saw last week at the front. Lovely meadows full of shell holes, some big enough to bury a team of horses in, churches riddled and rifled, houses shot to pieces and orchards skinned and hacked and girdled beyond nature's fullest power to repair—and nature can do marvels! What wonder that the Countess upon whom we called this afternoon, in speaking for the women of France, insisted that no terms should be granted short of unconditional surrender, and final terms to be settled in Berlin. The Count, who was hastening back to the fighting line, but who does not speak English, heartily agreed with his lady when her position was explained to him. It is needless to say we were of the same mind. The Kaiser has impressed some of us over here that he has followed the example of Napoleon in "his economical use of the truth." That is one phase of economy which does not seem to be a virtue.

This Chaplains' School which I was invited to visit by the Major whom I have known and esteemed for his personal worth and for his work's sake during his service in the Philippines and later upon the Rio Grande and in Mexico, is unique in that it types the democratic spirit which is abroad in our land and in all the world, excepting perhaps the Central Powers. Here I find in addition to Presbyterians, Baptists, Methodists, Disciples and Episcopalians, Roman Catholics and Jews. The spirit and sense of a great brotherhood runs through it all, and out of this new and larger relationship must eventually grow a larger and a truer life in which the minor things will be lost sight of, and the real values, ethically and spiritually, will emerge. I am not discussing organic union of any kind, but I am calling attention to the fact that God is becoming more real, men are more brotherly and Christ is being given more and more His rightful place in discussing moral questions and in vital faith.

The chaplain has a more influential position than any other religious worker in the army, or can have, if he can only realize the significance of his task, and the reach of his ministry. He has a military rank which gives him recognition by both officers and men, though the insignia of rank has been removed by general order, and very properly. He now wears only the cross on his shoulder, with the exception of the Jewish chaplain. He lives with the men, goes to the front, ministers to the wounded, offers the communion to the dying, buries the dead, writes to the friends at home, and is in position to do for the soldier in the ranks what no other man can do. It is a precious privilege, and when his message comes from a loving, brotherly heart it is irresistible. One cannot help recalling such names in our own Church in the sixties as Granbery, McFerrin, Sawrie, Marvin, Morrison and a host of others equally active and heroic. Never have men been more approachable and open to the truth than in this war. Last Sunday I held a blessed communion service at 8 o'clock, rode ten miles and preached at 10:30 o'clock, twenty miles and again preached at night. There was no camouflague. It was straight from the shoulder, sin, repentance, salvation through faith in Jesus Christ. It was Jesus, Jesus, and He was there. Oh, how the boys responded. Was there ever a greater mission than to these noble fellows?

Major Randolph tells me that we need 600 more chaplains—150 a month for the next six months, for there are many gaps to fill. Let our leaders ring out the call. Let our most vigorous men respond. The Church can better get on without you than can the army of two million young men—the choicest of our land. This is a critical hour for the Church as well as for the soldiers. They have valiant courage and we need a valiant faith. Do not neglect the camps at home, but now is the time to send your soulful men across the seas. President Wilson well says, this is no time for the country to slacken her efforts. Let the Church also go forward to the full measure of her obligation.

Yours cordially,

W. R. LAMBUTH.

SKETCHES OF THE FRENCH MISSION FIELD.

Prepared by Miss Ella K. Hooper and Mrs. L. M. White, Council Workers.

I.

General Survey.

That part of the French Mission Field which our work embraces covers the parishes of Terrebonne and Lafourche and the sketches which follow refer particularly to that section. "It is in the heart of the biggest unevangelized rural section of the State of Louisiana." The people are of French extraction, descendants of the Acadians and of those who came over from France in colonial times. Long decades of Romish domination have wrought sad changes and one would now never recognize the kinship with those pure-minded, devout, happy-hearted people of whom we read.

Rev. C. V. Breithaupt, who for several years was pastor of the Houma Mission, writes as follows:

"When in the high school it was my pleasure to read Longfellow's 'Evangeline' and my heart was stirred by the poet's narration of the story of a people driven from their homes to the unknown shores of the Teche and to the borderland of our fair State where her shores are bathed by the washing billows of the Gulf.

"A few years ago for the first time I was permitted to see with my own eyes this people, not in poetry nor in dreamer's prose, nor perhaps as the masses were years ago when first they took up their abode with us. I looked with an unpoetic eye on a people who have passed through experiences akin to those of the Children of Israel in the Land of Egypt. The lash of ignorance, superstition, and priestly tyranny in many instances drove them in bygone days from public schools and from Churches where the whole message from God to man emanated; and from places where people think out their own salvation and act from the dictates of an untrammeled conscience. Poverty, ignorance, superstition, and sordid, miserable living abound now. Of course, there is still the sweet Evangeline, the sturdy Basil, and I suppose the good 'pere.' The two former characters are in the minority and the latter may be here, but I have not associated with them closely enough to be able to certify to that fact.

"If Longfellow were writing to-day, he could not say, 'That death like the silence seemed, and unbroken save by the heron's home to their roosts in the cedar trees returning at sunset,' but he would have to tell you that the most densely populated rural section in the United States is here. For there are more than 330 people living on every inhabitable square mile of dirt in this territory, and when you look into the faces of a hundred thousand white people, you have seen ninety-nine thousand who are claimed by Romanism. The bayou which, impressive on account of its silence, stretches out for eighty miles with one front yard touching the other, the entire distance broken by only two plantations on the right descending bank of Lafourche. And the Southern Methodist Church is the only Protestant Church now operating in the immediate locality aforementioned.

"The teeth of progress have been laid to the roots of his 'towering and tenebrous cypress trees' that shelter might be given to the banished, who have grown to a quarter of a million in the whole field. One hundred and forty-seven thousand acres of the marsh lands, which for centuries have been covered with his 'sluggish and devious waters,' have either been reclaimed or are under process of reclamation; the hungry dredgeboat, like the mole, has eaten its way through mile after mile of his stagnated marshes, and it is now possible to walk through thousands of acres of magnificent farm lands which were heretofore mosquito hatcheries and thereby malarial cesspools. We have the intercoastal canal route, beginning with New Orleans and opening up an inland water route to Galveston. Bonds have been floated for a magnificent road system, which includes Houma on the National Highway route, and gives a gravel roadbed from Houma to New Orleans, cutting down the distance to our city of the South to seventy miles. Already the trip has been made in cars within four hours. This road runs through about twenty-five miles of the land which was marsh and covered with water not over twelve years ago. One would have to see this development in order to realize what it means as to the necessity of our putting forth our best efforts without delay in getting thoroughly established throughout this field.

WELCOME, LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

By Rev. W. W. Holmes.

The Methodists of New Orleans extend a hearty welcome to the Louisiana Annual Conference which is to meet here November 27 to December 2.

The invitation to the Conference to meet in New Orleans this year was not given by any one church acting alone—it was given through the official action of all our churches.

Our Union Quarterly Conference has designated First Church as the place where the Conference will be held. This is one of the finest church buildings in the city. It is large and commodious. It has a splendid auditorium and many rooms for board meetings and committees. The church is centrally located and easily accessible from all parts of the city.

The Annual Conference will meet for the first time in our magnificent First Church building. No church ever had a more kindly and cordial official board, and the pastor, Rev. W. H. Coleman, is much loved throughout the Conference.

While the Conference sessions will be held at First Church, all of our churches and homes are open to the delegates of the Conference. The midday luncheon will be served at First Church, when we shall "all break bread together."

Seven years have passed since the Conference last met in New Orleans, and they have been the most momentous years in the history of the world. A great world war has been fought and won. The principles of justice and democracy have prevailed. The graves of our heroic dead are to be found on every battlefield of Europe—but thanks be to God, victory and peace have come to our land.

The Spanish influenza, in a short two months, has swept over the world, carrying death and sorrow everywhere. In New Orleans alone more than forty-four thousand were stricken down with the dread disease and more than twenty-three hundred went to untimely graves. But we rejoice that the plague is stayed and health has returned.

We have almost forgotten the awful storm of September 29, 1915, which brought wreck and ruin to our fair city, destroying millions of dollars in property and exacting its toll in human life. Several of our church buildings were destroyed and all of them damaged.

In the midst of war, disaster, pestilence, and death, the Church has stood undaunted and God has prospered the work.

While the progress of the Church has been slow in this difficult field, yet we are encouraged that it has been definite and steady in the face of well-nigh insurmountable obstacles. It is only through the grace of God that we make any progress at all.

A few statistics will indicate something of the progress made in the New Orleans District since the Conference met here in 1911. The figures for this year's work are not yet availible, so the period covered by these items is 1911 and 1917. When you met at Parker Memorial, this city, we had a church membership of 3447, paying to the ministry $15,048; for all purposes, $47,052. Last year we had 4739 members, paying to the ministry $21,708; and for all purposes, $68,039. Net gain: 1292 members, $6660 to the ministry and $20,987 for all purposes. We had an enrollment in our Sunday schools of 3352; $3611 was paid for all purposes. Last year we had in our schools 4170; the total amount raised was $6606. Net gain in Sunday schools: 818 scholars and $2995.

Since the Conference last met here, the Carrollton Avenue Methodists have built a magnificent brick church and furnished it with pipe organ and all modern equipment. The Louisiana Avenue Church has built a cozy, up-to-date parsonage. The Rayne Memorial Church has had the interior of the auditorium thoroughly renovated and beautified at a cost of more than twenty thousand dollars. The Felicity Church, destroyed by the storm, has been rebuilt and is out of debt. The Algiers Church was totally wrecked by the storm, but the people have remained loyal, liberal and enthusiastic. They have purchased the finest church site in Algiers and have more than eight thousand dollars in cash, and are continuing to give for the church which is to be built in the near future. They have also purchased a parsonage which would be a credit to any church.

The St. Mark's Church was built at a cost of about three thousand dollars. It is filling a long-felt need in that section of the city. The Mary Werlein Mission has been overhauled from bottom to top and made beautiful at a cost of fifteen hundred dollars. Second Church has plans for the purchase of a parsonage and a good sum of money is already in hand. The Parker Memorial debt has been reduced from $13,500, to $6000. The First Church debt has been reduced from $24,000 to $10,000, and this balance is well covered by good subscriptions. The District Conference elected a Board of Trustees for the district parsonage. There are several hundred dollars in the treasury and the fund is growing.

These are some of the indications of progress made by our Church in New Orleans during the last seven years.

The field is white unto the harvest and the laborers are few. In our city we have a great foreign home-mission field with an insufficient number of men to evangelize it. The workers we have are liberal, efficient and faithful. We need more men and more money to take this needy field for our Lord. "Come down and help us," is the Macedonian cry from the faithful in all this Roman Catholic territory. Surely our great Church will respond.

Again we welcome the Louisiana Annual Conference to our city. Your presence will help us.

is the largest oyster shipping port in the United States, excepting Baltimore. The Houma oysters are famous throughout the western part of the United States, where they find a ready market, for their size, flavor and wholesome qualities. Fish of many varieties caught in the fathomless depths of the Mexican Gulf have made of this town one of the best-known markets in the South. The otter, the mink, the raccoon and the muskrat have brought the home of the Acadians before the eyes of the country as one of the greatest fur-producing sections. These various industries give employment to thousands of men, women and children, who in their relation to the Church are similar to the inhabitants that go to make up our mining and manufacturing districts of the Northwest. Recent discoveries of immense oil fields in this section are opening up new industries and greatly enrich the section. A well that has just 'gushed' in Terrebonne Parish is said to be the largest in the world. Its wealth in natural gas is immense, and prospecting is constantly going on now. Some of the largest sugar mills are already using this fuel and pipes are rapidly being laid for domestic use."

And yet the people are poor and miserable, and will remain so until the Gospel of Christ shines on their souls and "the entrance of his words brings light."

AN HOUR WITH THE ADVOCATE.

By Rev. T. B. Holloman, D.D.

Whuit! whuit! There's the postman; doubly welcome, for this is the delivery for the weekly visit from ye editor. And who cares if the thunder does roll and the rains descend, since we may meet congenial spirits for the hour?

The first thing to startle me is "Opinion" from Sam Steel—what a great matter a little fire kindleth! I had no idea that my effusions on Conference entertainment would have so many dire results—Decell to the operation table, Barry tussling with the "flu," and now the old war horse, Steel, coming with an armistice proposition. No, Sam, that won't work; the boys at the front are saying, "to Berlin (McComb and New Orleans) or bust." Bishop Kilgo might muzzle the ox disposed to blow too much, shut off debate and send the boys home as Jim Atkins did the Tennessee Conference at Lebanon on Saturday.

And here's Halsey Werlein (old friend of Calliope Hall) on women's rights. Well, I've heard him on great occasions there, and on that famous "To be or not to be" speech. Usually I vote "aye" on his side; but now that I represent one wife and several daughters and daughters-in-law who say they are better pleased with Mesdames Meek and King (on page 4), I'm hesitating, but "wide open to conviction."

You did well to give space to that letter from Bishop Lambuth—Walter Lambuth, the cave explorer, has always had an eye to the practical, and he is always ready to find out some new thing; safe, sound, conservative, we forgave him for being a Hermesian, and loved him "allee samee." These three, Steel, Werlein, and Lambuth, carry me back to, "O, were ye nc'er a schoolboy?" etc. While they dug at Latin roots, wrote essays and quoted poetry, I played short stop—and here comes to me one solemn thought: O, if I only had! "It might have been," Bishop, famous lecturer, big preacher; and I? Well, not even a good short stop.

By the way, with your permission I would call attention to Bishop Cannon's report in the recent issue of the Quarterly Review concerning conditions, as seen by him, in France. That is a clarion call to the Church to prepare for the boys when they return to the home land. I have been skeptical as to many reports of the brutalities of the German army, believing that they were exaggerations, but this report confirms all, even the worst. In the beginning, I thought it was not so much a question of democracy or autocracy, but an indignant wrath in our boys to avenge those brutalities, and the Bishop's report, confirming what others have written, intensifies such spirit.

Now a little personal; since my last I've been elevated (not consecrated) to the bishopric and it was on this wise: a couple with license in hand appeared at my door and called for the Bishop that they might be made man and wife. When I told them I was the Methodist pastor, the man said, "Dat ish vat ve vants, the Bishop of de Metodist Church." He was a Swede, and to him I was as much a Bishop as if the hands had been laid upon me. I have also another experience which I doubt if many of our sure-enough Bishops have duplicated, marrying a full-blooded Chinaman to a home-raised Chinese girl. She could speak English, but his vocabulary was scant, so that she had to interpret my questions and he may never know what that girl made him promise. We have had our share of the "flu" and our pastors have had enough without preparations for the pulpit. But four Sundays with churches closed does not stimulate church work.

The last heard of our elder he was calling for an airplane to meet some of his delta appointments.

ORPHANAGE CAR FOR MISSISSIPPI.

The Mobile and Ohio Railroad will run a car from State Line, Miss., to Waynesboro, Friday, Nov. 29, thence to Meridian, Miss., Saturday, Nov. 30, 1918. Because the road is taken over by the Government, you will have to prepay the freight or send collect, as you prefer. Mark and pack everything so the road will receive it and give you a bill of lading for it. Churches and Missionary Societies, appoint your committees to collect all contributions and haul to the depot. With the money collected buy hosiery, towels, underwear, sheets, sweaters, etc. Merchants will sell you at cost and give you sugar, rice, flour, etc. Farmers will give you corn, peas, peanuts, syrup, velvet beans, etc. Canning clubs will give tomatoes, beans, etc. While there have been big demands on you, don't forget the orphans. Send bill of lading to the Superintendent of the Baptist or Methodist Orphange.

WHAT WILL YOU DO ABOUT IT?

(Written Monday morning, 3 o'clock, Nov. 11, 1918, when the emancipation of a war-cursed world was flashed to St. Louis, Mo.)

By Luther E. Todd.

Over There and Over Here. The nightmare of the terrible war has passed. When you saw your boy march away to the fields of carnage, you feared you were losing him out of your life forever. Something impressed you that he would not come back. In your helplessness you went down on your knees and cried out to the only One who could help: "O God, spare his life, and let him come back to me!" This is to remind you that your prayer has been answered: your boy is coming back. What are you going to do about it?

A God of Comfort. But you say the above is incorrect, for your dear one was killed in action; or his body was maimed for life; or he died from disease while in service. If this be true, I ask who comforted your broken heart when you received the news? To whom did you go for strength and help? Whose Book did you read, seeking light? Who lifted you out of the depths of your despair, permitting you to see by faith beyond this vale of tears? Who could it be, but Him who said: "Let not your heart be troubled?" What are you going to do about it?

Who Rules the World? Under the guidance of a just God, a new world has leapt suddenly into existence. The cause of Humanity has prevailed. The claws of barbarism have been broken, and bleeding nations which they clutched have been set free. The God of free peoples has proved that love and justice shall rule, and not iron and blood. No more shall we say: "Right forever on the scaffold and wrong forever on the throne," for the night of autocracy has given place to the day of Democracy. Well, what are you going to do about it?

Lest We Forget. What a heartless thing it would be, if the people of the United States, in the midst of their wild intoxication of joy, should fail now to remember with due consideration the God who has made it possible. It is He who has liberated

ADDITIONAL GIFTS TO THE MILLSAPS DORMITORY.

Dear Mr. Editor: The many friends of Millsaps College will rejoice to learn that two big-hearted laymen at Tutwiler, Miss., Brothers R. P. Turner and H. L. Brulster, celebrated the signing of the armistice last Monday, the 11th inst., by subscribing $1000 each to the Millsaps Dormitory fund. It is eminently fitting that the return of peace to a war-torn world should be signalized by gifts like these to Christian education, for a new era of wonderful possibilities is about to dawn, and if "democracy is to be made safe for the world," the Church colleges of America must have a large share in the reconstruction of society in the better day that we look for. We thank these brethren most heartily for their timely and generous contributions to the College.

Yours fraternally,
M. M. BLACK,
Commissioner.

The Place of Church Extension in the Centenary Program.

Dr. H. A. Boaz, Secretary of Board of Church Extension.

"The Centenary Campaign commemorating one hundred years of missionary work in the Methodist Church, is the biggest movement that has ever taken place in Methodist circles.

The effort to hring hefore our people the needs of ali the foreign fields, as well as the home land, ought to quicken their interest in extending the Kingdom of God throughout the whole earth. When Christians have presented to them the crying heeds of heathen lands and the great work that has yet to be done in the home field, their interest wiil be awakened.

The League of Intercessors is expected to enlist thousands of our most excellent people in earnest prayer for a more speedy coming of the Kingdom of God. The campaign to secure thirty or forty per cent of the Church membership to practice the Tithe Law ought to turn golden streams into the treasury of the Church and solve in large measure all the financial problems in Methodism.

The Board of Church Extension is vitally connected with this Centenary Campaign. The General Conference has ordered that $1,400,000 be added to the Loan Fund from the Centenary Campaign. This amount wiil he needed, and even more, if the Board of Church Extension meets the crying needs for new Church huildings and new parsonages. Two thousand and four hundred and forty congregations are yet without houses of worship and 1600 pastors without parsonages. More than $200,000 was asked for at the iast meeting of the Board of Church Extension that could not he granted for lack of funds. Perhaps as much more had to he declined hy the various Annual Conference boards. This indicates clearly that the Loan Fund and the Donation Fund as weii, must be iargely increased if we meet the demands of the brethren.

Church Extension work is vital to the success of the campaign to extend the Kingdom throughout the earth. The church huilding is the citadel of Christianity. It plays a most important part in holding the territory that has been taken by the missionary enterprise. Without the Church building the congregation cannot do its hest work. The Church huilding is necessary for the preaching of the Gospel to the hest effect. The house itself represents the best in our civilization. It is necessary for the work of the Sunday school, as well as for the preaching of the Word. The Kingdom cannot grow and prosper without the House of God."

"SUNDAY HOUSES."

When the Centenary team visited the Southwest Texas Conference, formeriy the German Mission Conference, they learned of an institution entireiy new to them, hut an institution so completely a part of the life of these peopie that the preachers of the Conference mentioned it in the most casual way. Oniy hy persistent "pumping" did the woman memher of the team finaliy learn of the "Sunday House."

The membership of the Southwest Texas Conference consists for the most part of German speaking people who live on large ranches in the remote parts of the country, far from the towns where the churches are located. Under such conditions it would ordinarily be impossible for them to attend church services.

But the Church is their very life, the source from which they draw strength and hope and courage for the future—and they are not willing to give up church attendance. The "Sunday House" is the answer to their probiem. Each famiiy helonging to the Church maintains two homes, the real, workaday home on the ranch, and the "Sunday House" in the town where the church buiiding is located.

The Centenary Prayer Meeting.

The first objective of the Missionary is SPIRITUAL—the enrollment of our people as INTERCESSORS and the cultivation of

PRAYER LIFE.

The third item on the "Standard Centenary Program for the Local Church" is:

Centenary Prayer Meeting
One Wednesday Night
In Every Month.

Has YOUR CHURCH begun to hold this Centenary Prayermeeting?

If not, ASK YOUR PASTOR ABOUT IT.

Have you an adequate program for that Prayer Meeting?

The next issue of this paper will contain a suggestive program for the December CENTENARY PRAYER MEETING.

For enrollment blanks and literature about the "Fellowship of Intercession," write to S. A. Neblett, Sec'y, 223 Doctors' Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

On Saturday afternoons and evenings what an interesting procession may he seen! They come from ali directions, the autos, wagons and other vehicles carrying the whoie family from grandfather to haby, including dogs, cats and famiiy pets. They bring food with them and drive each to his "Sunday House," which is comfortabiy, though meagerly, furnished. Here they remain over Sunday and the whole family attends every service, Sunday schooi, eleven o'ciock preaching, Epworth League, Missionary Society, and preaching at night. On Monday morning they are off early to their distant homes, cheered and strengthened for the duties of the week.

This is the Conference which was ashamed of its Centenary ailotment and DOUBLED IT. It is the Conference which has the distinction of making the largest per capita gifts to Missions of any Conference in Southern Methodism. These peopie sing, "I Love Thy Church, O God," right from the heart. They appreciate the Centenary Movement and will not faii short of their part in carrying out the World Program.

"PRAY STRONG."

Miss Etta Lee Woolsey, one of the three young women who were sent as missionaries to Africa hy the Board of Missions in 1917, says in a recent letter from Wembo Niama:

"Dear Missionary Friends:

"Here is just a note to teii you that your 'Africa girls' are weli, husy and happy. * * *

"Let me translate for you a little note from one of my hammock men who is now an evangelist at Lubefu:

"'Mama Demho, I am your chiid Omanga. I am sending muoyo efuia (which is iiteraliy 'mucii iife,' hut means many greetings) to you. Mama Demho, muoyo. You must pray to God strong every day, you and Mama Nkechi, pray to God for me, your child. I am strong in God and in Jesus. I pray for you both day by day. Give Mama Manjaieo and Owanji Lupemba (Mr. and Mrs. Anker) muoyo efuia. I have finished. Muoyo efula.'

"Omanga was so thoughtful and kind to me on the path from Lusambo that I have been especiaiiy interested in him. I shall answer his little note and tell him how giad I am that he is 'strong in God and in Jesus,' and that he prays for us 'day by day.'

"I hope you who read this ietter wiil consider that Omanga is your 'chiid' too, and wiii sometimes think to pray for him. He has a wife and one baby. These black men who try to iive clean Christian lives have a harder time than any of us who have been trained in American ideals can imagine, uniess we can see for ourselves something of their surroundings and their constant temptations.

"Do 'pray strong' for our native Christians. And, O dear friends at home, do not forget to pray for us in this work. During these years of the Centenary movement when our Church is banded together in a great League of Intercession, wiii you not be often in prayer for God's chiidren in this distant land? And wiii you not pray too that more iaborers may be sent into this part of the vineyard? May the hlessings of our dear Savior and Heavenly Father rest upon aii that you do in His Name!"

GREATEST DAY IN HISTORY OF HOLSTON CONFERENCE — CENTENARY PROGRAM ADOPTED WITH ENTHUSIASM AND UNANIMITY.

The Centenary session of the Hoiston Annual Conference will be regarded by many as probably the greatest day in the iiistory of the Conference. It is certain that never before was the Conference called upon to adopt a program so vast, so arresting, so commanding, as that of the Centenary Movement of American Methodism which proposes to raise the sum of $115,000,000 within the next five years. Of this amount the Methodist Church, South, has assumed the responsibiiity for $35,000,000. Hoiston Conference, amid the greatest enthusiasm and unanimity, voted to assume its share of this vast sum. This means that within the next five years the Conference wiii raise $125,000 in addition to the regular assessments for missions and benevolences. Dr. J. M. Carter, of Knoxviile, Tennessee, was eiected Missionary Secretary for the Centenary and will devote aii his time to Centenary cultivation in the Hoiston Conference.

I BELIEVE.

By Harris Frankiin Raii.

My money is mine only in trust. It belongs to God, just as I do. I should invest this money for God as carefuliy as in my temporal husiness and keep strict account of this fund. I should study the Church and its work that I may give wisely. I should give systematicaliy. I should pray with my giving.

Someone is saying, "Ali this is true, and I should foliow it if I were rich like my neighbor." My brother, this is not a creed for rich men. It is the Christian iife that we have been talking about, not the speciai duty of the few. And the test of our Christian iife is not what we shouid do with our neighhor's weaith, hut what manner of stewards we are in the little or much that we possess.

Between two native converts on the mission field this taik took place:

"If you had a hundred sheep, would you give fifty of them for the Lord's work?"

"Yes, I would."

"Would you do the same if you had a hundred cows?"

"Yes, I would."

"Wouid you do the same if you had a hundred horses?"

"Yes, I would."

"If you had two pigs, wouid you give one of them to Him?"

"No, I wouldn't; and you have no right to ask me when you know I have two pigs."

The Lord's chief need is not great gifts. It is men who own his lordship in husiness and time and money. Humbie folks and rich foiks, for their sake and the world's sake. He wants them all.

A PRAYER.

Heavenly Father, let me stay
Close beside Thee night and day;
Make me happy and obedient,
Teach a little child Thy way.
Be with father, be with mother,
Make us grateful for each other,
Keep us in Thy loving Kingdom,
Give us helpful hearts, I pray. Amen.

THE "ANY-TIME" GIRL.

"Have you the book Mrs. James lent you, Helen?" called mother from the foot of the stairs. "She's here for it now."

"Oh, how awful of me!" a repentant voice cried, as repentant, hasty footsteps came down the stairs. "I'm so sorry! I thought I could return it any time, Mrs. James. Do please excuse me."

And Mrs. James politely refrained, as she took the book, from saying that she had already waited more than a month for its return, and that 'any time" was a most doubtful date.

"You know you owe me ten cents' car fare, Helen," Mary Willis remarked at college that same fall. Mary's chief characteristic was frankness.

"I'll pay you any time," Helen promised, and Mary, who knew also all too well that "any time" was cents in person, lent no more car fares.

"I really can't understand, Mr. Woods, why I'm deficient in English," Helen complained to her instructor at the close of the first semester. "I've never done such good work before."

"But there was an overdue theme," he explained. "Its never been handed in, you see, and I can"'t give you credit until I have received it."

"Oh, that!" cried a much aggrieved but secretly relieved girl. "You see, I thought there was no hurry about that. I supposed I could do it any time."

"We're very sorry to put some one else in as chairman of the park committee, Miss Norris," said the president of the Village Improvement Society one day when Helen's college days were over. "You see, we've waited for you to attend to planting the flowers over there, but you didn't do it, and then there were the swings for the children. I don't believe we can wait much longer, really."

"It was careless of me about the flowers," admitted a much embarrassed and not wholly agreeable young lady, "but I thought the swings could be attended to any time."

"That girl who is visitng Mrs. Stone is so attractive, mother," said Helen. "There are so few congenial people in town that I'd like to get acquainted. I believe I'll call some afternoon and ask her to come to see me."

But a call which could be made "any time" was never made at all. The attractive girl with Mrs. Stone met other girls with whom she sewed and walked and motored and played tennis. She met Helen Norris, too, and Helen said:

"I've been meaning and meaning to call, Miss Jarvis, but you know how it is in the summer time, I'm sure. Please don't stand on formality. We never do here. Just come over for supper any time, won't you?"

Miss Jarvis accepted politely, of course. What else could she do? She told Mrs. Stone that evening that she found Helen Norris very attractive, that she would like to know her better.

"Only, you see," 'any time' invitations are so hard to accept."

So the summer passed, and by the time the "any time" invitation was ornamented by a day and hour, Mrs. Stone's guest had gone, and a friend which might have been made had gone also.

And all because of an "any time" girl.—The Wellspring.

DOING THINGS WELL.

"There," said Harry, throwing down the shoebrush, "that'll do. My shoes don't look very bright, but no matter. Who cares?"

"Whatever is worth while doing at all is worth doing well," said his father, who had heard the boy's careless speech.

Harry blushed while his father continued:

"My boy, your shoes look wretchedly. Pick up the brush and make them shine; when you have finished come into the house."

As soon as Harry appeared with his well-polished shoes his father said:

"I have a little story to tell you. I once knew a poor boy whose mother taught him the proverb which I repeated to you a few minutes ago. This boy went out to service in a gentleman's family and he took pains to do everything well, no matter how unimportant it seemed. His employer was pleased and took him into his shop. He did his work well there, and when sent on errands he went quickly and was soon back in his place. So he advanced from step to step until he became clerk, and then a partner in the business. He is now a rich man and anxious that his son, Harry, should practice the same rule which made him prosper."

'Why, papa, were you a poor boy once?" asked Harry.

"Yes, my son, so poor that I had to go out to service, and black boots and wait on table, and do any service that was required of me. By doing little things well I was soon trusted with more important ones."—Young Reaper.

THE ETHICS OF AN INFLECTION.

One of the most difficult arts imaginable is to absolve one's conversation as it applies to another from the least semblance of prejudicial tone or intent. For instance, let one inquire of another concerning a mutual acquaintance whom he has not seen for some time, "Tell me, how is Brown getting along in his new pastorate?"

By delicate intoning, by cautious inflections, by studied pauses, and by suggestive glances the questioner can broadly insinuate that Brown's past record has nothing to boast of, that you will be surprised if the information to be imparted is a cordial commendation. In fact, the second party has been given a cue that, if he is cautious and inclined to conciliate, can and may lead him to modify his answer to measurably suit the suspected opinion of the questioner.

It is thus that a supposed seeking after information may result in a mere reflection of what the questioner really expects and possibly desires to hear. The inclination to furnish what the public wants is not confined altogether to stores and playhouses.

It is a masterful accomplishment to relieve one's voice and manner of the least projection of personal opinion on which a wily reply may be hung. But it is one worth striving for. It is equally fortunate for one to impart the truth irrespective of what he may suspect his questioner is looking for or may actually be pleased to learn. The situation is not devoid of an ethical element. Indeed, reputations have been ruined by faint praise, or even the slightest intonation of a vowel. We call to mind in this connection an old-time story our father used to tell of a young man who wrote home to his illiterate father for some money. Taking the letter to the blacksmith, that rough-handed son of the forge read with almost savage voice and hammer inflection: "Dear father, I am out of money. I wish you would send me some. Your son, John."

"Well, if that's the way he writes, I shall not send him a cent," he replied, and walked away.

But unable to believe his son could be that cruel, he slipped into the bakery shop, where the mild-toned and tender-voiced baker read with tears in his voice: "Dear father, I am out of money. I wish you would send me some. Your son, John."

He had no sooner finished than the father broke down and in quavering voice said: "If that's the way John writes, I'll send him all the money I have."

It is not altogether what one says but how. We should avoid the very appearance of evil.—N. W. Christian Advocate.

HIS QUICK TEMPER.

They were talking about a certain naughty boy who had just done something rude. "He has a quick temper" was the excuse some one put forward for him.

"Is he quick at his lessons?" was the question.

"No," was the reply.

"Is he quick at sports?" the questioner went on Again the answer was "No."

"Is he quick in obedience?"

"No."

"Well," said the questioner, with a twinkle in his eye, "if he has so little quickness, he'd better use it where it will do him good. It's clear waste to put it on his temper."—Lutheran.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:

Louisiana Conference—Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., Rev. W. W. Drake, Rev. J. F Foster.

Mississippi Conference—Rev. C. W. Crisler, Rev. J. T. Leggett, Rev. J. R. Jones.

North Mississippi Conference—Rev. W. W. Woollard, Rev. J. H. Felts, Rev. T. H. Lipscomb.

DIRECTIONS.

All checks and money orders should be made payable to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications pertaining to subscriptions and other business matters should be addressed to the Manager, or to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications intended for the Editor should be directed to him at 512 Camp Street. Correspondents will observe the following rules: 1. Write on only one side of the paper. 2. If you have a typewriter, by all means use it; otherwise, use a good quality of black ink. 3. Leave a space of at least two inches at the top of the first page; leave a margin of at least an inch on the left-hand side of the page; do not crowd the words and the lines together. 4. Take special pains to write proper names correctly and legibly. 5. Use letter paper if you can get it—not note paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after three or four weeks, notify us, and we will make it right.

THE ADVOCATE CAMPAIGN.

At the meeting of the Publishing Committee of the New Orleans Christian Advocate, last October, it was decided that, in view of the increased price of labor and all materials, and in consideration of the fact that the manager is not permitted by the Government to carry unpaid subscribers, and thus with a diminishing subscription list there is an ever diminishing amount received from advertisements, something of necessity had to be done to hold old subscribers and to secure new ones as well.

In view of the above, the Committee decided to ask each of the patronizing Conferences to put on a campaign for the Advocate similar to and duplicating the campaign of last January and February.

To this end the following brethren were appointed to bring this matter before the Committee on Church Publications of their respective Conferences and before the Conference itself, after the reading of the report of said commitee, and to manage said campaign in their respective Conferences: Rev. J. R. Jones, for the Mississippi Conference; Rev. J. H. Felts, for the North Mississippi Conference; Rev. J. M. Henry, for the Louisiana Conference.

Brethren, let us vigorously push this campaign to secure new and especially to hold old subscribers.

JNO. F. FOSTER, Campaign Manager.

New Orleans, La., Nov. 14, 1918.

THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

The Louisiana Conference will be in session when the next issue of the Advocate appears. Appointed originally to meet on November 13, it will convene just two weeks later, the postponement having become necessary on account of the epidemic of Spanish influenza.

All the Methodist churches of New Orleans are officially the hosts of the Conference, though the sessions will be held at First Church. This building is centrally located, is easy of access from all parts of the city, and it has every convenience for the comfortable and expeditious transaction of Conference business.

New Orleans Methodism is looking forward with much pleasure to the great annual gathering of preachers and laymen. The Committee of Entertainment has done its work cheerfully and has made every provision possible for the comfort of its guests. In spite of unusual conditions growing out of the war situation and the recent epidemic of influenza, which was especially severe in New Orleans, our people have responded according to their means, and delegates are assured they will receive a cordial welcome into their homes. All the local pastors consider it a happy privilege to be in a position to serve their brethren, and they are ready to meet any demands that may be made upon them.

The Advocate office is easily accessible, and we hope every delegate to the Conference, lay and clerical, will find it convenient to call some time during the sessions of the Conference. We shall be disappointed if this cordial invitation to visit the home of the Conference organ is not accepted. Such conveniences as we have in the way of stationery, writing tables, etc., are at the disposal of our friends.

New Orleans is a wonderful old city with many places of historic interest. Its parks, cemeteries, the river front, the old French section, the magnificent residence sections, are all worth visiting. A guidebook can be bought for a small sum that is well worth its price. Lest some of our visitors may feel hurt unless they are warned beforehand, we remind them here that street car fare in New Orleans is six cents, on the "pay as you enter" plan. Practically all parts of the city can be reached by street car. Automobiles afford a much more comfortable means of travel—but they are rather expensive hereabouts.

The great interest of the Conference will be, of course, religious and spiritual. We are hoping and praying that the Kingdom of God may be strengthened throughout the State. We know our preachers will bring a great blessing to the cause in New Orleans; we hope they will carry one away.

THE DEATH OF A. P. HOLT.

Methodism in Louisiana has suffered a distinct loss in the death of Brother A. P. Holt, of Crowley. Brother Holt was a loyal and devoted layman, who took an active interest in all the affairs of the Church. In his own community, he was a leader in every good movement. Our church in Crowley owes a great deal to his faithful performance of the duties that came to him as an official member. Throughout the State, he was looked upon as one of our strong laymen. We mourn his departure, and extend our sincere sympathy to his bereaved family and friends. We trust a suitable memoir will be furnished the Advocate for publication.

THE OLD GUARD.

In response to our request for information concerning the old-time subscribers to the Advocate, we have received some interesting letters. We give two of them below. We hope we shall receive many more. It is our profound conviction that the Church paper is one of our most valuable and efficient means of nurturing the spiritual life and maintaining an active interest in the affairs of the Church. The ideal toward which we are struggling, is to have the New Orleans Christian Advocate going regularly into every Methodist home in Louisiana and Mississippi. The wide circulation of the official organ of our three Conferences in this territory will strengthen wonderfully all the causes for which the Church stands. It is an efficient "assistant pastor" in every charge, helping constantly the preacher and the people in all their work. But read these interesting letters:

"Dear Brother Carley: In compliance with your published request, I will state that I joined the M. E. Church, South, in 1866, and immediately I subscribed for the New Orleans Christian Advocate, and I have continued to be a subscriber to the present time. In 1868, I was appointed superintendent of the Black Hawk Sunday school, and have served in that capacity to date, and I have never been absent a single Sunday except when I was away from home, or prevented by sickness.

"J. B. STREATER.

"Black Hawk, Miss., Nov. 11."

"Dear Brother Carley: I am 63; I was converted at 15; I joined the Methodist Church at 18. I have been a subscriber to the New Orleans Christian Advocate for 43 years—no skips. It has been good spiritual food all along the way. I have made a habit of marking helpful articles and sending to some relative or friend; adown my backward pathway, I can see many clumps of roses from the effects. The good done others is the best of life—no gas shell can smother it out. A good article marked, adds interest and strength.

"C. C. CROSS.

"Montpelier, Miss., Nov. 15."

A NOTABLE RECORD.

Rev. W W. Holmes will complete this year his full term as presiding elder of the New Orleans District. By the law of the Church he will be assigned to a new appointment at the Conference which will meet next week. Whatever his new work may be, those who are familiar with his record know that he will measure up fully to his responsibilites and opportunities.

Brother Holmes has made a notable record in the Louisiana Conference. Thirteen of his fifteen years in the itinerant ministry have been spent in the city of New Orleans. His first appointment was to Carrollton Avenue, where he remained four years. He then spent three years at Louisiana Avenue, and one year at Felicity. He was then appointed to Monroe, La., but after a few weeks, during which he had made an auspicious beginning, he was recalled to New Orleans as associate pastor of First Church. At the end of the year, he was sent to Ruston, La., where he remained two years. At the end of that period, he was made presiding elder of the New Orleans District.

Brother Holmes is probably more familiar with the work of Methodism in New Orleans than any other man in the Church, and he has had a large part in maintaining its efficiency and promoting its progress in this great city. He has a personal acquaintance with more people than any other Methodist preacher in the city, and possibly than any other Protestant minister here. His assignment to another field of labor will be felt as a personal loss by hundreds of people who have come to know him almost as a part of Methodism in the Crescent City. The esteem in which Brother Holmes is held by the Methodist preachers of New Orleans was attested by a luncheon tendered him and his excellent wife last Monday at the Monteleone Hotel. The expressions of affectionate regard were mutual. Brother Holmes has the love of his brethren and the respect and esteem of the people of New Orleans. They all regret that his term of office has expired.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

The limit for mailing Christmas packages to soldiers overseas has been extended from November 20 to November 30.

Mr. H. H. Ahrens, who has legions of friends throughout the Church, is now in New York engaged in important war work.

Rev. Chas. D. McGehee, of Indianola, Miss., has been accepted as a candidate for the chaplaincy, and is now in training at Louisville, Ky.

Rev. F. H. McGee, of Crenshaw, Miss., writes that he is closing up a good year on his charge. We congratulate him and his good people.

Professor Olin S. Dean, who was well known in Louisiana, died recently at Russellville, Ky., of pneumonia following an attack of influenza.

Rev. W. J. Dawson, of Woodville, Miss., writes that he has had a delightful year on his charge, and that all claims will be reported in full at Conference.

The Fuel Administration has issued a statement to the effect that there is still great need of the conservation of coal in spite of the fact that war has closed.

Rev. A. J. Gearheard, of this city, has been very active in the United War Work Campaign. He delivered nine addresses last week in behalf of that great cause.

We learn that Dr. R. A. Meek, formerly editor of the Advocate, has been appointed pastor at Starkville, Miss., to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Rev. J. C. Park.

Rev. R. S. Walton, of Winnfield, La., reports that he has had a good year's work in spite of meningitis, smallpox and influenza. Difficulties never daunt a man of his mettle.

We have received a copy of the November issue of "The Scarritt Bible and Training School Bulletin." It contains an interesting statement of the work of the school under the presidency of Dr. E. F. Cook.

It is reported that Rev. A. G. Shankle, who resigned the pastorate of First Church, Shreveport, La., a short time ago, will return to Georgia, his native State, and take work in one of the Georgia Conferences.

We have received the sad news from Rev. R. T. Ware, of Noble, La., that Methodism in that place has suffered a severe loss in the death of Mr. A. M. Richardson, who developed pneumonia after an attack of influenza.

The pastor of the New Augusta charge, Mississippi Conference, Rev. John W. Ramsey, has remitted in full for all the Conference assessments laid against his charge. "Collections in full, Bishop," will be his report.

Rev. W. E. Akin, of Kentwood, La., was in New Orleans last week for medical treatment for his infant daughter, who was critically ill with complications resulting from influenza. We earnestly pray that the little one's life may be spared.

Rev. H. H. Wallace, of the Wall Hill charge, North Mississippi Conference, is just recovering from a severe attack of influenza. He writes very appreciatively of the people he serves. He is expecting to have a good report for Conference.

Rev. C. M. Simpson, who is well known in Mississippi, was appointed presiding elder of the Gainesville District at the recent session of the North Texas Conference. He keeps in touch with his friends in Mississippi by reading the Advocate.

Representatives of the Woman's Missionary Council of the Southern Methodist Church recently met in Nashville, Tenn., with the women of the Colored Methodist Church, when a Women's Council of Missions was organized similar to our own Council.

Rev. M. L. McCormick, writing from Harleston, Miss., says that he has had a happy year with the people of the Americus charge. He has received their hearty co-operation in the work of the Church, and is expecting to carry a good report to Conference.

Rev. E. Nash Broyles, chairman of the Noxubee County (Miss.) Liberty Loan Organization, did valiant service in carrying the campaign to a successful close. In spite of many distressing circumstances, the Loan was over-subscribed 25 per cent in Noxubee County.

Dr. Alfred F. Smith has been elected editor of the St. Louis Christian Advocate. If we mistake not, Dr. Smith was at one time the pastor of our Galloway Memorial Church, Jackson, Miss. We extend to him a cordial greeting upon his entering his new field of labor.

The School for Chaplains at Camp Taylor, Louisville, graduated a class of more than 250 commissioned chaplains on November 7. This is the largest class that has gone out at one time. About half of the graduates were ordered overseas, and the other half to camps here.

Rev. and Mrs. K. W. Dodson, of Minden, La., have both suffered from the influenza. At the time we received our information, Mrs. Dodson was able to be up, but Brother Dodson still required the services of a trained nurse. We sincerely trust that his condition has improved.

Mrs. A. J. Gearheard, the wife of the pastor of our Louisiana Avenue Church, this city, went on a sad mission to Columbus, Kan., last week. Her father, Mr. A. H. Nevinger, had passed away. He was buried on Monday, November 17. We extend our sincere sympathy to the bereaved family.

Dr. Theodore Copeland, the widely known and greatly beloved pastor of our church at Pine Bluff, Ark., dedicated the beautiful new church at Wynne, Ark., last Sunday, of which Rev. A. J. Galloway is pastor. Dr. Copeland is in great demand for evangelistic and other kinds of special service.

December 1 has been designated as Red Triangle Sunday, when the pastors of all churches will be asked to preach a special sermon on the vast Y. M. C. A. program and the unequalled opportunity for service during the next few months. Men are still urgently needed for the work at home and abroad.

Rev. A. Inman Townsley, who has served two years as pastor of our church at Bogalusa, La., has been accepted as a candidate for the chaplaincy, and is now at the Chaplains' Training School. Brother Townsley has done a great work at Bogalusa, and his people give up with regret. His family will remain in Bogalusa for the present.

Rev. W. H. Coleman, one of the leading members of the Louisiana Conference, who has been pastor this year of First Church, New Orleans, has been transferred to the Memphis Conference. The Memphis Conference is in session this week. Brother Coleman will leave many warm friends in Louisiana, where he has served the Church efficiently.

The religious life of New Orleans has suffered a severe loss in the death of Mr. John B. Meyers, who passed to his reward last week. He was a leading member of the M. E. Church in this city, and took an active interest in all movements for the religious betterment of New Orleans. He was a very liberal contributor to the missionary enterprises of his Church.

Just before going to press, we received a telegram from Rev. A. W. Turner, of Shreveport, La., informing us that he would leave on Wednesday, in care of his son-in-law, Seaman Mayo, for Rochester, Minn., for treatment at the Mayo Brothers' sanitarium. He requests the prayers of the Advocate readers for his recovery. We are sure hundreds of his friends will remember him at the throne of grace in this time of need.

SAD NEWS.

Dear Mr. Editor: This will inform you that Brother A. P. Holt has fallen a victim to the influenza. We buried him yesterday from the church. A great concourse gathered to pay their tribute of esteem. Brother Holt was a rare spirit, well-educated and wholly consecrated. The Church and Sunday school, of which he has long been superintendent, have sustained a great loss. He was active and efficient in all the activities of the Church. Nothing was so much on his mind and heart as the success of the Church. In his going I have lost a good personal friend and one of the best helpers I ever had. He died in the faith. May God help us to find the right one to take his place, and may his grace sustain his loved ones. R. W. TUCKER.

Crowley, La., Nov. 15, 1918.

THANKS TO OUR FRIENDS.

We desire to express our thanks to the following friends who have sent us two or more subscriptions recently: Rev. H. H. Wallace, Coldwater, Miss., 2; Rev. R. T. Ware, Noble, La., 3; Rev. F. H. McGee, Crenshaw, Miss., 2; Rev. J. A. Biffle, Courtland, Miss., 2; Rev. J. G. Johnson, Myrtle, Miss., 4; W. C. Sturdivant, Como, Miss., 4; Rev. N. E. Joyner, Lake Charles, La., 6; Rev. H. C. Murphy, Springfield, La, 2; Rev. J. R. Lay, Calhoun, La., 8; Rev. W. J. Dawson, Woodville, Miss., 9; Rev. W. L. Doss, Jr., Homer, La., 2.

Why should not those who are gone be actually nearer us, not farther from us, in the heavenly world, praying for us, and it may be influencing and guiding us in a hundred ways of which we, in our prison house of mortality, cannot dream? Yes! Do not be afraid to believe that he whom you have lost is near you, and you near him, and both of you near God, who died on the cross for you.—Charles Kingsley.

Isn't This Worth Thinking About?

Suppose five years ago you had $100.00 and have been saving it in some "secure" place, such as the dresser drawer? If you now wish to use it, you still have $100.00. No more—no less.

Had you placed that money in our bank you would now have $116.00 instead of just $100.00, for that's just the amount of interest your money would have earned, without the slightest worry or exertion on your part.

Help your money to grow.

Obituaries.

Obituaries not over 200 words in length will be published free of charge. All over 200 words must be paid for at the rate of 1 cent a word. Count the words and be sure to send the amount necessary with the obituary. That will save trouble all around. We cannot make discriminations. Memorial resolutions are subject to the same rule as obituaries.

Mr. WILLIE GRAYHAM GRIFFING, son of Rev. J. M. Griffing, was born near Meadville, Miss., on October 2, 1882, He joined the Methodist Church when about 16 years old and was happily converted at the age of 19 at his father's home. After he became of age, he went to Lumberton, Miss., to school, and then he went to Millsaps College. He studied law and practiced at Meadville, Miss., for a short while. He then moved to Oklahoma and made good as a lawyer. A few years ago he was licensed to preach, but never entered Conference. About three years ago he was married to Miss Linza McClain, of Oklahoma, whom he leaves to mourn his departure, besides father, mother, brothers and sisters, and a host of other relatives and friends. He was a good worker in the Church, and his last message was, "I die happy."

His uncle, C. W. FLOWERS.

JAMES CLIFTON BULLOCK, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Bullock, died on October 10 at Mississippi Agricultural College with influenza and pneumonia. He left his home two weeks prior to his death, and volunteered his services as a soldier and was accepted. Very bravely and yet with a heavy heart he bade his loved ones good-by and marched away to heed his country's call. Soon he received a call from our Father to come to a place where there are no wars. Although his earthly existence was short, he yet lived long enough to exemplify the beauty of Christian character. He united with the Thomasville Methodist Church in childhood and remained true to his church and God to the end. His body was laid to rest by the side of his father and brother.

Weep not, stricken hearts, Clifton is not lost to you! He has only gone on before. At God's own time, when life's short day is ended, He will call you, and there with palms in your hands you may stand with loved ones around the Great White Throne and the Lord shall lead you unto living fountains of waters, reunited through all eternity.

HALLIE G. HARPER.
Florence, Miss.

Little JOSEPH JAMES RAGAN, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ragan of Robeline, La., was born on September 20, 1918, and died on October 9, 1918. Little Joseph was taken with the dreaded Spanish influenza on Monday morning. Everything was done for him that loving hands could do, but it seemed that he was too pure and sweet to be left here to suffer the trials and hardships of this life, and on Wednesday morning at 5 o'clock he went to live with the angels. God lent him to you, fond parents, long enough for him to become entwined into your lives and hearts and it was so hard to give him up; yet God, who knoweth best, doeth all things well. Every one who saw him said he was one of the sweetest little darlings they ever saw. This is only another tie to bind us closer to Heaven. "The Lord gave and the Lord taketh away; blessed be the name of the Lord." Weep not, fond parents, but let us so live that we may one day meet our darling in heaven, for it is just a brief time until we'll all be over there. His loving auntie,

Mrs. S. S. SLONEKER,
Plainview, Texas.

The subject of this sketch, Mr. MELTON McCRORY, was born in Choctaw County, Ala., on May 10, 1860. He was married to Miss Julia Crawford on December 16, 1884. With his young bride he moved to Hebron community, Jones County, Miss., where he made his home, and lived in the esteem and confidence of the people of Hebron until September 18, 1918, when God called him from his labors. He leaves to mourn his death, a wife, four daughters, four brothers, and a host of friends. He was a member of the Hebron Methodist Church. He loved his Church. He loved his pastors. He loved God's people. He had a strong faith in God and believed in truth and honesty, in justice and mercy, which were marked characteristics of his life. So when the summons came for this faithful servant of God, he was ready to cross over and be with Jesus. His body was laid to rest in the cemetery close by the Hebron Church.

His pastor, M. W. DAVID.
Taylorsville, Miss.

In the home of her beloved brother, Rev. Jas. G. Galloway, Forest, Miss., Mrs. SOPHIA GALLOWAY WEEMS, on September 21, 1918, entered on rest. The body was buried in the Newton cemetery, on September 22. Sister Weems was born in Kosclusko, Miss., on March 23, 1847. On February 17, 1876, she was married to Rev. James M. Weems, late of the Mississippi Conference. Few homes have blessed the Church more than hers. For many years her honored brothers, Bishop Chas. B. Galloway of sacred memory, and Rev. Jas. G. Galloway, have blessed the Church with ministry of faith and love. In early life Sister Weems was converted; she was conscious of her salvation. The parsonage where she presided was a happy home. Sister Weems was faithful in every relation of life—as daughter, sister and wife. One child blessed the home only for a short time. The memory of the child was always fragrant, and the mother-love beautiful beyond expression. As an itinerant's wife, she was honored and loved. When her husband died, a great shadow fell on her pathway, and she became anxious to enter on rest. When the end came it was as calm as a summer's eve. "I heard a voice from Heaven saying unto me, write, Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord."

I. W. COOPER.

Mr. ROBERT M. CAMPBELL, who died recently in France, was a devoted member of the Methodist Church on the Hesterville charge, and a member and regular attendant of the Sunday school of the Methodist Church at Kosciusko, Miss., where a star of gold on the service flag of 45 stars speaks of the supreme sacrifice which Brother Campbell made in his contribution to world liberty and righteousness. We held a memorial service recently at our church in honor and appreciation of his memory. At this service prominent members of the bar of which he was a young and talented member joined with other friends in speaking words of the highest praise relative to the life and character of Robert Campbell. Robert was exempt from service because of a disability, but joined the ranks of the Y. M. C. A. and went overseas as a hero where he was "gassed." An attack of pneumonia followed from which he never recovered. His father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Campbell, his brothers and sisters, have the sympathy of the entire community. Robert was reared in a Methodist home, grew up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, was brought up as a child should be, and he never for a moment departed from these principles, but gave his young life voluntarily for his country and his church. He was as near heaven from the fields of France as from home. The birds will sing as sweetly there and the flowers bloom as beautifully and loving hands will care for his grave until that day when friends and loved ones will meet each other again.

THE MEMPHIS HOSPITAL

YES, the Memphis, Mississippi, North Mississippi and North Arkansas Conferences own and are operating a well equipped hospital in Memphis known as the Methodist Hospital, Lucy Brinkley Annex, with fifty beds devoted exclusively to surgical and maternity cases for women and children. Special terms will be made to the wife or child of a Methodist preacher.

Whatever delays there may have been or may be in the beginning and completion of the new hospital building have been and will be due to the exigencies of the war and our banking facilities and not to the ownership of the Lucy Brinkley Annex. We call upon everyone to send in all past due subscriptions and to talk and work and pray for new ones. We need all the help possible.

Indigestion

DO YOU KNOW that indigestion can be cured, permanently cured, so that you can eat any kind of food that you crave? It has been done not only once, but in almost every case when Chamberlain's Tablets are used. An instance: Mr. J. Pominville, Stillwater, Minn., who had spent over $2,000.00 for medicine and treatment was permanently cured by these tablets.

SCARRITT FACULTY REORGANIZED.

After more than a quarter of a century of steady progress under the same administration and policy, plans for the continuance of Scarritt Bible and Training School on a reorganized and enlarged basis have been matured. The changes were inaugurated by the Woman's Missionary Council in the nomination of Miss Mabel Katherine Howell to an official position in the Board of Missions, leaving the chair of sociology vacant; and the election of Mrs. Mary Lipscomb Hargrove by the Executive Committee of the Council as Secretary in the Centenary Campaign left the Bible Department also without a head. Mrs. Harriet Rosser Jackson resigned her position as Directress of the School Home after a serious illness and went to her daughter's home in Texas to recuperate. Later Miss Henrietta L. Gay accepted the position of Religious Work Director in the Congregational Church, of which she is a devoted member.

The changes necessitated by the withdrawal of these valued members of the faculty led to the thought that this might prove an opportune time for the inauguration of other changes. After prayerful consideration, the Board of Managers felt divinely led to elect Dr. Edmund F. Cook as President of the school. Miss Maria L. Gibson was retained as Principal, and Miss Elizabeth Billingsley as Treasurer.

Miss Mabel Roberta Carter, a well-equipped Bible teacher, and Miss Sophia Gleim, recommended very highly for the Department of Sociology, have been elected. Mrs. Evelyn McCarer, graduate of the School of Domestic Arts and Sciences, Chicago, has been elected House Director and has entered upon her duties.

At the last annual session of the Woman's Missionary Council action was taken in regard to increasing the enrollment of Scarritt by publicity and by efforts in the Conference Societies to secure pupils. A number of Conferences have published in their minutes an advertisement and a cut of the Training School, thus giving the publicity desired. Conference officers have been active in corresponding with young women in their districts. In addition to this, two Field Agents, Mrs. Vic Thompson Hoyle, of Tupelo, Miss., and Miss Bessie Lee Wilson, of College Grove, Tenn., have been employed during June and July to visit young people's assemblies, missionary and Epworth League gatherings, and summer normals.—The Missionary Voice.

Glass of Hot Water Before Breakfast a Splendid Habit

Open sluices of the system each morning and wash away the poisonous, stagnant matter.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise; splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, lame back, can, instead, both look and feel as fresh as a daisy always by washing the poisons and toxins from the body with phosphated hot water each morning.

We should drink, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to flush from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract before putting more food into the stomach.

The action of limestone phosphate and hot water on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to make anyone who is bothered with biliousness, constipation, stomach trouble or rheumatism a real enthusiast on the subject of internal sanitation.

Get Rid of That Persistent Cough

If you are subject to weak lungs, heed the cough as a warning. ECKMAN'S ALTERATIVE may aid you in stopping the cough. In addition, it is a valuable tonic and health builder in such cases. No alcohol, narcotic or habit-forming drugs. Twenty years' successful use.

WONDERFUL EGG PRODUCER

Any poultry raiser can easily double his profits by doubling the egg production of his hens. A scientific tonic has been discovered that revitalizes the flock and makes hens work all the time. The tonic is called "More Eggs." Give your hens a few cents' worth of "More Eggs" and you will be amazed and delighted with results. A dollar's worth of "More Eggs" will double this year's production of eggs, so if you wish to try this great profit maker, write E. J. Reefer, Poultry Expert, 9258 Reefer Building, Kansas City, Mo., who will send you a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic for $1 (prepaid). So confident is Mr. Reefer of the results that a million-dollar bank guarantees if you are not absolutely satisfied your dollar will be returned on request and the "More Eggs" costs you nothing. Send a dollar to-day or ask Mr. Reefer for his free poultry book that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry. —Adv.

DISTURBANCES AFTER THE WAR.

An article in a recent issue of the Boston Evening Transcript points out that when the war has ended and the first great rush of reconstruction work has slackened, there will surely come the backward swing of the pendulum—the downward plunge of wages and prices, and with it a dangerous tendency to grave disturbances which would seriously menace the welfare of small and large investors the country over, as well as labor.

Only one thing can carry us through that danger time on an even keel, it was said, and that is the Christian spirit imparted by the Bible.

The well-known evangelist, Rev. Henry Ostrom, D. D. of the Extension Staff of the Moody Bible institute of Chicago, commented on the Transcript writer's warning as follows:

"I want to repeat with all possible emphasis what I have been saying for a year or more, that the Christian people of the land have no more vitally important task ahead of them, next to winning the war, than thorough-going promotion of the reading and study of the Bible. Entirely apart from the religious side, it is a social and economic necessity, and will be so recoguized in the not distant future by thousands who pay no heed to it now. I dread to imagine what might occur after the war if we do not resolutely get to the Bible.

"If I were a business man, I could be appealed to on this line as a movement for business safety alone. Men with their eyes open must see this. Down at the root, German militaristic autocracy is traceable to a discounting of the Bible, and then calling the output 'scholarship.'"

THE FIRST OFFERING.

To save the soul is to make response to God, and thereby to allow His power to pass upon the spirit, and His will to fashion the life. The first offering a man must make to God is himself. His first duty, in a world where so much is amiss, is to bring himself into obedience. It is the idlest vanity, it is the blindest ignorance, for a man to think he can bless his fellowmen, redeem their lives from evil, lift up their hearts to holiness, and buttress their wills to strength, when he himself has not begun to walk the narrow way, or to be strong in the grace of Christ. Physician, heal thyself, is both wisdom and duty.—W. M. Clow.

THE WAR IS WON.

Now prepare for the good times peace will bring. Post yourself about Pecans, Figs, Scuppernong Grapes, Japan Persimmons, Plums, Peaches, Mulberries, Ornamental Trees, Shrubs and Roses. GRIFFING & CO., Box R, Macclenny, Florida.

It is not what the best men do, but what they are, that constitutes their truest benefaction to their fellowmen. Certainly, in our own little sphere, it is not the most active people to whom we owe the most. It is the lives like the stars, which simply pour down on us the calm light of their bright and faithful being, up to which we look, and out of which we gather the deepest calm and courage. — Phillips Brooks.

10 CENT "CASCARETS" FOR LIVER AND BOWELS.

Cure Sick Headache, Constipation, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath—Candy Cathartic.

No odds how bad your liver, stomach or bowels; how much your head aches, how miserable you are from constipation, indigestion, biliousness and sluggish bowels—you always get relief with Cascarets. They immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your liver and bowels clean; stomach sweet and head clear for months. They work while you sleep.—Adv.

NUXATED IRON

The Power Behind Strong, Keen, Red-Blooded Americans

"To help make strong, keen, red-blooded Americans there is nothing in my experience which I have found so valuable as organic iron—Nuxated Iron," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital. Nuxated Iron often increases the strength and endurance of weak, nervous, run-down people in two weeks' time. It is now being used by over three million people annually, including such men as Hon. Leslie M. Shaw, former Secretary of the Treasury, and ex-Governor of Iowa; former United States Senator and Vice-Presidential nominee, Charles A. Towne; General John L. Clemm (Retired), the drummer boy of Shiloh, who was sergeant in the U. S. Army when only 12 years of age; also United States Judge G. W. Atkinson of the Court of Claims of Washington, and others. Nuxated Iron is dispensed by all good druggists everywhere.

"Digestion's best friend"

WITH many hearty eaters the tendency is toward over-indulgence. Over-eating frequently produces uncomfortable after effects and results in disagreeable attacks of indigestion or dyspepsia. The most prompt and pleasant way to avoid serious trouble is by the use of Mi-o-na tablets. Mi-o-na brings instant relief and rectifies digestive troubles. It is pleasant, effective, convenient and inexpensive. If it relieves you it costs you 60c a box; if not, your druggist will refund your money. Sold in tablets, only under such a guarantee. MISS TROY'S ITINERARY.

Miss Nina Troy, formerly of China, but at present engaged by the Council as Student Secretary, writes that her Louisiana itinerary which had to be postponed owing to the influenza quarantine, will be resumed in the near future. The good accomplished by those consecrated young women among the student body of our colleges cannot be estimated. We trust and pray that the anticipated visit of Miss Troy in Louisiana will result in many of our young women giving their life in the Master's service.

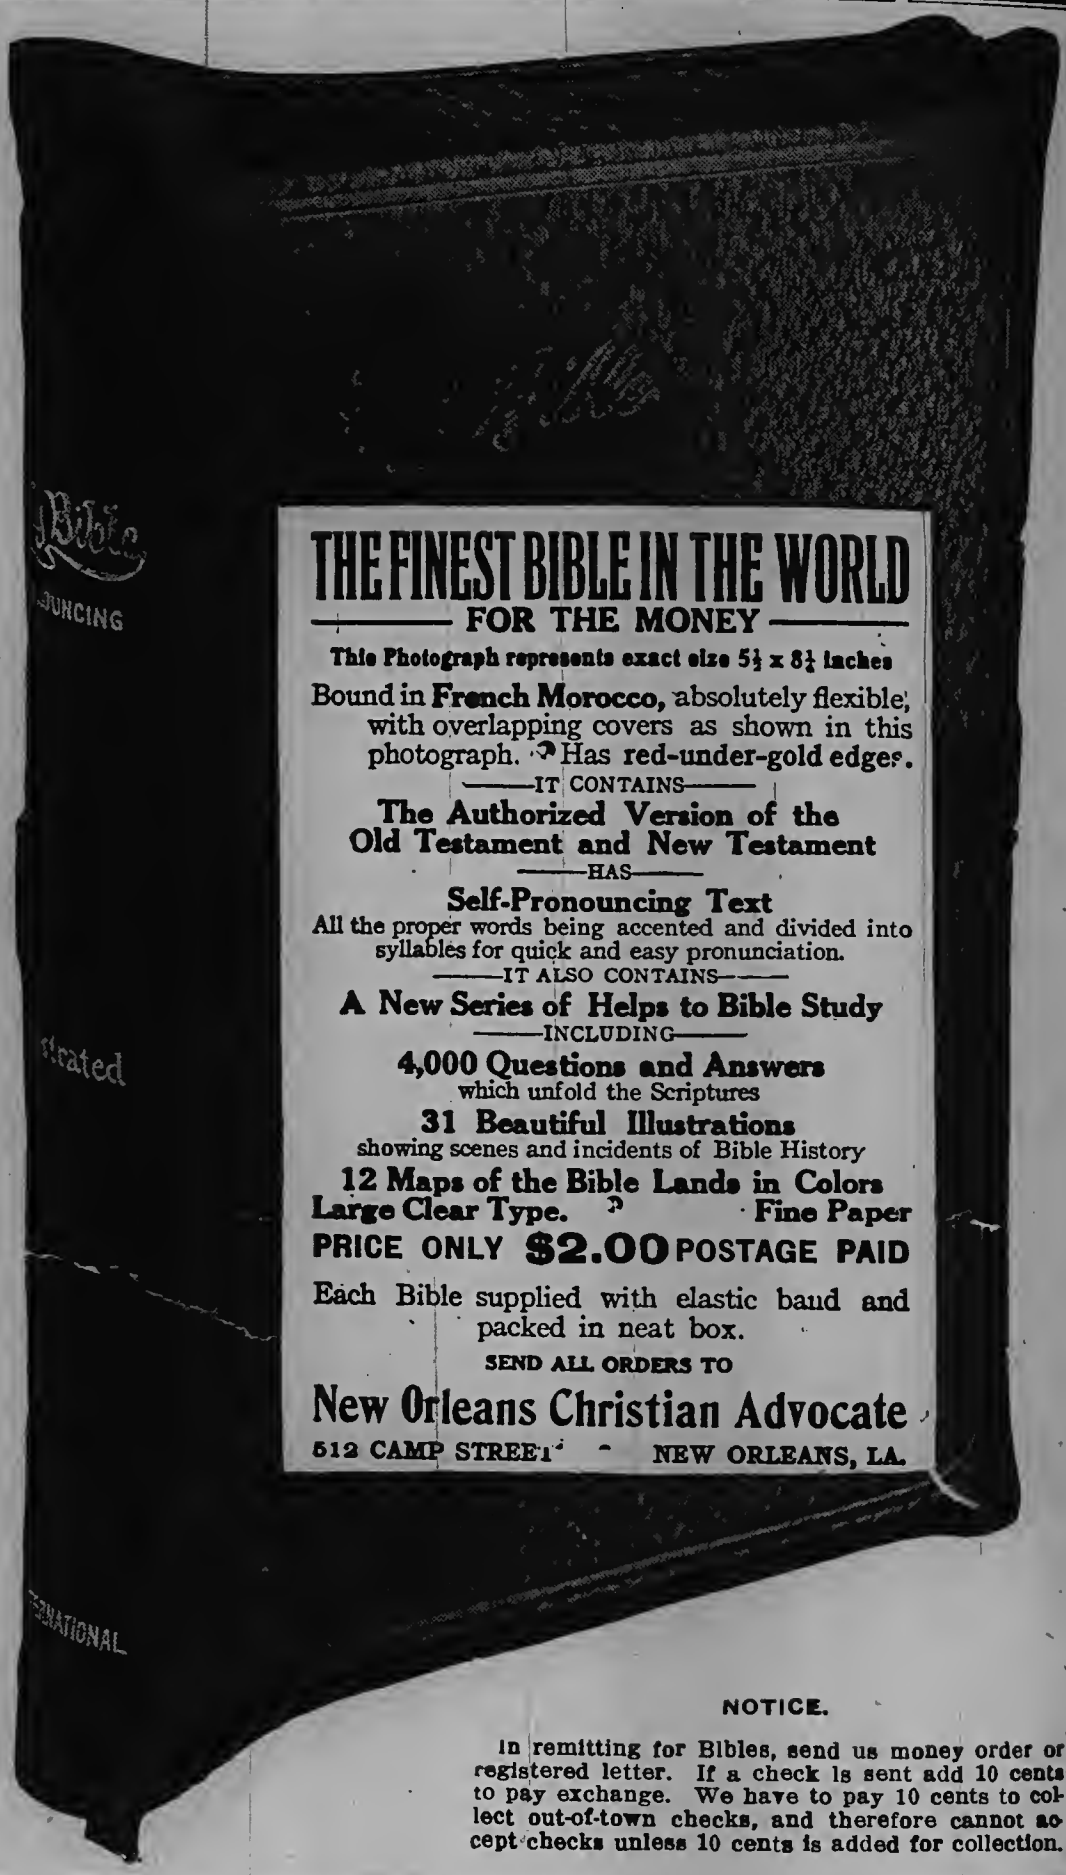
MEMORIAL TO NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

To the North Mississippi Conference, M. E. Church, South:



Whereas, The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in session in Atlanta, Ga., in May, 1918, by an overwhelming vote, granted the petition, asking for full lay membership for the women of the Church; and

Whereas, after the College of Bishops had declared that the measure involved a constitutional change, the General Conference re-affirmed its action by a vote of 265 to 57, thus referring the matter to the Annual Conferences for action; therefore be it

Resolved, That we, the Executive Committee and District Secretaries of the Woman's Missionary Society, North Mississippi Conference, representing approximately 3500 women, hereby send to you this expression of our desire for full membership and the request that the members of the North Mississippi Conference consider the measure favorably and vote in the affirmative, when the measure is submitted to the Conference in its Annual Session.

Signed: Mrs. J. W. Conger, President; Mrs. R. P. Neblett, First Vice-President; Mrs. J. M. Bradley, Second Vice-President; Louise Dunston, Cor. Secretary; Mrs. G. C. Jones, Rec. Secretary; Mrs. W. W. Wilburn, Treasurer; Mrs. Lester G. Fant, Superintendent Study; Etter Murry, Superintendent Social Service; Susie Thomas, Superintendent Supplies; Mrs. J. H. Haughton, Secretary, Aberdeen District; Alma McGee, Secretary, Columbus District; Corinne Rogers, Secretary, Corinth District; Mrs. Elma King, Secretary, Durant District; Mrs. E. T. Clark, Secretary, Greenville District; Mrs. R. M. Short, Secretary, Sardis District; Mrs. C. A. Neal, Secretary, Winona District.

IT PUTS THE "PEP"

Into Peptiron,—The Combination of Pepsin, Nux, Iron, Celery.

This is what makes Peptiron of wonderful therapeutic value, and so successful after influenza, the grip and in blood and nerve troubles, anemia, paleness, nervous weakness and the exhausting worry and anxiety over the world war.

It is a real iron blood and nerve tonic, especially beneficial in the weakness following the influenza and grip, to worn-out, brain-fagged men, delicate women, school-tired girls, and to fast-growing boys, invalids and convalescents, the aged and infirm. It actually puts iron, a natural strengthener, into the blood, and restores the wasted red corpuscles. Your druggist knows its great merit.

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF, HAIR STOPS FALLING.

Save your Hair! Get a small bottle of Danderine right now—Also stops itching scalp.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine to-night—now—any time— will surely save your hair.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store. You surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Save your hair! Try it!—Adv.

NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

You may not have observed Childrens' Day, but you can at least ask for an offering to help the children of our Church to a better training in religious education.

One teacher at Pisgah, on the Eureka circuit, ordered Stories and Story-Telling, The Unfolding Life, and The Church School to study during the winter. Four ordered the Home Department Quarterly.

The pastor, superintendent, and three of the teachers in the Elementary Department of the Lambert school ordered books to help them in the better understanding of their work. The school also ordered graded lessons for the teachers to study before putting these lessons in the hands of the children and parents. The Home Department was installed with six members.

Nearly all the preachers have their finances out of the way. They now have time to establish a few family altars, organize a class for leadership, and get the missionary committee to work on the monthly missionary program before Conference convenes. If the preacher or superintendent has not time, let any one who will do so.

The teachers at Belen ordered books and graded lessons for their study before adopting them in the school. The Home Department was put in this school. The Home Department Quarterly is not only helpful to parents in training the children in worship at the family altar, but it is adapted to the teacher in conducting chapel services. The lessons are short, instructive, spiritual.

A REPORT FROM HARPERVILLE, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: Brother Linfield, our presiding elder, came to us and held our fourth quarterlay conference. He gave us a good sermon. Then we had the conference after dinner at the church. The reports were good, upon the whole. We serve six churches; four of those reported salary in full, and all the Conference collections have been paid except about $30, which has been promised to-day. We have met all the other calls this year and raised pastor's and presiding elder's salary. We have collected more than three times the amount on Conference claims that was raised two years ago, and almost twice as much as last year; notwithstanding, we have bought and furnished a parsonage this year. It is, and has been, the best year in the four of our ministerial life. The Lord is with us. We are praying daily that the Bishop and presiding elders may be impressed to send us, another year, where we can do the most good for the Church; and we know it will be best for us.

LITTLE GUS AND THE ORPHANS.

This little boy lives in East Feliciana Parish on a farm. His father, Mr. Charley Relley, is a member and steward of the Methodist Church at Gurley, La. Gus is not yet five years old, but he is very business-like and industrious. His father gave him a little piece of ground for his very own to do with it what he pleased. Gus planted sweet potatoes and this fall he dug his potatoes and sold them for three dollars. Now, what he did with his money shows what kind of a boy Gus is. He bought himself a new cap for seventy-five cents and put twenty-five cents in his pocket for change, and gave the balance, two dollars, for the support of the orphans. Gus was more than a cheerful-giver—he was a liberal and hearty giver. His manly little face fairly shone with delight and pleasure when he made his contribution to the orphans. Out of such boys as little Gus, are made great and good men. I wonder how many boys have done as well as this little fellow. Let all the little boys try next year and see if they can do as well.

ELMORE CHARGE. LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

Dear Brother Carley: Having already given a report of my first revival meeting, which was held at Vienna, embracing the third Sunday in July, I will now give a report of the other meetings that have been held on the Elmore charge.

Our second revival meeting began at Wesley Chapel on the fourth Sunday in July and continued six days. Our congregations were large from the first service until the close of the meeting. Several times we had more than could be seated in the house. Rev. R. W. Smith, of the Simsboro charge, did all of the preaching after the first service, and it was well done. The church was greatly revived and we had two accessions to the Church. Our third meeting began on the first Sunday in August, at what is known as the Kiddon schoolhouse, which is in the Long Straw neighborhood, on account of the Long Straw Church having been destroyed by fire in the early part of the year. We have been using this schoolhouse ever since. This being the time for holding our third quarterly conference, our presiding elder, Rev. J. M. Henry, was present and started the meeting off with one of his good sermons. Since he had to leave immediately after having preached, the pastor continued the meeting until the following Friday night. We had a glorious meeting; the Church was greatly revived and we had eighteen accessions to the Church. I baptized an old gentleman who was nearly sixty years of age who had never belonged to any Church and not a single member of his family had ever belonged to any Church except his wife, who had been a member of the Lutheran Church, but is now a member of our Church. Some of his children have joined the Church since the meeting.

Our fourth and last meeting was held at New Prospect, beginning the second Sunday in August and continuing for six days, which resulted in a most excellent meeting. The Church was greatly benefited and we had two accessions to the Church. Rev. R. W. Smith, of the Simsboro charge, rendered valuable service in the preaching of the old-time gospel.

We have had a very good year on the Elmore charge this year. I believe that we can truthfully say that the Church has been considerably revived, souls have been saved, and there have been fifty-six accessions to the Church, "notwithstanding the short crops and the war times." I feel sure that I will not make any mistake in saying that the Elmore charge has advanced some on all lines.

I have made some effort to increase the circulation of the New Orleans Christian Advocate. I think that all of the old subscribers have renewed their subscriptions and I have sent in three new subscriptions.

FOOT TROUBLES.

No Need of Them, Says Brooklyn Man, Who Has Evidently Solved a Big Problem.

According to the testimony of hundreds of people living in the southland and elsewhere, E. P. Simon of 1589 Broadway, Brooklyn, N. Y., has successfully developed a system of shoe building having for its prime object the conquering of foot and shoe troubles. It appears that Mr. Simon's establishment has become national headquarters for people, whose feet require his remarkable comfort shoe, known as the EzWear, but obtainable only of the inventor. Mr. Simon's new catalogue shows several hundred shoes that combine comfort with style at amazingly low prices and is now ready for free distribution.—Adv.

THE BIGGEST WORK AHEAD.

"The biggest work and greatest opportunities of the United War Work agencies in France lie before and not behind them."

This statement was made by Dr. N. R. Best, well known editor of the Continent, who arrived in New York recently on return from six months' service as Y. M. C. A. worker with American Expeditionary Forces.

"Britain and France," Dr. Best continued, "have been practically stripped of able-bodied men in order to maintain their armies at full strength. On the other hand, man power of the United States has in comparison only been touched. This means that the British and French must demobilize first in order to free Tommies and Poilus for the great tasks of reconstruction. The American forces during this period will have garrison duty to do all over Europe. In other words, for almost a year the Yanks will be needed as international police. In addition to this, it must be remembered that eighteen months have been required to get our boys to France. Their transportation was accomplished under tremendous pressure. It is inconceivable that they can be brought home in less time than two years."

"During all this period the United War Work agencies will be indispensable. A soldier hit it right with a new definition of war. He said, 'War is dull, dirty, and dangerous.' Americans at home accustomed to have the glorious side of war played up must not forget that perhaps the worst of the three is dullness. Fighting brings unbounded joy to the American soldiers' heart, but waiting periods are all but intolerable if hostilities are suspended. The war will be less dirty and less dangerous for our men, but ten times more dull. Just here the United War Work agencies come in. America must think of these seven organizations not only as great moral builders during the fighting period. but also as dispellers of dullness, both during the waiting intervals and during the months following cessation of hostilities."

NEW TREATMENT THAT KNOCKS RHEUMATISM

A 50c Box Free to any Sufferer.

Up in Syracuse, N. Y., a treatment for rheumatism has been found that hundreds of users say is a wonder, reporting cases that seem little short of miraculous. Just a few treatments even in the very worst cases seem to accomplish wonders even after other remedies have failed entirely. It seems to neutralize the uric acid and lime salt deposits in the blood, driving all the poisonous clogging waste from the system. Soreness, pain, stiffness, swelling just seem to melt away and vanish.

The treatment first introduced by Mr. Delano is so good that its owner wants everybody who suffers from rheumatism or who has a friend so afflicted, to get a free 75c package from him to prove just what it will do in every case before a penny is spent. Mr. Delano says: "To prove that the Delano treatment will positively overcome rheumatism, no matter how severe, stubborn or long standing the case, and even after all other treatments have failed, I will, if you have never previously used the treatment, send you a full size 75c package free; if you will send your name and address with 10c to help pay postage and distribution expense to me personally."

SAVE FOOD FOR VICTORY.

The distribution of the new home cards of the United States Food Administration, fixed for December 2, is temporarily postponed. Home conservation is still vital, and the American homes will keep the faith without the card. December 1 will still be observed as Home Conservation Sunday by all the patriotic churches, and the good work will go bravely on.

Recent events in the war zone are responsible for the change in program, and these events are so glorious, and so radiant with the promise of the permanent peace and freedom for which the world is fighting, that the nation will welcome the postponement and will continue saving food so as to hasten the final victory. The Food Administration does not, under the circumstances, count it waste to have to thrown away millions of cards and tons of literature prepared for the great drive which had been arranged.

The events are the virtual surrender of Turkey and Austria, portentlous in itself, but of immense influence upon the food supply because it clears the Southern seas and route of submarine bases and dangers, and will permit the free flow of food through that convenient avenue. This makes it almost sure that there will soon be a sufficiency of all kinds of food in the Allied part of Europe, with the possible exception of sugar. The new conservation program will undoubtedly set apart sugar for special saving for a few more months at least, and with regard to other food will ask the people only to eliminate waste and to exercise the greater efficiency the war has taught. Even before the Mediterranean collapse, the sugar situation was considered a trifle easier, and the household and public eating place consumption limit was raised to three pounds per person per month. This will give the sweets-loving American enough sugar to satisfy his craving in moderation, though it will still be far below the measure of his former extravagant and injurious indulgence.—U. S. Food Administration.

Let not cares, riches, pleasures of this world choke the heart, which was formed to contain the love of God. Pray, and all is thine. Thine is God Himself, who teacheth thee to pray for himself. To pray is to go forth from earth, and to live in heaven.—Edward B. Pusey.

LETTERS FROM RHEUMATICS.

Possibly you have imagined that you could not get your own consent to write a testimonial letter, but if you have ever experienced the excruciating pains of rheumatism you can at least appreciate the feelings of those who have been relieved of this terrible disease by drinking the Mineral Water from the justly celebrated Shivar Spring. This water overcomes many diseases, including Indigestion, Gout, Uric Acid Poisoning and Liver and Kidney diseases, but no patrons of the Springs are more enthusiastic in their praise of the water that those who have been relieved of their rheumatism. Hundreds of letters like the following have been received by the Management:

Dr. Crosby, a South Carolina physician, writes: "I have tested your Spring water in several cases of Rheumatism, Chronic Indigestion, Kidney and Bladder troubles and in Nervous and Sick Headaches and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time will give permanent relief. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the Liver and Kidneys and Bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisoning matter."

Dr. Avant of Savannah writes: "I suffered for years with a most aggravating form of Stomach disorder, and consulted a number of our best local physicians, went to Baltimore and consulted specialists there and still I was not benefitted. I had about despaired of living when I began using Shivar Spring Water, and in a short time I was entirely relieved."

Mr Rhodes, of Virginia writes: "Please send me ten gallons of Shivar Spring Water quickly. I want it for Rheumatism. I know of several who were relieved of Rheumatism with this water."

Editor Cunningham writes: "The Water has done me more good than any medicine I have ever taken for Rheumatism. Am entirely free from pain."

Mr. McCann of South Carolina writes: "My wife has been a sufferer from Rheumatism and after drinking twenty gallons of your Mineral Water was entirely relieved of the horrible disease."

Mr. Carter of Virginia writes: "Mrs. Carter has had enlarged joints on her hands, caused by Rheumatism. Shivar Spring water removed every trace of the enlargement. The water is simply excellent."

If you suffer from Rheumatism or any curable disease accept the guarantee offered below by signing your name. Clip and mail to the

HOW MRS. BOYD AVOIDED AN OPERATION

Canton, Ohio.—"I suffered from a female trouble which caused me much suffering, and two doctors decided that I would have to go through an operation before I could get well.

"My mother, who had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, advised me to try it before submitting to an operation. It relieved me from my troubles so I can do my house work without any difficulty. I advise any woman who is afflicted with female troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and it will do as much for them."—Mrs. MARIE BOYD, 1421 5th St., N. E., Canton, Ohio.

Sometimes there are serious conditions where a hospital operation is the only alternative, but on the other hand so many women have been cured by this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, after doctors have said that an operation was necessary—every woman who wants to avoid an operation should give it a fair trial before submitting to such a trying ordeal.

If complications exist, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice. The result of many years experience is at your service.

To Cure Chills

Go to your local dealer and get a bottle of Swamp Chill and Fever Tonic, and take according to directions.

Your Labor Counts—every ounce of work you do helps some soldier who is fighting over there! This war is being fought as truly in the household and in the work-shop as it is in the trenches.

Some of our American women are borne down physically and mentally, by the weaknesses of their sex. They suffer from backache, dragging sensation, bearing-down pains, very nervous and pain in top of head. If they ask their neighbors they will be told to take a Favorite Prescription of Dr. Pierce's which has been so well and favorably known for the past half century.

Weak women should try it now. Don't wait! Today is the day to begin. This temperance tonic and nervine will bring vim, vigor and vitality. Send Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., 10c. for trial pkg. tablets.

New Market, Tenn.—"About a year ago I was very poorly during expectancy. We called a doctor and I got relieved of my misery for a while, but the trouble soon came back and continued five weeks. I got weak and nervous and was in an awful condition. A friend of mine advised me to try Dr. Pierce's Prescription, and I did so. The first bottle cured me, but I continued taking it and it did me lots of good. Previously I had such trying experiences but this time I had practically no suffering. I was sick but a short time. I can highly recommend Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription to suffering women."

WHAT WILL YOU DO ABOUT IT?

the world from the toils of despotism; while millions of determined men of protesting nations were struggling in its clutch, sometimes winning and sometimes losing, we are calling upon God to help. He answered our prayer. Shall we forget him now? And yet again I ask, what will you do about it?

The Measure of Thanksgiving. Don't you think that all the people of this country ought to do something in the way of a real thank offering for some worthy cause, in order to prove their sincerity of appreciation for what has come to them? Or, if it be too much to ask you to fix such an obligation upon all the people, don't you think that we of the M. E. Church, South, have cause to give serious thought to the above suggestions? Really, I do not see how we can hope to keep our self-respect unless we do something of the kind.

The Forgotten Heroes. At this auspicious moment, let me remind you of the fact that the M. E. Church, South, has nearly 1000 superannuated preachers. Many of these men are suffering for the bare necessities of life. They receive from the Church an average of $200 each annually. They do not complain, or find fault about it. But I plead for them. It is wrong for a great Church to neglect these old heroes. They have had much to do with creating the ideals and national conscience that have made this country so potent as a deciding factor in the great world victory that we now celebrate. Shall they be forgotten? What will you do about it?

The Balance Sheet. I have not the actual figures before me, concerning the number of boys who have entered the service from Southern Methodist homes, but for example let us set the number at 110,000 (I am sure it is far greater than that). Now on this basis, if 100,000 of these fine lads have been saved from the danger of carnage by the coming of peace, and if in a reasonable time they will safely return to their dear ones, it certainly is cause for great rejoicing and thanksgiving. Suppose the parents of each of these splendid sons, in grateful acknowledgment of divine favor, should decide to give $10 to the Endowment Fund for the support of superannuated preachers, it would mean a total of $1,000,000. Ten dollars should be the minimum amount for each to give. There are many of these parents who should give as much as $1000, $10,000, and some could easily give $100,000—and then they would not even tithe their monetary profits from the war.

He is Coming Back. If all the girls of the M. E. Church, South, who, with awful fears, bitter crying, and aching hearts, said good-by to their brothers and sweethearts when they went "over there," would now each give $10 as a thank offering to the fund for superannuated preachers, the total would amount to much more than $1,000,000. Why not do it, girls? You thought the boys might not come back, but they are coming. Don't you feel something tugging at your hearts, drawing you to express yourselves in some beneficent way to the God who has been so good to you? Why not contribute to the permanent support of His old servants, who have worn themselves out for Him? What are you going to do about it?

Service Flags. If every church in Southern Methodism would count the white stars in its service flag and then raise $10 for each star and give the total amount to the Superannuate Endowment Fund, the grand total from all of the churches would amount to a much greater sum than $1,000,000. Why not do it? The white stars represent the boys who are coming back, and the churches ought to be thankful enough to do some special act, as suggested, to show their gratitude to God. What will the churches do about it?

Heart Throbs. You cannot question the obligation to make this thank offering, but perhaps you are in doubt about the wisdom of giving it for the benefit of the superannuated preachers. Let us think it over together: (1) It is likely true that many of the preachers, who christened your soldier boys, are now superannuated; (2) It is not improbable that the preachers, who united in marriage the parents of your soldier boys, are now superannuated; (3) It is certainly true that the preachers who did so much to establish your soldier boys in Christian faith will some day be superannuated, if not now in that relation; (4) A superannuated preacher in the M. E. Church, South, receives annually an average of $200; and many of the 1000 superannuated preachers in the M. E. Church, South, are actually in great need; (5) Unless something is done soon to free the superannuated preachers of the M. E. Church, South, from the deprivations they now suffer, the Church is sure to be weakened by a broken morale among its now active preachers; (6) Every great denomination has gone far ahead of the M. E. Church, South, in providing an adequate support for superannuated preachers!

A Cry in the Night. I appeal to your sense of justice when I suggest that you do something for these grand old men. Make an offering now, while your heart is beating with inexpressible gladness and thanksgiving. You will feel bigger and better when you do it. And you will help to set in motion a popular wave of giving to this noble cause, that will sweep the Church in mighty power, until its old, worn-out, disabled, retired preachers and the widows and orphans of its deceased preachers, will find relief from the intolerable conditions they are now compelled to endure.

Do it Now. The Board of Finance of the M. E. Church, South, 801-3 Mercantile Bldg., St. Louis, Mo., will receive your thank offering and credit it to the Superannuate Endowment Fund for the support of these worthy men who have been retired from active service. Only the interest from this Fund will be distributed. The Fund itself will remain intact for all time. Send your check to-day. If you cannot spare the money now, then make a subscription payable in any number of annual instalments. Send Liberty Bonds. Do whatever you can by whatever way you choose, only be sure that you do something. An opportunity is here presented for a deed that will open the windows of heaven upon those who respond. What are you going to do about it?

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and 1-4 ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.—Adv.

THE DUTY OF CHEERFULNESS.

The motto, "Serve God and be cheerful," is one which in these days we need to make especially our own. We have come to dissociate in our minds the innocent enjoyment of life with the idea of saintship and holiness. We want to do good, but we often forget that sometimes the best way of doing good is by being good ourselves, by being happy and contented ourselves, by schooling ourselves into that "cheerfulness which makes life pleasant to those around us," by exhibiting that meek and quiet spirit which in the sight of God is of great price. In this way we may, like the early Christians, serve God with gladness and singleness of heart. We may shed around us an immense amount of human happiness. We may not only console the afflicted, and comfort the sorrowful, and inspire with fresh energy the workers of life; we may also "add sunshine to daylight by making the happy happier."—J. Vaughan.

KILLS CATARRH GERMS

Famous Hyomei—Mr. Booth's Wonderful Discovery.

Some years ago, the noted Richard T. Booth, founder of the blue ribbon movement and temperance orator and leader of international fame who induced over a million men to sign the pledge, developed a very serious catarrhal trouble. Seeking to regain health, he went to inland Australia where he breathed day and night the antiseptic balsams as given off by the Eucalyptus forests.

This experience led Mr. Booth to the discovery of the most wonderful catarrhal treatment known to medical science—Hyomei, which is formed from the purest oil of Eucalyptus combined with other healing and antiseptic ingredients. Hyomei is a germ killing vapor, absolutely harmless but wonderfully effective in the treatment of Catarrh and colds of the head, Catarrhal Coughs Bronchial Catarrh, Spasmodic Croup, Catarrhal Laryngitis or Hay Fever.

The treatment is simple but most scientific. You breathe Hyomei. It is pronounced the only method of treatment that sends by direct inhalation to the most remote part of the air passages, a balsamic air that destroys germs and bacilli of bronchial catarrh in the breathing organs, soothes and allays irritation and enriches and purifies the blood. A GIFT TO METHODISM.

Many of our Methodist people are familiar already with Benson Springs Inn at Enterprise, Florida, where religious gatherings have been held during the winter for some time past. It is a great pleasure to be able to announce that this splendid property has just been deeded by Mr. J. N. Gamble, of Cincinnati, to the Foreign Mission Board of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Mission Board of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to be shared equally and used or disposed of as those Boards may find to be the greatest interest of the causes they represent. This property consists of a hotel with one hundred furnished rooms, a private dock where the St. Johns Clyde Line steamers land daily, with 1200 acres of land The property is valued at $35,000. The hotel is situated on Lake Monroe with southern exposure and only four miles across from Sanford. This lake is eleven miles long and four miles wide. The gift of this property by a prominent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church to the two Boards is one of the indications of a growing unity between the two Methodisms, as well as a step in the direction of that unification for which so many thousands in both Churches are praying.

Methodists desiring to spend some time in the balmy atmosphere of Florida during the winter should consider this Methodist headquarters before deciding to go elsewhere. There is a local committee in charge, of which Miss Emma Tucker is Chairman. Letters addressed to her will receive prompt attention.

THANKSGIVING.

Thanksgiving this year is much more than a national celebration—it is a world-wide event. The President's proclamation voices, as many of his other utterances have done, the feeling of the universal human heart. A new day has been ushered in—a day in which justice shall replace force and jealous intrigue among the nations. We have not only been relieved from the strain and tragedy of war, hut we have witnessed the triumph of right. Our faith, which has heen severely tested during the bloody struggle, has been vindicated; our hope, which sometimes grew dim as the enemy made his advances, has emerged more radiant than ever; It remains for us to become perfect In love as we deal with those who sought to overthrow the cherished ideals of mankind by suhstituting brute force for the law of God.

REV. J. LOYD DECELL,
Pastor Centenary Church, McComb City, Miss., where the Mississippi Conference will he held.

Reverently, devoutly, we turn to Aimighty God to-day to thank Him for what He has brought to pass. He has indeed, been gracious unto us. He has spared us many of the agonies that other peoples have passed through, and He has endowed us with resources of money and mind and heart to meet the needs of a suffering, if rejoicing, world. Our nation has been exalted among the nations of the earth as the leader of the forces of righteousness. What He may still have in store for us, who can tell?

We must not forget our personal ohligations to Him who has so wonderfully blessed us as a nation. He still requires of us to do justly, and to love kindness, and to walk humhly with our God. The sincerity of our thanksgiving will he tested hy the quallty of our individual characters. ¶t is a time for meditation and prayer and reconsecration, as well as for thanksgiving. We should make this day not only an event in our national history, hut also an epoch in our personal lives. By so doing, we may win not only victory over the enemies of civilization, hut victory over those enemies of God himself—sin and death. And we shall be able in all things to give thanks to Him who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

THE CRISIS IN OUR EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM.

Dr. George D. Strayer, of Columhia University, New York, President of the National Education Association, while in New Orleans last week delivered several addresses in which he called attention most emphatically to what he considers the gravest crisis that has ever arisen In the history of the American educational system.

It is our own candid opinion that Dr. Strayer did not overestimate the seriousness of the situation. Viewed from any angle, the work of properly educating our young people is the most important task that lies before the American nation. Education is the foundation upon which all real progress must he constructed. Ignorance is not only a misfortune—it is a deadly menace to the individual and to the nation. The principles and ideals of democracy have become too firmly estahlished throughout the world for any other conception of government to displace them. The people—the mass of the people—are going to administer the affairs of government more and more, come what may, and the character and the mode of that administration will depend upon the quality of the education of which they are possessed. It has become a trite saying that the world is passing through momentous changes; the outcome of these changes will be determined by the ahility of the people to face new issues and solve new problems and establish and maintain higher standards of life and action. And this ahility will he determined hy education.

Education is a term of broad signification. We helieve any view of it that leaves out of consideration its moral content is entirely too narrow. "Religious education" is a term used specifically to include the moral and religious element; it should never have become necessary to use any such term—education itself fundamentally includes it. And the use of the term tends to dissociate the ideas of education and religion in the minds of a great many people. In all our thinking, we need to hold tenaciously to the idea that education is essentially religious—else it is not education in the fullest sense. We have developed a great puhlic school system—but we are running the risk of wrecking it on the rocks of a sordid materialism that leaves out of consideration the finer things of soul and spirit.

Given the proper conception of education—that It is essentially religious—the right working out of that conception will depend largely upon the kind of teachers we employ in our schools. It is exactly at this point that we are confronting a crisis to-day. A school cannot he any hetter than its teachers. Teaching is one of the most highly specialized professions in the world—because it is concerned with the most intricate and most wonderful thing in the world, the developing mind. Good intentions and an amiable disposition and an irreproachahle character do not make, of themselves, a good teacher, though they are essentials; there must be a fitness that comes from careful preparation and training for the specific work of teaching. It is the tragedy of our national life that so many of our chiidren have to depend for their education largely upon immature young women—mere girls, many of them—who, from the very nature of the case, cannot he well qualified for the work in which they are engaged. It is the glory of our puhlic school system that these teachers have so faithfully and heroically done their hest in spite of their own limitations and the unusual burdens that have heen put upon them.

But such teachers as we have, who have done their hest under the circumstances, are giving up their work. Dr. Strayer says that the shortage of teachers has closed thousands of schools in the United States. The attendance at normal schools and other institutions devoted to the training of teachers is constantly falling off, and the end is not in sight. What is the expianation? The answer is in two words—low salaries.

REV. A. B. BARRY,
Pastor South and East McComb Charge.

We might as well face the situation now, and deal with it in a business-like way. We are not

THANKSGIVING.

By Wm. C. Allen.

I will extol thee, O God, my King.
And I will bless thy name forever and ever;
Every day will I bless thee,
And I will praise thy name forever and ever.
145th Psalm.

The writer of that beautiful psalm was very happy when he bore witness to the loving kindness of Jehovah. We trace his joy in every line. Are not our hearts made glad when we indulge in thanksgiving? May not this happiness become a very real experience in our own lives?

There are days when it seems impossible to cultivate this spirit. Distress, suffering, loss, eat into our very souls. Ingratitude, or breach of faith on the part of those from whom we had hoped better things, possibly brings a tinge of bitterness and discouragement. Our own mistakes may produce anxiety in once quiet minds, yet after all is added up and the balance struck we find that there is reason for glorifying God. Is His generosity not beyond our deserts? Can we measure it?

Although human nature may sometimes seem all awry, and our own souls not attuned to God's sweet music as they might be, although the world becomes exhausted with sin and drinks its cup of sorrow to the dregs, let us be thankful that there is good everywhere, and that so many men and women the world over desire to flee to God for daily help. The purple hills and sapphire mountains are symbolic of the lofty shelter enjoyed by those who look beyond the narrow circumstances of their lives to their high refuge, Jesus Christ. Surely the note of thanksgiving should become magnificently triumphant when a Savior is our theme!

It is good to make and maintain the resolution that not once a year, but every day we will offer the simple sacrifice of praise. This uplift of spirit never fails to steady us. The finest spiritual and material dividends are returned to those who habitually invest in emotions of gratitude. The thankful heart is the optimistic heart. With sheer delight we can accept the language of John Oxenham:

For all thy ministries—
For morning mist, and gently-falling dew;
For summer rains, for winter ice and snow;
For whispering wind and purifying storm;
For the reft clouds that show the tender blue;
For the forked flash and long, tumultuous roll;
For mighty rains that wash the dim earth clean;
For the sweet promise of the seven-fold bow;
For the soft sunshine, and the still calm night;
For dimpled laughter of soft summer seas;
For latticed splendor of the sea-borne moon;
For gleaming sands, and granite-frontled cliffs;
For flying spume, and waves that whip the skies;
For rushing gale, and for the great glad calm;
For Might so mighty, and for Love so true,
With equal mind,
WE THANK THEE, LORD!

GOD'S REQUIREMENTS.

God has not left us in douht as to His requirements. In law, prophets, psalms, gospels and epistles He has made them known. Micah's prophecy contains an excellent summary of God's requirements. "What doth the Lord require of thee, hut to do justly, and to love mercy and to walk humbly with thy God?" The centuries have not improved upon this compendium of a religious life. "To do justly" is God's first requirement. Righteousness is the only religion that has God's sanction. Substitutes for righteousness have never succeeded in getting God's favor. Ritualism has been offered as a substitute, hut every prophet thunders God's disapproval of rites without righteousness. God's servants must serve Him in righteousness. "To do justly" is the first requirement of a religious life.

"Tis not the broad phylactery,
Nor stuhborn fast, nor stated prayers,
That makes us saints. We judge
The tree by what it bears."

"To love mercy" is the second requirement of Micah's summary. Mercy is God's gracious attribute. The Bible everywhere glorifies a God of mercy. God wants His children to he like Him. "Blessed are the merciful, for they shall ohtain mercy." The world has moved upward hy the help of the merciful. Christ made this attrihute of God familiar to men by His example and precept. "Go and sin no more" is mercy's voice hringing hope and help. We have learned life's lesson but poorly if we do not love mercy.

"To walk humbly with thy God" is the third requirement. The humhle heart is the dwelling place that God loves to visit. Pride has no place for any but self. Humility keeps open house for all. Humility is the badge of great souls. Walking with God makes them great and keeps them humble. Micah's summary and Moses' commandment are alike in their statement of God's requirements.

God demands our love as our hest gift. Better than sacrifices, hetter than hurnt offerings, better than gifts is the love of the whole man as an offering to God. "Son, give me thine heart," is the unchanging call of the heavenly Father. Nothing short of love will satisfy an earthly parent. God's love cannot be satisfied except by love from His children. Paul did not magnify too much love as the supreme grace in his immortal chapter in Corinthians, when he made it the greatest thing in the world. All other gifts have their worth to God only as they partake of the character of a love offering.

The widow's gift into the treasury was an expression of a self-sacrificing love. She gave all her living hecause she gave all her love. Love's gifts are never small. Their quality makes them valuable, not their quantity. The gem is valued hy its quality, so is love's offering. Christ sits over against the treasury to note the quality of our gifts. What a picture of human meanness does the collection plate reveal. The treasurer of a church needs especial grace to count the offerings and still have faith in Christian character and confession. Malachi rehuked Judah for the offerings of the blind, halt and diseased animals upon the altar of the Lord. What could not he sold in the shambles would do for the sacrifice, was the pious hypocrite's reasoning in those days. What an earthly governor would refuse, was good enough for God. That sort of offering is not all over in the Church yet.

God calls for our hest. Second-hand sacrifices and second-rate service are of no value in God's sight. "All your hearts" is His requirement with those seeking Him. "Your hodies as living sacrifices" is His call to those that would serve Him. We let down the standard that God has set in His Word, when we expect anything to be acceptable unto God hut the best offering of our hearts. Low ideals make low lives. The best thought of our brains is for the Lord's work, for we are to love Him with our mind. We give too often the best part of our thinking to the world, and often crowd out of our minds plans and thoughts for the kingdom. Many a successful business man is a second-rate Christian.—Dr. I. W. Gowen, in The Christian Intelligencer.

SKETCHES FROM THE FRENCH FIELD.

Prepared hy Miss Ella K. Hooper and Mrs. L. M. White, Council Workers.

II.

Pioneers.

The early pioneers of the Methodist Church in this district, the Terrehonne and Lafourche section of the French Mission Field of Louisiana, were two: Rev. Martin Hehert, the first French Missionary maintained hy our Boards in the French field for missionary work among the French exclusively; and Rev. Robert E. Martin, who says, "For twenty-six years I've dreamed and prayed for the thing we've got now, a church of our own."

The story of the development of that church is wonderfully interesting and inspiring, showing that "God hath not left himself without witness" in the hearts of this people who have lived for generations under the curse of ignorance, superstition and priestly tyranny; showing also that heart hunger for liherty and life and righteousness cannot be stifled in the human breast.

Brother Martin has never been to school, but his father could read and write and he owned a Bible from which he taught his hoys to read. They were Catholics, of course, and had never heard that there was any other Church; hut the religion learned from the priest did not satisfy and Mr. Martin says he wished for some kind of an organization that would take the place of the Church so they could hreak away from it entirely. Then there fell into his hands some hooks on Spiritualism. These he read, and, deciding that it was much hetter than the religion he had, adopted it. He talked this new religion in his home and in the homes of his friends and relatives until, as the years went by, there were enough followers to make it necessary to have a regular meeting place. This was provided in Brother Martin's old hay shed and a charter was gotten out as the "Spiritualist Society of Bayou Blue, R. E. Martin, President." The president received members into the Society, haptized the hahies, huried the dead, and performed all the rites of a pastor except the marriage rite. For this they still had to go to the Roman priest.

Brother Martin was alive to other needs of his community and through his efforts to secure a public school became acquainted with Representative W. P. Martin, then Superintendent of Schools in Lafourche Parish. When Mr. Martin became a Representative he sent Brother Robert Martin hulietins of various kinds and among them one containing statistics of the Churches. This was the first he knew of the existence of any Church other than the Roman Catholic. He studied the sheet carefully, finding there the names of twenty-one different denominations. This was food for thought and the sheet was carefuliy preserved.

The next step was the meeting with Rev. Martin Hebert, who went into that section to hold a revival. Martin and his followers went to hear him preach. The first sermon convinced him that here was something he wanted. He got out his list of Churches and asked Mr. Hebert to point out the one to which he helonged. That one was the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and it was not long hefore Martin and all his foliowers joined. Brother Hebert then asked him to go to the Conference which was soon to meet, offering to pay his expenses. This he did and was asked to make a talk telling of the conditions among his people. The result was that he was licensed to preach and made pastor of the new church. Thus the "Spiritualist Society of Bayou Blue, R. E. Martin, President," died and the Southern Methodist Church took its pl...

METHODISM IN McCOMB.

By Rev. J. Loyd Decell.

McComb, Miss., now a thriving litt'e city of about twelve thousand people was begun back in the "fifties" as a railroad camp, the Mississippi Valley Co., constructing the first [illegible] houses. For a time the railroad was named The New Orleans, Jackson, and Great Northern. Later it became the Illinois Central and as have many other places, McComb has enjoyed its share of the development along the lines of this great system.

Not long after the village was peopled with mechanics and railroad people in general, we find the Rev. Erastus R. Strickland gathering the people together to hear the Word of God preached. The record of those early years is not to be had, and we do not claim accuracy for the history of those days. But such Kingdom laborers as E. R. Strickland, B. F. Thompson and W. W. Hopper laid sure foundations for the material and spiritual conquests of Methodism in McComb.

They had no church bulding. The good Presbyterians allowed us to hold services two Sundays a month in their house for several years, until in 1882-85, the pastorate of Rev. J. T. Nicholson, the first home of the Centenary Church was built. In 1885 the Methodist people entered their new home and this building, in which the 1901 session of the Conference was held, sufficed for the work of the congregation until twenty years later.

In 1905 by the fine vision of the pastor, Rev. N. B. Harmon, and the loyal co-operation of his people, the present magnificent church building was constructed at a cost of $20.000. In 1912, after a year's wise planning and hard work by the pastor; Rev. P. D. Hardin, with the support and liberal offerings of his people, the second church home was dedicated by Rev. A. F. Watkins, D. D.

During the pastorate of Rev. T. B. Clifford, a ten thousand dollar pipe organ, after it had been used awhile elsewhere, was purchased at a cost of $4500, Mrs. A. M. Kimball making a gift of $4000 of this amount.

This year the congregation has expended $1600 in renovating the auditorium by changing the white walls to old ivory, dark ceilings to light creme, and installing handsome electrical fixtures. Downstairs, other Sunday school rooms have been arranged and lavatories have been installed.

In 1902, Rev. J. W. Chambers organized the South McComb Church on La Branch Street. Their first building became inadequate, and under the pastorate of Rev. L E. Alford, the present splendid building was erected.

In 1908, during the pastorate of Rev. J. T. Abney at Summit, he promoted the building of the East McComb Church and they built a house for the future, which was dedicated last year by Dr. I. W. Cooper under the pastorate of Rev. F. B. Ormond.

So much for the physical equipment along the years. This of course has its place, but the chief contribution of Methodism to McComb is not to be found in her three church buildings, but in that spiritual building "fitly framed together for an habitation of God through the Spirit."

Those who have been pastors in McComb are:

Centenary: E. R. Strickland, B. F. Thompson, J. T. Nicholson, J. W. McLaurin, J. W. Ellison, T. W. Adams, B. F. Raynor, M. L. Burton, J. M. Morse, I. L. Peebles, J. W. Chambers, N. B. Harmon, J. T. Leggett, W. M. Sullivan, P. D. Hardin, T. B. Clifford, G. H. Galloway, and the writer, who is closing his second year. J. D. Crymes, Dr. I. W. Cooper, and J. M. Gwinn filled out unexpired terms.

South McComb: J. W. Chambers, H. N. Brown, —— Hull, L. E. Alford, W. W. Simmons, G. D. Anders, D. Scarborough, J. C. Ellis, F. B. Ormond, A. B. Barry, who is closing his first year.

East McComb: J. T. Abney, C. N. Guice, C. M. Chapman, R. S. Gale, H. M. Johnson, B. W. Lewis, W. N. Thomas, F. B. Ormond, A. B. Barry.

Some early names on the register are: Hibbert, Neville, Abright, Adcock, Smith, Godbold, Hudspeth, Wallace, Reeves, and others worthy of mention. Brother S. Hibbert is now in his thirty-fifth year as Sudnay school superintendent.

With these pastors and their faithful people laboring through the years, it is no surprise that there should be found here in McComb a true type of Methodist Christian people, who are willing and ready to do their Master's work.

The membership of these three churches, with their present pastors, Rev. A. B. Barry, and the writer, extend a most cordial welcome to the forthcoming session of the Mississippi Conference, and pray that the Holy Spirit will give us a glorious "season of refreshing from the presence of the Lord."

ON HIS WAY TO FRANCE.

My Dear Advocate: When this reaches the gaze of the critical eye of the public, the writer will be on his way to "somewhere in France," by way of New York. Just how long I will be detained in the greatest city of the world, I do not know. The custom, before the close of the war, was to retain men in training, for oversea service, for the space of five weeks. What effect, if any, will be had by the present urgent need for more "Y" men in France, I do not know. However, I am hoping to be with our boys in France by the first of January, 1919, at the latest.

While I am away with our boys, I may communicate with the readers of the Advocate and give them some idea of the religious status of our great army. I am going to our boys because it is the duty of our Church to furnish men for the greatly needed religious work among our boys over the seas. In thinking the matter over, I came to the conclusion that it is as much my duty, before God and in the interest of humanity, to make the necessary sacrifice and endure the necessary hardship as it is the duty of any other Christian. Of course, spiritually speaking and viewing the matter from the eternal interest of men, there are no hardships; and to go and labor with and for those courageous boys who bared their breast to shot and shell "to make the world safe for democracy" is no sacrifice, but rather it is a glorious privilege to go. Humanly speaking, however, there are sacrifices and there are hardships; but what are they in comparison with the glory of making sacrifices and enduring hardships with Jesus as one's companion? When I think of the glory and blessedness of the soul-cheering companionship had with Jesus as one gladly walks with Him in SELF-SACRIFICING service for the advancement of God's Kingdom among men, I am made to pity all those poor humans who are living the life of self-aggrandizement. All humans who follow the lead of their Adamic natures not only are created out of the glory and blessedness of God's comforting grace, but, they are doomed to eternal damnation, besides. Those humans, however, who crucify the Adamic nature and live in the exemplification of the spirit and principles of Jesus Christ, have the soul-cheering comfort of the daily presence of God in their lives; together with the assurance of eternal life with God, after the death of this physical body.

The Church of God has before it now the greatest opportunity that has ever come to the forces of righteousness. Are we alleged Christians big enough to embrace and profit by the opportunity in the great business of advancing the Kingdom of God throughout our world? To "make the world safe for democracy," our great Government was ready to make sacrifices of men and money to the point of exhaustion of both men and money, if necessary. Is the Church ready to make sacrifices, accordingly, for the advancement of God's Kingdom among men? If we are not, then are we but base hypocrites, and we are unworthy of even the blessings of democracy. The laymen of our Church need to quit thinking in terms of "MY LAND AND MY GOLD" and go to thinking in terms of "GOD'S LAND AND GOD'S GOLD," remembering that they are but God's stewards. And they need to quit robbing God of His taxes. There are millions of Christians—so-called—who never as much as pay their tithes (which is God's tax for allowing them to live upon earth), yet these same hypocrites, out of the abundance of the loot that they take from God's taxes, pay a small stipend into the Church, then boast that they have given God something. The poor old deluded sinners! No man has given God anything at all until he has first paid his taxes to the Divine Father, which taxes are 10 per cent of his annual income. Few men do that thing. Yet if all alleged Christians did do that thing, we would have no want of finances for carrying on the work of God on earth. Wake up, laymen, for God and humanity's sake, wake up, before it is too late!

I shall need the prayer's of God's children in the great work to which I am going, therefore I covet an interest in the prayers of all the readers of this article.

With Christian love and affection.

J. TILLERY LEWIS.

WE MUST TURN OUR FACES FORWARD.

To live rightly we must turn our faces forward, and press forward, and not look backward morbidly for the footsteps in the dust of those beloved ones who traveled with us but yesterday. They themselves are not behind but before, and we carry with us our tenderness, loving and undiminished towards them, to be completed when the round of this life is complete for us also.—Elizabeth Browning.

The truest help we can render to an afflicted man is not to take his burden from him, but to call out his best strength that he may be able to bear the burden.—Philips Brooks.

HENRY CLAY MOREHEAD.

By Rev. J. H. Holder.

"There is a prince and a great man fallen in Israel." With the passing of H. C. Morehead, a man of more than ordinary powers has passed from among us. His familiar figure will be greatly missed. We shall feel the loss of his fatherly counsel, his hearty handgrasp and his genial smile.

Henry Clay Morehead was born in Tippah County, Miss:, June 2, 1848, not far from Holly Springs, then in Benton County. His parents were G. S. and Mrs. R. Morehead. His parents died while he was yet a child and he was reared in the home of "Uncle" Joe Brooks. Here he found foster parents that tenderly cared for him and gave to him that holy ideal and those rock convictions that made of him the stalwart man of later years. He was given a high school education, which was, for the war and reconstruction days, a most splendid opportunity. The literary bent given him in home and in school served him well and not only made him a man of culture and learning, but impelled him to give to each of his children a college education.

While yet a boy he made a definite consecration of his life to Christ. He was converted on the old Hickory Flat Circuit in July, 1865, at sixteen years of age. He never ceased to preach and to testify to the gospel of Regeneration and the Inner Witness. He soon realized his call to the ministry, and in 1869 made the confirmation of that call in his own decision to preach. He was licensed to preach at Brook's Chapel, on the old Chulahoma Circuit, July 4, 1869. He was admitted on trial at the Holly Springs Conference in 1869. He was received into full connection and ordained deacon by Bishop Kavanaugh at Columbus in 1871. He was ordained elder at Corinth in 1872 by Bishop Kavanaugh.

His was a long and fruitful ministry of which he never tired. His appointments were: Tyro, 1870; Lamar, 1871; Como and Fredonia, 1872; Pleasant Hill, 1873; Cockrum, 1874-5; Longtown, 1876-77; Cornersville, 1878; supernumerary, 1879-80; Caswell Circuit, 1881; Austin and Friar's Point, 1882-3; Concordia and Australia, 1884; Toccopola, 1885; supernumerary, 1886; Grenada Circuit (supernumerary 1887), 1887-88-89-90; Pickens Circuit, 1891; Sardis District, 1892-95; Grenada District, 1896-99; Shaw, 1900; Houston and Wesley, 1901; Indianola, 1901-03; Itta Bena, 1904-05; supernumerary, 1906-10; superannuated, 1911-18. Thus briefly stated is the skeleton of the years. But how full of life and labors, toil and sacrifice, joys and sorrows, successes and reverses no tongue can ever tell.

In 1873, while pastor of the Pleasant Hill Circuit, he was married to Miss Eliza P. Fowler, who was his companion of nearly sixteen years, and the mother of his eight children—three boys and five girls. Two children died in infancy—Dwight Ernest and Percy E. Six survive him—Mrs. Stella Williams, Dallas, Tex.; M. E. Morehead, Courtland, Miss.; Mrs. Mabie Barbee, Los Angeles, Cal.; Mrs. Gertrude Gable, Hobart, Okla.; Mrs. Lucile Penn, Colorado Springs, Col.; Mrs. Nina Kendall, Courtland, Miss. While he was pastor of Grenada Circuit, 1888, this good wife went to her reward. With a heroism unexcelled, this Methodist preacher in poor health set about the task of educating his six children and succeeded well in the undertaking. He did not live in affluence, but he fed them on the best things of culture and religion. In 1891 he was married to Miss Mattie Williams, of Grenada, who was the companion of twenty-two years. She died June 23, 1913. In 1915 he was married to Miss Mattie Beard, of Shelbyville, Ky., who was the companion and comfort of his last years.

He was never a robust man, though most of his life he enjoyed fairly good health. Three times he was forced to take supernumerary relations. The last twelve years, his health slowly failed him and he was forced to give up almost all his work. He sought health on his farm, in the mountains and in the West, but found it not. His last two years were spent almost entirely in the home of his son, M. E. Morehead, at Courtland, where he died April 22, 1918. The funeral was held in the Courtland Church by his pastor and presiding elder and other brethren; then his body was carried to Grenada to the family burying lot and laid to rest to await the Resurrection Angel.

He was a most devoted man to his home. He was father, mother, brother and companion. His home was a home of love and life. He lived to make his children strong and great. They are his crown of rejoicing.

While public-spirited and interested in all affairs, he was most devoted to the Church to which he dedicated his life to labor for the Master. He was a successful pastor and presiding elder, painstaking, thorough-going and energetic. He applied the same business qualifications to his church as to his temporal affairs. Devoted to his Church, he preached her doctrines, believed her teachings, was loyal to her rules, and proud always to acknowledge himself a Methodist. He was a man of courage, who did not hesitate to speak out his convictions and to fight for the thing he considered right. He was a strong preacher. Even in his old days and enfeebled health, he loved to preach, and when he did preach the old-time fire would rekindle as he would lose himself in the great themes of the gospel. The people were delighted to hear him and always sought him again.

His experience was rich and sweet. It was a delight to sit in his presence and talk with him about the Church and the brethren, for he loved them every one. Then to read and pray, communing together with the Father, was a real benediction. He felt himself in the presence of the Father as with his brethren, talking face-to-face. It was an experience that none who had the pleasure can ever forget. He wanted his pastor and his brethren often, and they often visited and communed with him. He lived well, he wrought well, he died in the full triumphs of a living faith. He lives on in the many lives he touched and blesses the world. "Servant of God, well done."

WE THANK YOU.

To the religious press of the country is justly given a large share of the credit for the success of the United War Work Campaign. To the editors of the Church papers in the territory of the Southeastern Department we are grateful for the splendid service given in this campaign—without that co-operation success could not have been achieved.

In behalf of the Army and Navy Y. M. C. A. and the other organizations represented in the "drive," allow me to express to the editor and the readers of his paper our thanks for the help given—as in every good enterprise, the Church papers and the church people have given freely of service and money. It will be made plain to the men of the Army and Navy that the Church at home stands back of every organization that serves their needs.

REV. W. S. LAGRONE PASSES AWAY.

Dear Advocate: We laid to rest this afternoon, in Winona cemetery, the mortal remains of Rev. William Sylvester Lagrone. A prince in Israel has fallen. Brother Lagrone has for nearly a half century been an industrious, wide-awake, evangelical and conspicuous figure in the ranks of North Mississippi Methodism. No man of his day did more earnest, effective service for his Master and his fellow-men. His life was a white and open book, filled with noble deeds and lofty courage and unswerving fidelity to high ministerial ideals and uncompromising loyalty to his Lord and his Church.

His name was a household word among thousands and his presence an inspiration to all that was truest, worthiest, and best among men. His convictions were deep, emphatic and fundamental; his manner gracious, charming and genial as the sunshine; his bearing dignified but simple and winsome; his humor keen, kindly and contagious; his character had the solidity of granite; his life, the charm of sunlit heights; his personality, the attractiveness and glamor of romance.

Brother Lagrone was a man typical in any company or presence; a man of marked figure and striking characteristics, a man among men. His carriage, his strong, clear-cut features, his bright, beaming face, his soft kindling eyes, his strong, resonant voice, his mastery of himself and his theme and his audience made him a welcome guest, a mountain of strength, a potential figure and leader in any crowd or cause.

The Methodism of North Mississippi can never be written without giving him a large and conspicuous place in the annals of the Kingdom. His spirit and courage and dash would have made him a noted man and leader in the martial ranks of any army or age. There was nothing he feared but wrong; nothing he despised but cowardice, weakness and compromise. He had in him the true elements of the loftiest manhood, the tenderness, the sympathy, the kindliness of the richest endowed. He belonged to a heroic type and heroic age which are fast passing. When shall we see his like again?

We buried him beside the ashes of his beloved companion, who preceded him to the heavenly world by twelve years. Amid the sobs of his own family and many dear, warm friends, with the following members of his own Conference present, we laid him to rest to await the resurrection of the Great Day. The ministers present were Rev. V. C. Curtis, Rev. W. N. Duncan, Rev. W. S. Shipman, Rev. R. A. Tucker, Rev. L. P. Wasson, and Rev. John Ritchey, who assisted the writer in the funeral service.

A suitable memoir will follow later.

A LETTER FROM CHAPLAIN ROUSSEAUX.

Dear Advocate: I have missed you since being in camp, my only sight of you being the copy kindly sent by my wife. Orders to-day are to the effect that you shall immediately change your reporting headquarters from 3612 Banks Street, New Orleans, to Chaplain, 83rd Inf., Camp Beauregard, La.; and do not forget to put my name above the address.

To my many friends whom you visit weekly, and who have showed such kindness in years past, I would speak a word of greeting. Having applied about the fifteenth of July for a chaplaincy, I waited six weeks before I was informed by Dr. Watson I had been accepted by the Commission. Then another waiting of six weeks brought a letter from the Adjutant-General, directing me to try the physical examination at Jackson Barracks. I passed it, and about two weeks later received notice, by wire, of my appointment as Chaplain with rank of 1st lieutenant, and I was given nine days' time to wind up things, and pack up the other things, and report to the 17th Division on November 1.

I need not be congratulated upon receiving my commission without going to the Camp Taylor training school, as I am now in a school of the first order, on rifle and machine gun range, with the grenadiers, and all the army except the artillery, which I understand has been in training at Ft. Sill. I have the regulation cot and straw bed, and listen to constant band and bugle practice. I am working out a program, have made a tolerably good beginning, and find much to occupy me even here. Col. Jack Hayes of the 83rd is a cordial gentleman—a plain man, but a prince, if you can judge from the way his men love him.

There will be three chaplains to a regiment—ours now has only two—a Roman Catholic and myself. We are good friends—tents side by side.

This is an overseas division, and many in it have been in the service for years. You can imagine their disappointment in not getting over thus far.

There were many things I had hoped to accomplish in my church before leaving, but the epidemic kept me from my pulpit three Sundays, and I was ordered here before I could finish. I trust the church will rally and pay all the financial claims of our Conference.

I write now with sadness, but have to go about smiling. There are three brothers of us in the army—two already in France—one I trust alive; the other, Ralph, fallen with pneumonia, September 28. He died a Christian. He belongs to a glorious army. Pray for me.

REPORT OF THE METHODIST HOSPITAL COMMISSIONERS.

To the North Mississippi Annual Conference.

Dear Fathers and Brethren: The Commissioners of the Methodist Hospital have recognized, from the beginning, the tremendous task that had been assigned them by the Church, and they have planned and worked as sincerely and as fully as they knew how to accomplish the task. The Commissioners and the active agents, from the first, have trod new and uncertain paths through which they have moved as fast as the massive weight of the undertaking and the responses of the people would permit. Whatever criticisms may have been or may be offered to the contrary, more has been accomplished, however, than visible signs indicate or than could possibly be reduced to facts and figures. It is a conceded fact that the project has grown in popular favor and there is to-day more pronounced willingness to give moral and financial aid than ever. The Board of Commissioners rejoices to see the manifest interest throughout the Conferences in the progress of the new building and they are themselves keenly alive to the importance of erecting same as speedily as possible.

Broad foundations had to be laid for the new building as contemplated at present, as well as for future growth, and the Commissioners therefore purchased the most desirable lot in the city of Memphis, agreeing to pay $100,000 therefor, which indebtedness has been fully met.

In June of 1918, the women constituting the Board of Directors of the Lucy Brinkley Hospital, located in Memphis, transferred by deed to the Methodist Hospital that institution with its good will and all of its financial belongings. This hospital was well equipped and has been operated since that date by the Methodist Hospital. The statement that the auditors made on the day the Lucy Brinkley was taken over by the Methodist Hospital showed the net book value of the institution to be $99,597.50.

There are unpaid subscriptions amounting to $123,160.50, which, added to the value of the lot and the net value of the Lucy Brinkley Hospital acquired, will make a total property value of $322,758.

Since the meeting of the Annual Conferences in 1917, there has been added $108,753 in subscriptions, real estate and personal property, to the assets of the hospital.

Since the meeting of the Annual Conferences involved in the building of the hospital, a charter has been secured under the laws of the State of Mississippi, and all of the property is held in trust for the benefit of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

Respectfully submitted,

COMMISSIONERS.

BIG BUSINESS.

Copyright 1918 by H. A. Boaz.

Big business men of the modern type keep in touch with all great movements affecting the commercial world. This wide outlook is necessary to success. The man in business must keep informed in order to act wisely in the management of his affairs. Ignorance invites disaster and defeat. Knowledge is requisite to efficiency.

The modern church man of the wide awake type is also interested in all the great movements affecting the Kingdom of God. This information is necessary to keep him abreast of the times and to enable him to intelligently do the work of the Church.

The Centenary Movement, celebrating one hundred years of missions in the Methodist Church, is one of the great religious movements of the present day. It is attracting the attention of the Christian world. It is God's trumpet call to Methodism to face the world's greatest crisis.

It seeks to furnish a survey of the world as a field of operation. The religious interests of all peoples and climes will be reviewed, and the needs of the Kingdom brought to our attention. It purposes to enlist a great League of Intercessors, earnest Christian men and women who will pray daily for a more speedy coming of the Kingdom of God. It purposes also a closer study of the doctrine of Stewardship, in the interest of a larger and more systematic liberality. This program, successfully carried out, will bring a new day in Methodism, produce a great spiritual awakening and make possible the $35,000,000 goal in less than the five years assigned.

The Centenary Campaign is one of the most significant movements in the history of the Church. It marks the dawning of a new era for the Kingdom of God. When the needs of the Church are properly presented, it will awaken a new interest, cause more earnest praying, and quicken a larger liberality. This is the most strategic step in the history of Methodism, the most colossal enterprise ever undertaken by our great denomination. It should challenge every drop of red blood that flows in the veins of every loyal Methodist.

The Board of Church Extension will be vitally related to this great movement. In connection with the Centenary Campaign, six new, fresh, crisp and sparkling booklets will be mailed, one each month, to those who wish to keep in close touch with the situation. From a new view point they will give information concerning the work of Church Extension. The Board has already done a great work. It now purposes if possible, during the Centenary Campaign, to accelerate its movements and enlarge its operations.

The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in May, 1882, authorized the organization of the Board of Church Extension. Dr. David Morton was elected the first Secretary of the Board and given supervision of its affairs. All the Bishops of the Church, six traveling preachers, and seven laymen, constituted the Board. It was called together in Louisville, Ky., June 24, 1882, and formally organized. It made Louisville its home. A charter was secured and a program prepared for future work. The foundations were laid broad and deep. Dr. Morton continued in this office for sixteen years, gathering assets totaling $158,792.50.

Upon his retirement, Dr. P. H. Whisner was elected Secretary, and continued from 1898 to the date of his death in 1906. He also did a splendid work and prepared the way for future growth. At the expiration of his term of office the total assets of the Board were rendered at $203,002.59.

In 1906, Dr. W. F. McMurry was elected Secretary of the Board, and began his splendid career. During his administration the Board made its most remarkable growth. His was a most brilliant record, for which he deserves unstinted praise. At the sitting of the General Conference in Atlanta in May, 1918, he was elected Bishop, and Rev. H. A. Boaz, D.D., of the Central Texas Conference, was elected his successor.

The new Secretary comes to the office from a wide experience in administrative work. He is not a stranger to big financial affairs and is familiar with the transactions incident to the successful prosecution of the work of the Board of Church Extension. Under his guidance the work of the Board will be continued in accordance with the most modern and aggressive methods.

During its thirty-six years of history, a great record has been made, as the following exhibit will show:

1882-1918.
Receipts on Assessments	$3,559,483.64
Receipts on "Specials"	458,950.39
Contributed to Loan Funds	930,346.95
Interest earned by Loan Funds (less Charges Against Interest)	175,979.49
Present Loan Fund Capital	1,106,326.44
Amount Loaned to Churches and Parsonages	2,140,499.74
Amount Donated to Churches and Parsonages	3,640,357.20
Total Invested in Churches and Parsonages	5,780,856.94
Number of Churches Aided	9,939
Number of Parsonages Aided	2,730
Number of "Societies"	19,830
Number of Houses of Worship	17,410
Homeless Congregations	2,420
Number of Parsonages	5,930
Homeless Preachers	1,600

While the work has been extensive and progressive, there is much yet that needs to be done. The last General Conference ordered the Loan Fund increased by $1,140,000 There are now 1,600 pastors without homes and 2,420 congregations without houses of worship. The pastor cannot do his best work without being properly housed, neither can a congregation accomplish its best efforts when without a suitable place for worship. A home for the pastor and a home or house of worship for the congregation, are essential to the work of the Church.

The church building is the citadel of Christianity, the fortified fort of organized religion. Here God delights to dwell, and to pious souls in a peculiar way manifests his holy presence. Here the Gospel message is delivered. Jesus Christ is lifted up that he may draw all men unto him. Here we are increased in faith, confirmed in hope, and perfected in love.

Here the holy spirit broods over our hushed hearts and breathes into us new spiritual life and power. Here we mingle our voices in worshipful praise, confess our sins, and offer our prayers. Here the broken bread and poured wine remind us of the broken body and shed blood of the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world. At this sacred shrine, we meet God face to face

A COLLIE'S HEROISM.

The name of the little dog is unknown, but he was a young terrier that had run in front of an electric car in Halifax and had become bewildered. The motorman called to him and would have stopped the car had it been possible, but the down grade made it difficult to come to a sudden halt. Most of the passengers were breathless, realizing the danger of the little dog. A collie that was on the sidewalk grasped the situation and made a bold dash in front of the car. Seizing the terrier firmly by the collar, with one supreme effort he gave a strong pull, and in the nick of time his shaggy little friend was in a place of safety. That the onlookers appreciated the intelligence and bravery of the noble collie was apparent by hearty cheering as both dogs trotted down the street.—Our Dumb Animals.

THE PRAISE SONG.

Edward had a new top that he was showing to Howard, and Tom peeped over Roy's shoulder to see it, so none of the boys sang the opening hymn that morning at Sunday school. When the lesson time came their teacher said: "Yesterday, when I was downtown, I met Tony, the little Italian boy whose father has the fruit stand. His eyes were shining and he could hardly wait to tell me about Mr. Fisk, the music teacher, who gave him a little violin and is going to teach him to play. 'Wasn't he good to me?' Tony asked, and wherever he went he was telling about that kind friend, and praising him."

"I'd praise that kind of friend, too," said Tom.

"Are you quite sure?" asked his teacher.

"Of course I am," said Tom, and the other boys nodded their heads.

Then the teacher with a queer little smile went on talking. "This morning," she said, "a friend gave you a good breakfast, a home, loving friends, good health—things worth more than all the violins in tho world—and yet, when we came to His house, I didn't hear one of my boys join in the song of praise and thanksgiving that the others sang. You love Him just as truly as the others, I know, but today will be better and happier if we tell Him so. You and I like to have our friends thank us for what we do for them, and we ought to treat the dear Lord Jesus as well as we want our friends to treat us."

Then together they softly repeated the words of the song. And the next Sunday morning every boy sang so heartily that the teacher sang an extra little praise song away down in her heart.—The Sunbeam.

RICHARD'S FRIENDS.

When the baseball club known as the "Victors" heard that Richard Ebbert was ill, they postponed a very important game of ball to consider how they could help him. Richard was a good boy of thirteen, who peddled papers and helped his mother, who was a widow, while the "Victors" were little lads of six and seven. And the reason they felt so interested was that Richard had been their friend and champion, and when a crowd of rough boys wanted to break up their game and drive them from their little field he always routed the bad boys.

"Mamma says Mrs. Ebbert will have an awful hard time now that Richard is ill," said Claude dolefully. "I wish I hadn't spent all my money for this mask. I'd take him some oranges or something."

"My mamma says Richard always earned enough for the rent," said Joe. "Now there's nobody to carry his papers."

"Let us carry the papers!" cried Tom eagerly. "We can earn the money and give it to Richard's mother."

"No one of us could budge that big sack," said Leonard.

"We'll each take a street and it won't be a load for anybody. We can do it," said George.

Like a flash they sped down the street, and very soon they were talking over the plan with Mrs. Ebbert. She helped them divide the patrons so each of the nine boys could take a street or two, and without thinking very much about the game they had on hand they were out delivering papers.

"A new paper boy," said an old lady, peering at Tom with her near-sighted eyes. "I don't know about this. I've had Richard for years and I don't want to change."

"Richard is sick, ma'am, and I am helping till he gets well," said Tom eagerly.

"Is that so? Well, I'm glad Richard has such good friends. You may bring the paper every day and here is the pay in advance. I will send some fruit to Richard this very day. I didn't know he was ill."

Up and down the streets the boys went, explaining and delivering, until the whole village was interested in the sick boy. Flowers and good things to eat and fruits fairly rained down in the little cottage, and Richard said he would have to hurry and get well to see all his kind friends.

"I can never thank the 'Victors' enough," he said as he lay propped up in a big chair out under the old apple tree. "They did so much for me, and all I ever did for them was to drive away some boys who were mean to them."

"That was a bigger thing than we did," cried all the boys. "You just remember, Richard, that we stand by our friends, and you are the best boy friend we have in this town. Take your time in getting well, and we'll look after the papers. We have twenty new subscribers for you, and there'll be lots more before you're back at work. Most of the boys make fun of us, but you were always our friend."

"I'll never forget you," said Richard. "I tell you it pays to have friends like these, doesn't it, mother?"

Mrs. Ebbert put her arms about Richard, and looked gratefully upon the boys. With glistening eyes she quietly said something the boys remembered for a long time.

"Boys, it's the greatest thing in the world. Just fill your life with helpful things done out of love for others, whether they can repay it or not; God will mark those deeds down in heaven and they will never be forgotten."—Hilda Richmond, in Sunday School Times.

OLIN S. DEAN, TEACHER—AN APPRECIATION.

By W. A. Betts.

There are no words known to me whereby I may express accurately the sincere pain of heart I am sensible of in the passing away of my good and loyal friend from earth.

While I have not kept in touch with him by letter, I have through the papers observed with unvarying happiness accounts of his noble and efficient service. As was written of Abel, it is strictly true of Olin Dean, "though dead, he yet speaketh" and his work in moulding an admirable type of Christian womanhood whose intellectual and religious character he helped to fashion as teacher, shall be a monument to his memory, exalted and beautiful.

Our association at Mansfield, La., in the college for women, is cherished by me most tenderly and appreciatively. He wrote out of his honest heart for me one of the most highly prized testimonials I ever received from any one, in commendation of my service as teacher.

Just ten years ago we looked into each other's face and with loyal fellowship bade each other good bye, as our paths in service separated, and we have not met again, but the fond hope of forever sharing the immortal joys of heaven some sweet day brings me gladness and consolation.

He has wrought out a life of lofty purpose in the undying fellowship of his Lord in sacrifice and devotion and shall eternally wear the crown of His goodwill in glory. All too brief the pilgrimage he pursued seems to us of earthly vision, but I dare believe he lived so well and worthily the Master calls it great.

May each of us all who has felt the inspiration and force of his splendid character—a nobleman of superior quality—earnestly and persistently emulate his worth and promote in our lives the ideals so superb and scriptural he sought to exemplify and exploit.

A distinguished Christian scientist desired that upon his unimposing tombstone should be carved the simple epitaph, Louis Agassiz, Teacher. Thus also my faithful friend and brother has engraved his renown.

DIRECTIONS.

All checks and money orders should be made payable to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications pertaining to subscriptions and other business matters should be addressed to the Manager, or to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications intended for the Editor should be directed to him at 512 Camp Street. Correspondents will observe the following rules: 1. Write on only one side of the paper. 2. If you have a typewriter, by all means use it; otherwise, use a good quality of black ink. 3. Leave a space of at least two inches at the top of the first page; leave a margin of at least an inch on the left-hand side of the page; do not crowd the words and the lines together. 4. Take special pains to write proper names correctly and legibly. 5. Use letter paper if you can get it—not note paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after three or four weeks, notify us, and we will make it right.

Editorial

THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

When the next issue of the Advocate appears, the one hundred and fifth session of the Mississippi Annual Conference will be in progress at McComb City. Brothers Decell and Barry, the Conference hosts, aided by an efficient committee, have made every necessary preparation for the comfortable entertainment of the preachers and laymen. Every report that we have received from McComb indicates that the citizens of that thriving community are looking forward with much pleasure to the gathering of the Methodist hosts.

The Editor will have a peculiar pleasure in visiting that Conference. He was practically brought up in it, his father having been a member of it for some forty years, and he himself having been admitted on trial by it in 1902. Many of his earliest recollections are connected with the noble men—some of them fallen on sleep, some of them still in service—who have helped to make glorious the history of Methodism in Mississippi. Others of his boyhood friends and schoolmates are now among its active members. Although it has been ten or twelve years since he attended its sessions, he does not feel that he will be among strangers. And Mississippians know how to make even strangers feel at home. He is hoping that this attack of the "near-flu," from which he is suffering now, will not interfere with his anticipated pleasure.

THE UNITED WAR WORK CAMPAIGN SUCCESSFUL.

Mississippi and Louisiana responded nobly, as is their wont, to the call for funds to be used for welfare work among our enlisted men, the campaign for which closed a few days ago. We publish in another column an expression of appreciation from Dr. J. S. Chadwick, Publicity Director, Religious Work Department, Army and Navy Y. M. C. A., of the part the Church papers had in carrying the campaign to a successful issue. Practically without exception our Church press has stood solidly for raising the fund asked for, and Methodist people generally responded liberally according to their means.

We are unreservedly glad that our Church endorsed the campaign whole-heartedly. We have no idea that a detailed statement will be furnished the army and navy of the organizations co-operating—but the men will find out who stood by them, and when they get home, somebody will have to answer some embarrassing questions. Methodism will be in the clear.

PEACE TERMS.

Now that Germany has acknowledged her defeat in arms, she is assiduously endeavoring, as it was predicted in many quarters she would do, to offset that defeat by skilful diplomatic procedure preceding the peace congress. Her acceptance of the armistice terms has been followed by numerous official statements concerning the hardships the German people will suffer in carrying out those terms, with appeals, direct and implied, that the conditions be made lighter. Predictions of dire consequences to follow, affecting not only Germany but all Europe as well, have been made if the Germans are forced to live up to the agreement they made in accepting the armistice.

We are sure the Allies will give all due consideration to humane measures for the preservation of our defeated enemies. We trust they will not be misled into making the peace terms so easy that the German leaders will chuckle up their sleeves. We disclaim the slightest feeling of vindictiveness in thinking of the Germans. But we cannot forget the awfulness of the war through which we have passed, and the barbaric frightfulness of the Hun hordes as they poured over the fields of Belgium and of France. The war, terrible as it would have been in any case, was made more terrible by their wilful and unrestrained atrocities. The mercy of God himself is tempered with justice—and justice should be meted out to these destroyers of civilization.

And we cannot forget the spirit of the German authorities when they anticipated victory. The late Albert Ballin, general director of the Hamburg-American Steamship Company, an intimate personal friend of the Kaiser, is reported to have said, just before his death: "The indicated military, economic and political conditions of the Entente are much more moderate than might have been expected from our situation. We need only think what our terms would have been had we been the victors. We would have demanded the occupation of Paris and London. We would have dictated peace at Buckingham Palace and annexed the entire continent from the Ural mountains to the Bay of Biscay."

The whole cost of the war cannot be estimated in terms of dollars and cents; but the nation that was responsible for it ought to be required to make reparation as far as possible for the evil it has wrought. It will take decades for the victorious nations to recover from the effects of the war; the vanquished should not be allowed to recoup their losses in a shorter period of time.

THE DEATH OF REV. W. S. LAGRONE.

It is with great sorrow that we chronicle the passing of Rev. W. S. Lagrone, one of the veterans of the North Mississippi Conference, a brief announcement of whose death, by Rev. L. M. Lipscomb, we print in another column. We did not have the privilege of knowing Brother Lagrone personally, but for many years his name has been familiar to us as that of a noble workman in the Kingdom of God. We know he will be missed by scores of people whose life he has touched for good, and he will always be held in affectionate remembrance by his brethren. We join in the general sorrow at his departure and extend our sympathy to those who have been bereaved. Brother Lipscomb promises a suitable memoir in due time.

NATIONAL WAR TIME PROHIBITION AT LAST.

President Wilson signed, on Thursday, November 21, the bill providing for national prohibition from July 1, 1919, until the American army is demobilized. As matters stand now, the signing of the bill will affect only the manufacture of wine, the making of whiskey having been stopped soon after the United States entered the war, and the manufacture of beer after December 1, 1918, having been prohibited by presidential proclamation. The manufacture of wine must cease on May 1, 1919. After June 30, 1919, no intoxicating liquors of any kind may be sold in this country for beverage purposes, except for export, until the President by proclamation declares that demobilization has been completed. No intoxicating beverages may be imported into this country from the signing of the bill until demobilization is complete.

The great battle for a dry nation is thus partly won. The final victory will come when the prohibition amendment to the National Constitution has been adopted. There is every reason to believe that the amendment will be ratified before demobilization is complete.

Good-bye, John Barleycorn, good-bye. We are glad you are going and we hope you will never come back.

MORE OF THE OLD GUARD.

These letters from old subscribers to the Advocate interest us very greatly, and we believe they are interesting to our readers. We have recently received the following:

"Dear Brother Carley: I have been a constant subscriber since 1868, at which time Rev. John C. Keener was Editor, Rev. Robt. J. Harp, Publisher, Rev. Linus Parker, D.D., pastor at Felicity Street Church, Rev. Jos. B. Walker, D.D., pastor at Carondelet Street Church. 'There were giants in those days.'

"The Advocate has been an interesting weekly visitor at my home all these years, and never more so than at present.

THE CRISIS OF OUR EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM

paying our school teachers enough money to make the work of teaching permanently attractive to the kind of men and women we should like to have our children taught by. Some impracticable sentimentalists will say that teachers ought not to work for money—that the high ideals of their profession, and the great opportunities for service, ought to be their sufficient reward. Nonsense! Our teachers, as a rule, are controlled by high ideals, and they do find joy in rendering service—but it is preposterous that the great, rich American public should expect them to do such noble service for a mere pittance, or that it should be willing for them to do it. If there is anything in the world that we ought to be willing to pay liberally for, it is the education of our children. And unless we are willing to pay adequately for it, the indications are that we shall have to look to some other agency than our public schools—or let our children go uneducated!

The war has shown us that we can do whatever we have to do; the time has come when we are going to have to raise more money for our public school system. The sooner we do it, the better.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Dr. O. E. Goddard, Home Mission Secretary, has transferred his Conference membership from the Texas to the East Oklahoma Conference.

Rev. Henry T. Young, who has been the very successful Louisiana Conference evangelist, has been accepted as a candidate for the chaplaincy, and is now in training at Camp Taylor, Ky.

The first Sunday in December has been designated as Britain Day, on which all American churches will be asked to pay tribute to the part our great Ally has taken in the world war.

Rev. W. L. Linfield, the presiding elder of the Newton District, Mississippi Conference, has been a loyal supporter of the Advocate throughout his district. The Newton District quota was 200—it has nearly reached the 300 mark.

Rev. J. Tillerry Lewis, of Aberdeen, Miss., left on November 23 for New York, from which place he expects to sail soon for oversea service with the Y. M. C. A. He has an interesting letter in this issue of the Advocate.

Rev. D. H. Crowson, of Potts Camp, Miss., says he "aims to be ready" for Conference. He expects to secure his quota of Advocate subscriptions before the annual gathering, which, in itself, is something of an item in "getting ready."

We regret very much that we were out of the office when Brother J. A. Vanderwall, of Moss Point, Miss., called one day last week. We were kept at home by an attack of "near-flu." Brother Vanderwall is a friend of long standing, whose kindness in calling we appreciate.

According to biographical sketches in last week's Texas Christian Advocate, three of the seven presiding elders of the West Oklahoma Conference, W. L. Anderson, J. W. Sims and M. L. Butler, are natives of Mississippi. We understand there is still some good presiding elder material in the Magnolia State.

We learn from the St. Louis Christian Advocate that Rev. J. M. Bradley, of the North Mississippi Conference, has been transferred by Bishop Murrah to the St. Louis Conference and appointed pastor at Kennett, Mo. Mississippi loses one of her most efficient ministers in the transfer of Brother Bradley—we congratulate Missouri.

A note from Rev. Briscoe Carter, presiding elder of the Alexandria District, Louisiana Conference, informs us of the death of Rev. H. Armstrong, at Olla, La., on November 14. Brother Armstrong was an honored superannuate member of the Louisiana Conference. We trust we shall be furnished with a suitable memoir in due season.

Mr. Harris Allen Jones, a member of the Millsaps College class of 1899, of which there were nine members—"the nine of '99"—is now in Honolulu, being connected with the Hawaiian section of the Climatological Service of the U. S. Weather Bureau. He receives the Advocate regularly, and writes that it is as welcome as a letter from home.

Rev. Elmer T. Clark, of the St. Louis Conference, has been elected by the Centenary Commission to take charge of the Bureau of Methodist Minute Men. He will have his office at Nashville. The Minute Men will do for the Missionary Centenary what the Government Four-Minute Men did for the war work—present it briefly at every church gathering.

Rev. W. L. Doss, Jr., of Homer, La., has been ready for Conference for three weeks—all his assessments having been paid that length of time in advance. The salaries of pastor and presiding elder are over paid. Brother Doss says he has the best report he has had in the twelve years of his ministry—and we know it is his custom to have good reports always.

Thirty Protestant denominations are co-operating with the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief, 1 Madison Avenue, New York, in an effort to raise $2,000,000, during the Christmas season, for the starving children of Armenia, Syria and other Bible lands. Dr. E. B. Chappell, our Sunday School Secretary, is very anxious that our Church do its part in this great work.

Rev. E. C. Driskell, of Greenwood Springs, Miss., reports a good year on his charge. The preacher's salary is $200 more than last year, and it will be over paid. The Conference collections will be 100 per cent in advance of any previous year. There have been 51 accessions to the Church on profession of faith, and there are other signs of progress. A faithful steward of the charge, Mr. L. O. Simmons, of Hamilton, Miss., passed away recently.

We have just received the sad news of the death, on last Saturday, of Mrs. I. G. Gayden, of Gayden, La. Mrs. Gayden was formerly Miss Mamie Hand, a niece of Mrs. W. W. Carré, of New Orleans, by whom she was reared. Mrs. Gayden, before her marriage, was one of the most active and efficient workers in First Church, New Orleans, with which the Carré family has been, for a long time, prominently identified. The history of Methodism in New Orleans will have to give large space to Mrs. W. W. Carré and the members of her family. We extend our sincere sympathy to the bereaved husband and the sorrowing loved ones.

On Thursday, November 14, there was a very happy family reunion at the home of Rev. H. P. Lewis, in Jackson, Miss. Brother Lewis's nine children were all present. The occasion of the gathering was to say good-by to Rev. J. Tillerry Lewis, who was soon to leave for "Y" work in France. A beautiful incident of the gathering was the presentation of a suit of clothes to the father by his children. As was to be expected of a family of music lovers, music was a feature of the occasion. Family prayer was held before the gathering disbanded. Brother Lewis is now in his 83d year. Those present were: Mrs. W. H. Griffin and husband, Miss Pattie Lewis, Mrs. W. A. Terry, Mr. C. Q. Lewis, Rev. B. W. Lewis and wife, Rev. J. T. Lewis, Rev. H. P. Lewis, Jr., and wife, Rev. Jas. M. Lewis and Rev. O. S. Lewis, besides some of the grandchildren and a few intimate friends and relatives of the family. We are sure it was one of the happiest occasions in the lives of the devoted members of this noble family.

In a note to the Editor, Dr. R. A. Meek, of the North Mississippi Conference, says: "I am not in charge of our church at Starkville, as was stated in last week's issue of the Advocate. After the lamented death of Rev. J. C. Park, our pastor there, Rev. W. L. Duren, the presiding elder, wrote to me that it was his wish, and also that of the official board, that I should take care of the Starkville pulpit until Conference, which was then only three or four weeks off. This I consented to do, and it was so announced in the secular papers. Later it became necessary to postpone the Annual Conference because of the influenza epidemic, and it was so inconvenient for me to get to and from Starkville, with the poor train connections, that I sought and secured a release from the engagement. (I had not been appointed to the charge in the usual sense of that term.) I spent three of the happiest years of my life as pastor of the Starkville congregation, to which I am strongly attached." (We regret the inaccuracy of our statement last week; we got our information from an exchange.—Editor.)

A very delightful occasion was an informal "farewell" luncheon, given by Bishop W. P. Thirkield at the De Soto Hotel last Monday, in honor of Rev. E. F. Schuessler, of the M. E. Church, and Rev. W. W. Holmes, of the M. E. Church, South. Brother Schuessler has recently been appointed district superintendent of the San Antonio District, Texas, after having served a pastorate of twelve years in New Orleans, where he actively identified himself with every movement for the good of the city. Brother Holmes is completing his fourth year as presiding elder of the New Orleans District, and very probably will be appointed to a new field of labor out of the city. The guests of Bishop Thirkield were: Rev. E. F. Schuessler, Rev. W. W. Holmes, Rev. H. M. Hopkins, Dr. U. G. Foote, Dr. C. M. Melvin, Rev. A. J. Gearheard, Rev. G. B. Hines, Rev. Joseph Lanna-Ser, the Editor of the Advocate, and Dr. Chas. C. Rarick, Executive Secretary of the Board of Temperance of the M. E. Church. Just before the luncheon, Bishop Thirkield ordained Rev. Nelson R. Bossing, deacon and elder, preparatory to his entering upon the work of the chaplaincy.

EDUCATIONAL ASSESSMENTS.

Dear Brother Carley: I have received checks for Educational assessments from: Coffeeville, Rev. W. L. Storment, P. C.; Clarksdale, Rev. R. O. Brown, P. C.; Poplar Creek, Rev. S. W. Bryant, P. C.; Ruleville, Rev. W. S. Shipman, P. C.; Shelby, Rev. J. M. Wyatt, P. C.; Courtland, Rev. R. I. Collins, P. C. Sincerely, and are made to sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus the Lord. Here spiritual sons and daughters are born into the Kingdom, new ideas fixed and new hopes inspired.

E. NASH BROYLES, Treasurer.

At her altars the trusting bride commits her all into the keeping of her husband, and the groom swears unchanging love to the woman of his choice. To this blessed place we bring our children to dedicate them in holy baptism to the service of God. It is from this hallowed spot we follow our beloved dead to their last resting place, hoping to meet them again in the resurrection morning.

Night and day it stands, its spires silently pointing toward the sky, reminding us of duty, Heaven and God. It is sanctified by a thousand tender memories. It is intimately connected with our highest hopes and holiest ambitions. Let us keep it enshrined in our hearts and be more devoted to its interests. The building of such temples of worship is surely "Big Business."

We saw a dog to-day chasing a railroad train. We admired his enthusiasm, but we questioned his wisdom. It is not unusual that we do the same with men. It is so easy to let your feet run away with your head.—Selected.

Isn't This Worth Thinking About?

Suppose five years ago you had $100.00 and have been saving it in some "secure" place, such as the dresser drawer? If you now wish to use it, you still have $100.00. No more—no less.

Had you placed that money in our bank you would now have $116.00 instead of just $100.00, for that's just the amount of interest your money would have earned, without the slightest worry or exertion on your part.

Help your money to grow.

Obituaries.

Obituaries not over 200 words in length will be published free of charge. All over 200 words must be paid for at the rate of 1 cent a word. Count the words and be sure to send the amount necessary with the obituary. That will save trouble all around. We cannot make discriminations. Memorial resolutions are subject to the same rule as obituaries.

On the evening of February 14, 1918, at his home at Thomasville, the spirit of Mr. J. P. Bullock left the aged and worn body for the "manslons not made with hands." He lived a long life of usefulness, marked especially by unselfishness. He was eighty-one years of age when God called him home. He was a devout member of the Thomasville Metbodist Church, faithfully serving as superintendent of the Sunday school for thirty years or more. For two years physical disability prevented his attending church services, but the sacred flame in his heart was ever alive to his Father's goodness and love. He knew in whom he trusted, and was not discouraged, though trials and sufferings beset his pathway. He was the father of elght children, six of whom survive him. One of the results of the sainted father's life is the stamp and impress of noble character that he has left upon the lives of his children. We know he is now safe in the arms of Jesus where the weary are forever at rest. HALLIE G. HARPER.

CENTENARY OF METHODIST MISSIONS.

League of Intercession.

NOVEMBER, 1918.

Thanksgiving Prayer.

"God save the people; Thine they are,
Thy chiidren, as Thine angels fair;
From vice, oppression, and despair,
God save the people!"

Ponder and Pray.

Annual Conferences — Centenary Day will be observed in sixteen Annual Conferences in November. Ex. 14:15.

Two Goals—The Bureau of Specials of the Board of Missions has two goals for 1918—$100,000 for New Assignments, and $200,000 for Receipts. Prov. 3:9-10

Self-Denial—Nov. 3-10 will be observed by the Woman's Missionary Societies as a week of prayer and self-denial. Their goal is an offering of $35,000 for the retirement fund for missionaries and deaconesses. II Cor. 8:1-7.

China Mission Conference — This body will convene Nov. 12 at Soochow, Bishop McMurry presiding. China needs workers to care for and instruct inquirers, and buildings adequate to seat the congregations and Sunday schools. Acts 16:9-10.

Y. M. C. A. Drive—Nov. 11-12 is the time. The "Y" needs millions to help make home life for our boys "over here" and "over there." 1 John 2:14-17.

Methodist Million—The Department of Stewardship of the Centenary, Dr. J. J. Stowe, secretary, seeks to enroll a million Methodists who will covenant to pay at least a tenth of their income for the purpose of maintaining and extending the Kingdom of God. 1 Cor. 16:2.

Burdened Missionaries—Recent letters from Africa show how heavily the burden of the superstition, immoraiity and ignorance of the people rests upon the hearts of our workers. This is the experience of missionarles in all lands. Jer. 8:18:22.

Re-Enforcements Needed—There is urgent need for a doctor to go at once to Mary Black Hospital and the Women's Medical College, Soochow, China. A serious shortage of workers, due to illness and furioughs, is reported in several schools in China and in the evangellstic work under the Woman's Missionary Council in Korea. Luke 10:2.

Outgoing Missionaries — Rev. and Mrs. L. C. C. Brannan sail Nov. 16 for Wonsan, Korea. Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Terrell and Miss Rachael Jarrett return to Brazil this month, while Miss Pauline Glass Randie, in Korea, and Miss Edna Lee Booker, in China, begin to labor in their new fields, facing the darkness of heathen lands for the first time. Matt. 10:16-20.

THE MEMPHIS HOSPITAL

YES, the Memphis, Mississippi, North Mississippi and North Arkansas Conferences own and are operating a well equipped hospital in Memphis known as the Methodist Hospital, Lucy Brinkley Annex, with fifty beds devoted exclusively to surgical and maternity cases for women and children. Special terms will be made to the wife or child of a Methodist preacher.

Whatever delays there may have been or may be in the beginning and completion of the new hospital building have been and will be due to the exigencies of the war and our banking facilities and not to the ownership of the Lucy Brinkley Annex. We call upon everyone to send in all past due subscriptions and to talk and work and pray for new ones. We need all the help possible.

Headache

THOUSANDS OF WOMEN suffer miserably from periodic attacks of headache, never dreaming that a permanent cure may be had. Headache nearly always results from some disorder of the stomach, liver or bowels. Take Chamberlain's Tablets. They will correct these disorders and there will be no more headache. Many have been permanently cured by Chamberlain's Tablets.

The Itching and Sting of Blazing, Fiery Eczema

Seems Like the Skin Is on Fire.

There is a harrassing discomfort caused by Eczema that almost becomes a torture. The itching is almost unbearable, and the skin seems on fire with the burning irritation. A cure from local applications of salves and ointments is impossible, because such treatment can only allay the pain temporarily. The disease can only be reached by going deep down to its source.

The source of Eczema is in the blood, the disease being caused by an infection which breaks out through the skin. That is why the most satisfactory treatment for all so-called skin diseases is S. S. S., for this remedy so thoroughly cleanses the blood that no impurities can remain. Get a bottle to-day at any drugstore, and you will see results from the right treatment. Write for expert medical advice, which you can get without cost, by addressing Medical Director, 21 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

Women all over the world realize more and more that their work at home will help the men at the Front. It involves great sacrifices, hard work and unusual physical strength. Women at home should study nursing for war and for the home. A good way to learn is to ask your druggist for a copy or send 50c to publishers of the "Medical Adviser," 663 Main St., Buffalo N. Y., and get a copy of their 1,000 page book bound in cloth, with chapters on First Aid, Taking Care of the Sick or Wounded, Physiology, Hygiene, Anatomy, Sex Problems, Mother and Babe. Nobody, man or woman, can do good work when health is impaired. If a woman is nervous or has dizzy spells, suffers from awful pains at regular or irregular intervals she should turn to a tonic made up of herbs, and without alcohol, which makes weak women strong and sick women well. It is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Send Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., 10 cents for trial package.

Federal Point, Fla.—"I can highly recommend Dr. Pierce's medicines and it is a pleasure for me to do so. I only used five boxes of the 'Favorite Prescription' and the 'Golden Medical Discovery Tablets' but they certainly helped me. Before that I suffered with pain in my side, but after I took these medicines I haven't had any more pains. Today I am once more a healthy woman. Am enjoying the best days of health that I have since I have been married, and I have great faith that there is nothing equal to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I will endeavor to encourage others to take it. Dr. Pierce has my most heartfelt thanks for the great benefit I have derived from the use of these remedies, also for the kind letters of advice which I received."

SOME MORE MORMON CAMOUFLAGE.

An Attempted Mormon Peace Offensive.

By James S. Martin.

Responsibility for polygamy was disavowed and new polygamists denounced by the Mormon Prophet and President, Joseph F. Smith, and two of his associates, Charles W. Penrose and Heber J. Grant, at the general conference of the Church of Latter Day Saints (Mormon) held in Salt Lake City in October last. But alas! each of these men is himself a confessed polygamist.

Joseph F. Smith a few years ago boasted on the witness stand that he had since the Manifesto lived and was then living with five wives and was the father of forty-two children. He still lives openly with four of these wives, one since having died.

Charles W. Penrose has practiced polygamy for nearly sixty years.

Heber J. Grant is the man who objected to the fulfillment of the pledge made to his country by the Mormon Church to give up polygamy on the grounds that he had but three wives; and no one of them had yet borne him a son. He is the man who made an offensive address before the young men and women of the State University of Utah in which he deplored the fact that he did not have enough wives.

These are the three men who now denounce the practicers of polygamy in the Mormon Church. These are the very ones who by precept and example have been encouraging the practice among their followers through the twenty-eight years since the church made its covenant with the government to give up polygamy. What credibility can be placed in their disavowal?

Polygamy appears to be rampant in the Mormon Church. The Mormon Prophet Smith said at the recent conference, "Such marriages (polygamous) as have been performed unlawfully and contrary to the orders of the church are null and void in the sight of God and man." This is an admission of the prevalence of such marriages.

It is useless for the Mormon authorities to disclaim responsibility for the practice of polygamy as long as they retain the explicit teaching of it in their "Doctrine and Covenants," their book of highest authority. Section 132 of the book contains these words: "If any man espouse a virgin and desire to espouse another—then is he justified; and if he have ten virgins given unto him by this law—they belong to him and they are given unto him—therefore is he justified."

Taking into consideration the insincerity of the "prophets" and the fact that the doctrine of their church commands polygamy, it seems only a fair assumption that these declarations against it are for some other purpose than to instruct their followers. What is it? Evidently to still the rising indignation of the people of the United States. Like the Kaiser, the Mormon Prophet has found that the world is against him. And like the Kaiser, he has tried a peace offensive in order to gain a truce.

In the light of the history of this cult there is but one way to rid the country of polygamy and that is by bringing the Mormons under Federal control. This the National Reform Association, with headquarters in Pittsburgh, Pa., with the co-operation of other bodies, is endeavoring to do by promoting a nation-wide movement to secure an amendment to the Federal Constitution, prohibiting polygamy and polygamous living everywhere under the Stars and Stripes.

WHAT THE RED CROSS IS DOING FOR CRIPPLED AND DISABLED SOLDIERS.

That a returned soldier, minus a leg, can earn as much as seventy-five dollars a week on piece work has been proved recently when the Red Cross institute at 311 Fourth Avenue, New York City, was able to instruct and place a young man in a factory manufacturing gyroscopes which are used as stabilizers for aeroplanes, a work calling for the most skillful and deft manipulators of certain adjustments, and the development of the sense of touch to such a degree that the merest fraction of mechanical displacement can be discovered by the finger-tips.

Many opportunities for acquiring a profession are offered to these handicapped men—professions that offer an excellent living and in which the disability becomes less a handicap in view of the excellent salaries and congenial surroundings. The Red Cross institute has undertaken to teach various trades to disabled American soldiers offering a variety for selection for the development of any special bent on the part of the men, among them being the manufacture of artificial limbs, oxy-acetylene welding, mechanical drawing, drafting, printing, motion picture operating and the production of jewelry—all trades in which there are constant openings.

Even men with double leg amputations are not disqualified for active employment, for many fields are open to them in interesting mechanical work such as automatic box making, covering, cutting, stripping, labeling, printing and staying machines, all of which can be operated by a man with one hand, providing the material is carried by another worker.

Bereft of his ability to go back to his former business in life, a disabled soldier need have no fear of what the future holds in store for him, for the Red Cross has taken upon its shoulders the problem of answering the question, "What shall we do with the legless, armless and blinded men when they come back?" and is indeed preparing the way for a happy return for them to civil life in a way that will mean profit both to the soldiers and the communities in which they live.—Red Cross Publicity Bureau.

GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" TO CONSTIPATED CHILD.

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

THE CORE OF FAITH

It is of momentous importance to remember that the very core of faith is motion—a movement of the will toward the holy Lord. The act of faith is the yielding of the personal life to the God who is revealed to us in Jesus Christ our Lord. And the life of faith is the constant repetition of that act of surrender until the repeated acts become an attitude, and every choice and will in life is stamped with the pleasure and fear of God.—Dr. John H. Jowett.

BANISH CATARRH

Hyomei Will Relieve You or Nothing to Pay.

When you make up your mind to get rid of disgusting Catarrh, follow this advice:

Go to your druggist; ask him for a HYOMEI Outfit (pronounce it High-o-me). This outfit consists of a bottle of HYOMEI (liquid), a hard rubber pocket inhaler, a medicine dropper, and full instructions for use. Pour a few drops into the inhaler, and breath it a few minutes each day, according to directions.

HYOMEI relieves Catarrh because it reaches every nook, corner, and crevice of the membrane of the nose, throat, and bronchial tubes. Stomach dosing, sprays, douches, and ointments don't kill the germs because they don't get where the germs are. As the publisher of this paper knows, if you are not satisfied with Hyomei in cases of Catarrh and colds of the head, Catarrhal Coughs, Bronchial Catarrh, Spasmodic Croup, Catarrhal Laryngitis or Hay Fever your money will be cheerfully refunded. Refuse substitutes. If your druggist does not sell it, we will send you a complete outfit, charges prepaid, for $1.15 Address, Booth's HYOMEI CO., Ithaca, N. Y.

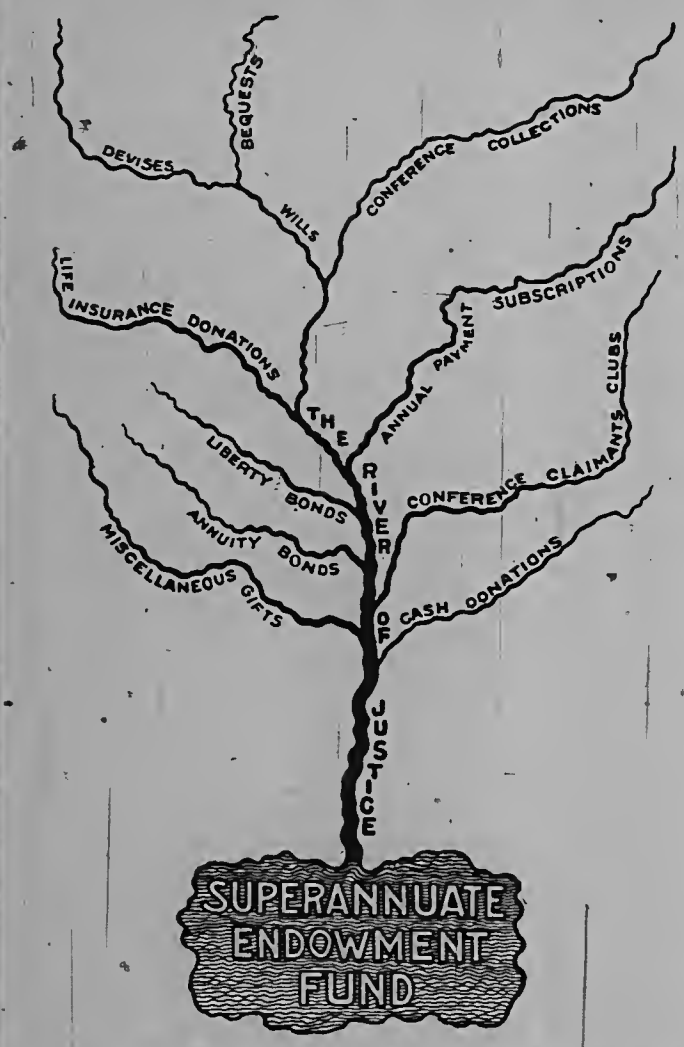
REPORT OF MRS. M. L. HARGROVE, CENTENARY SECRETARY, DEPARTMENT OF WOMAN'S WORK.

This report was made at the mid-year meeting of the Executive Committee of the Woman's Missionary Council in Nashville, Tenn., October 24-26, and its publication in the Woman's Page of the Church papers was ordered by that body.

Since my appearance before the Executive Committee of the Woman's Missionary Council last June, at Junaluska, my time has been filled to the brim either with correspondence in my office in Nashville, or out in field work with the Centenary staff, or with Centenary Team No. 1, of which I am a member. I have attended six Centenary meetings held for the purpose of instructing the leaders of the Church in the details of the Centenary program, and thereby giving them a larger vision of world-conditions, a fuller dependence upon God through prayer and greater activity in their fields of service. These meetings were held in Columbus, Ohio, for the presiding elders of the M. E. Church; at Lake Junaluska, when all three North American Methodisms were in evidence on the program; in St. Louis, Mo., for leaders of the three Missouri Conferences, with the Denver and Illinois Conferences; in Macon, Ga., for the leaders of the South Georgia Conference; in Staunton, Va., for the leaders of the Baltimore Conference; and in Dallas, Tex., where were gathered the leaders of fourteen Conferences west of the Mississippi River. At all but the first two of these meetings, I had a part in the Centenary Program which was given.

I have just returned from the Far West, where Team No. 1 had charge of Centenary presentation in three Annual Conferences—the New Mexico Conference, held at Roswell, New Mexico; the Pacific Conference, in San Francisco, and the Los Angeles Conference, held at Santa Anna, Calif. Besides the parts which were assigned me on the Centenary Program at these Conferences, I have presented the Centenary Movement at women's rallies held on Friday afternoon of the Conference session. There have also been opportunities presented again and again for talks at business women's clubs, for leading vesper services in our home mission centers, for attendance upon Woman's Missionary district meetings and also upon auxiliary meetings—these being held in the interim of regular work at Annual Conferences.

When in Nashville my days have been spent at my desk, seeking to reach the women of Southern Methodism for the Centenary Movement through correspondence. I first made use of the splendid machinery of the Women's Missionary Society of our Church. My first correspondence was with the Presidents and Corresponding Secretaries of our Conference Woman's Missionary Societies. To these Conference leaders, and through them to the District Secretaries, I have sent four circular communications and also a full statement of the plan of the work of our Woman's Missionary members, from Council officers to auxiliary members, for the great Centenary Movement of our Church. These Conference officers have, with the fewest exceptions, responded promptly and enthusiastically to my letters, and I have had quite an amount of individual correspondence with them upon various local problems. I have also just sent out a Centenary letter to the Presidents of every auxiliary in Southern Methodism. This letter is a message to each individual member of our Woman's Missionary Societies and will be read at the November meeting of the auxiliaries. Having completed my Centenary communications to the members of our Woman's Missionary Society, except as later personal correspondence may develop, I then began the cultivation of that larger field—that of the nine-tenths of Southern Methodist women who are not members of the Women's Missionary Society. I first sent a letter to each of the three hundred presiding elders in our Southern Methodist Church, asking them to aid me in my Centenary work in three ways: First, in those churches in his district where there was a Ladies' Aid Society and no Woman's Missionary Society, would he please send me the name and address of the pastor and that of the president of the Ladies' Aid Society? Second, in the churches where there was no woman's organization, would he please send me the name and address of the pastor and that of a leading woman in the church? Third, that he would join me in prayer for those women who had not yet caught a vision of their responsibility outside of local needs. A stamped and addressed envelope was enclosed. To this letter to the presiding elders I have received more than 100 responses. I hope to hear from each of the other 200 presiding elders.



I have a letter in press to the pastors of the churches where there are Ladies' Aid Societies, and also a letter to the presidents of these Aid Societies, seeking, through the help of the pastor and the president, to get these Aid Societies lined up with the Centenary Movement, having a special time set apart at each meeting of the Aid Society for prayer for the Centenary and the presentation of Centenary information. I have also written two other letters which have been sent to the press and will be sent out shortly—one to the pastor and one to a leading woman in these churches where there is no woman's organization. In these letters I have asked a calling together of all the women of the church, a reading to them of my letter to them through this leading woman, and an earnest effort to effect a woman's organization, large or small, to be known as "The Centenary Band," and pledged to prayer and service for the success of the Centenary Program, and by means of this, the advancement of Christ's Kingdom.

I neglected to mention an effort made to give larger publicity to the Centenary Movement among the women of our Church. This was done by a circular letter addressed to each of the Editors of the Woman's Page in our Church papers, asking that every Woman's Page should contain some item of Centenary information and offering to furnish these items if the Editors found it difficult to obtain them.

This is a meager report of my work as your Centenary representative during the past four months. The work has been absorbing and satisfying, and I thank you for giving me this large opportunity of service. I shall continue my work in the field and in the office as God directs, and I shall daily seek from Him wisdom, strength and power, that I may be a faithful steward in administering upon the work you have entrusted to my hands.

Respectfully submitted,
Mrs. M. L. HARGROVE.

MAKE THE RIVER FLOW!

The plight of an old, worn-out,
Heroic preacher being compelled to
End his fruitful days under the
Yoke of pitiless poverty is tragic!

Shall the great M. E. Church, South,
Having more than 2,000,000 members,
Allow its superannuated preachers to
Lack the bare necessities which their
Long and faithful service has earned?

Now is the time to remove this
Odium of neglect, which shames
The Church we love so much.

When the river flows abundantly,
All the drooping flowers take on
New life, and the blighting drouth
Turns away its doleful face!

Make the river flow. Send your offerings, of whatever nature, to the Board of Finance of the M. E. Church, South, 801-803 Mercantile Building, St. Louis, Mo.

THE JOY OF MOTHERHOOD

Came to this Woman after Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to Restore Her Health

Ellensburg, Wash.—"After I was married I was not well for a long time and a good deal of the time was not able to go about. Our greatest desire was to have a child in our home and one day my husband came back from town with a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and wanted me to try it. It brought relief from my troubles. I improved in health so I could do my housework; we now have a little one, all of which I owe to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. O. S. JOHNSON, R. No. 3, Ellensburg, Wash.

There are women everywhere who long for children in their homes yet are denied this happiness on account of some functional disorder which in most cases would readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Such women should not give up hope until they have given this wonderful medicine a trial, and for special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of 40 years experience is at your service.

SOUR, ACID STOMACHS, GASES OR INDIGESTION

"Pape's Diapepsin" neutralizes excessive acid in stomach, relieving dyspepsia, heartburn and distress at once.

Time it! In five minutes all stomach distress, due to acidity, will go. No indigestion, heartburn, sourness or belching of gas or eructations of undigested food, no dizziness, biloating, foul breath or headache.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in regulating upset stomachs. It is the surest, quickest stomach sweetener in the whole world, and besides it is harmless. Put an end to stomach distress at once by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder caused by fermentation due to excessive acids in stomach.—Adv.

WONDERFUL EGG PRODUCER

Any poultry raiser can easily double his profits by doubling the egg production of his hens. A scientific tonic has been discovered that revitalizes the flock and makes hens work all the time. The tonic is called "More Eggs." Give your hens a few cents' worth of "More Eggs" and you will be amazed and delighted with results. A dollar's worth of "More Eggs" will double this year's production of eggs, so if you want to try this great profit maker, write E. J. Reefer, Poultry Expert, 1234 Reefer Building, Kansas City, Mo., who will send you a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic for $1 (prepaid). So confident is Mr. Reefer of the results that a million-dollar bank guarantees if you are not absolutely satisfied your dollar will be returned on request and the "More Eggs" costs you nothing. Send a dollar to-day or ask Mr. Reefer for his free poultry book that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry. —Adv.

Scientific Treatment for Rheumatism.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood. In order to be cured of rheumatism it is necessary to neutralize this acid. RHEUMACIDE is a safe combination scientifically prepared to neutralize the uric acid in the blood. There is nothing in Rheumacide to injure the stomach or affect the heart. It acts surely upon uric acid, completely eliminating it from the blood and thereby relieving your rheumatism. It is harmless but effective. Positively guaranteed to relieve or refund money. It is a godsend to sufferers from rheumatism. Rheumacide also corrects constipation. Mr. J. M. Willis of the Nashville Railway and Light Company says: "I must say that Rheumacide accomplished my expectations, for it gave me almost immediate relief. I do most cheerfully endorse it instead of 'Tanlac' for rheumatism." Sold by druggists, price $1 per bottle, or by mail from WILKINS DRUG COMPANY, NASHVILLE, TENN.

FULL MEMBERSHIP IN THE CHURCH.

By Rev. Isaac L. Peebles.

When a pastor in the Methodist Church grips the hand of a candidate for membership therein, and says: "And bid you welcome to all its privileges," he does not mean that he or she becomes a member of the Quarterly, District, Annual, or the General Conference, not at all; and yet either is a full member of the Church—such a full member of the Church that nothing is needed to complete it, if the new member has been born again. If the new member has not been changed in heart or born again, then he or she is not in full membership in the Church, and therefore voting, representing, nor anything else, than being born again, or born from above, will complete it. So that plea that women are not in full membership in the Church unless allowed to become members of our representative and law-making bodies is faise. They are full-fledged members of the Church. unless they have not been born again, and if that is the case, then they, and not the men, are censurable for it. They can get the change as freely as the men, and hence become full members. If voting in our representative and law-making bodies constitutes full membership in the Methodist Church. then far more than the majority of our people, men and women, are not full members—poor creatures! We hope that our women will avoid the spirit of Miriam when she feit that she was as many as Moses and could do as well as he, until God made her a leper.

We are impressed that men, and women, too, would get along far better by believing and heeding Paul's advice when he wrote: "The aged women likewise. that they be in behavior as becometh holiness, not false accusers, not given to too much wine, teachers of good things; that they may teach the young women to be sober, to love their husbands, to love their children; to be discreet, chaste, keepers at home, good, obedient to their own husbands, that the Word of God be not blasphemed." Titus 2:3. 4, 5. It would not do the women any harm to listen to Peter when he wrote: "Even as Sara obeyed Abraham, calling him lord: whose daughters ye are, as long as ye do well. and are not afraid with any amazement." 1 Pet. 3:6. Amazement in the text means any alarm which is imaginary. Let them be contented with the lot assigned them by our Holy Father, and quit fearing that they are out of the Church until they are men or even doing like men. God is wise and has arranged matters just right, so that men are men, and women are women, and for that reason a man cannot be a woman, or a woman be a man: and therefore a woman cannot be a layman in its fuliest sense, even if the brethren are foolish enough to attempt it. The women are struggiing for an impossibility, a thing our Savior did not recognize in His college of Apostles, or in any other selection of workers; neither did the Apostles in their meeting at Jerusalem to discuss and decide important questions. Acts 15. We hope that our women will become satisfied with God's plans, and men, too, and all will work well as it has always been the case.

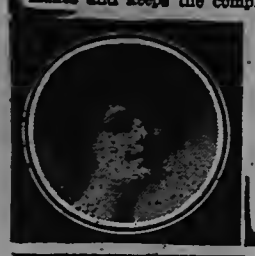
Calomel Dynamites A Sluggish Liver

Crashes into sour bile, making you sick and you lose a day's work.

Calomel salivates! It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.



If you take calomel to-day you'll be sick and nauseated to-morrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it.

HOW SHIVAR MINERAL WATER RELIEVES RHEUMATISM.

According to the standard medical books, Rheumatism is not a germ disease but is the result of imperfect nutrition. The food is either imperfectly digested or imperfectly assimilated. Poisons accumulate and these irritate and inflame the delicate linings of the joints, the heart and other organs. To relieve Rheumatism it is therefore necessary to stop the formation of these poisons and get rid of those already formed.

The celebrated Shivar Mineral Water acts on the stomach and kidneys. It corrects the digestion and washes out the poisons through the kidneys. This is the opinion of physicians who prescribe it. If you suffer from rheumatism, dyspepsia, indigestion, disease of the kidneys, bladder or liver, uric acid poisoning, or any curable conditions due to impure blood, read the following letter, then sign it, enclose the amount and mail it. Only two out of a hundred on the average report no benefit.

Shivar Spring,
Box 17B, Shelton, S. C.
Gentlemen:

I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instruction contained in booklet you will send, and if it fails to benefit my case you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return promptly.

NOTE.—"I have had the pleasure of serving the little church at Shivar Spring as Pastor for years, and am therefore well acquainted with Mr. Shivar and his associates, whom I gladly commend as an honorable business man and worthy of the confidence of the public. I have personally derived great benefit from the use of the Shivar Mineral Water and have knowledge of its beneficial effects in a great number and variety of cases."—Rev. A. McA. Pittman.

THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

The Mississippi Conference Historical Society will hold its annual session at 8 p. m., Tuesday, before the opening of the Conference session. Brother W. T. Griffin will tell us all about the beginnings around Summit, McComb, and that section.

T. B. HOLLOMAN, President.

Our faith needs strengthening, and it would be an unkindness for God to give us great answers to wavering faith. If we have not faith enough to remove a mountain, we may climb it step by step, and, when we reach its summit, our spiritual muscles will be greatly strengthened, and from the height thus gained we may breathe a purer atmosphere and get a broader view.—A. C. Dixon.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap to make, but it really has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, whooping cough or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its healing effect on the membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

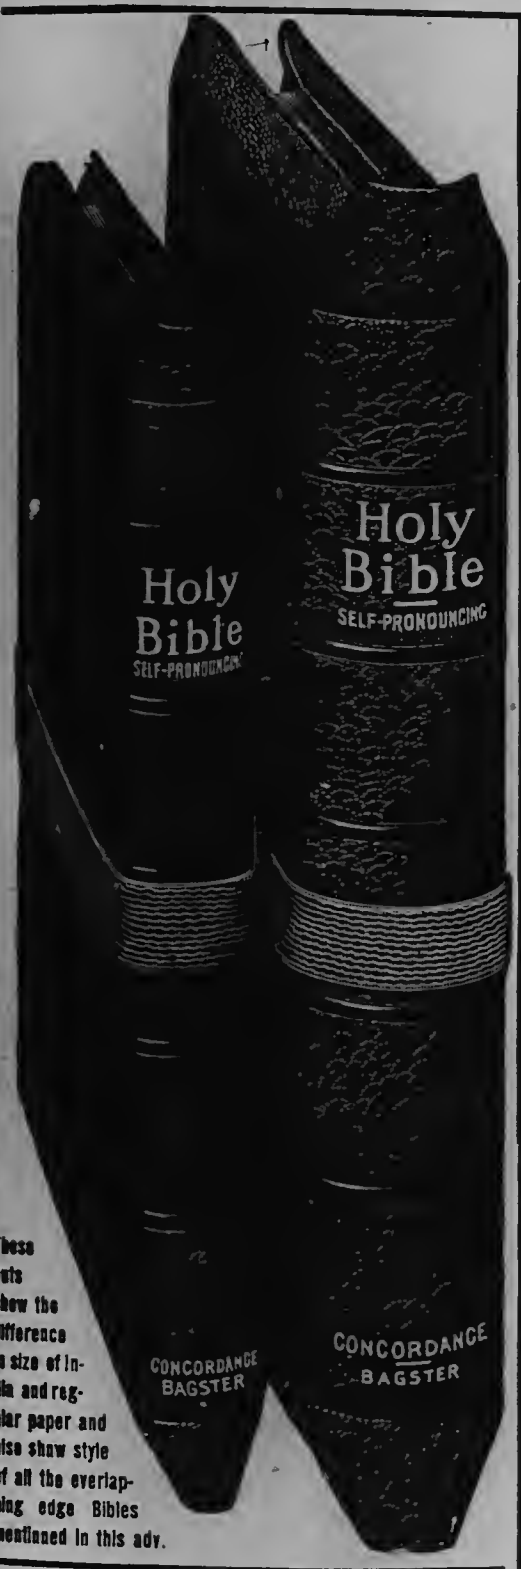
NEARLY A HALF MILLION STARVING CHILDREN.



Our General Sunday School Board, Dr. E. B. Chappell, secretary, asks every Sunday school in Southern Methodism to make a generous Christmas offering for the starving children of Armenia, Syria and other Bible lands. The Board is cooperating with the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief, Mr. C. V. Vickery, secretary, 1 Madison Avenue, New York. This committee has prepared suitable literature, including an attractive program entitled "Magi of To-day," in sufficient quantities for all our schools without charge.

Any school that has not heard from the New York Committee will kindly write to it immediately, giving the size of its membership. The importance of writing at once can scarcely be overestimated. There are 400,000 orphan children starving and multitudes of them will die unless we send them relief. No appeal can be more popular with our people, especially at the Christmastide.

"All love asks is the privilege of doing its best."

MOST APPROPRIATE GIFTS

In celebrating the birth of Christ, nothing could be more appropriate for a gift than a nice edition of the Bible or a Testament. MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

For the past two weeks I have been in the upper part of the Jackson District. Eden, Pleasant Hill, Tranquil, Bethany, Yazoo City, Midway, Benton, Union Church on the Vaughan Circuit, Satartia, Lintonia, Mt. Olivet, Bentonia and Lake City were visited. I made the trip with Rev. J. M. Morse, presiding elder of the district, and was with the brethren in the quarteriy conferences. It looks as if each charge was going to pay out and a little beyond.

I held four Children's Day services, and one school promised to send an offering. I graded one school. Two schools promised to hoid Decision Day and to urge the children to accept Christ. Four Workers' Councils were organized. Three schools promised to observe Missionary Day and make the offering a Special. Fifteen signed the pledge to take the Teacher-training Course. Six Home Departments were organized, 9 Cradle roils were organized, 8 workers volunteered their services. One professed faith in Christ. Many asked for prayers. Twenty-two teacher-training books were ordered. Figures tell so little, yet it was a busy and I believe a most profitabie trip in many ways. May God give us the greatest year yet, next year. Pray for me. JOHN C. CHAMBERS.

IT MUST BE DONE.

By Dr. J. W. Shackford.

The Teacher-training Drive which was observed by the Protestant denominations of North America during September and October was seriousiy affected by the epidemic of influenza. At the very time when attention had been centered upon the importance of training our teachers of religion, and when the churches were ready to launch the plans of training work for the autumn and winter, all church work was temporaily disbanded.

On opening again, the churches and Sunday schools naturally found that they were behind in many things. The end of the Conference year was at hand; finances were in arrears; it was necessary to catch up in everything. Inevitably the newer enterprises, however important, would temporariiy suffer most, since they would have to wait until the regular schedule of operations should be estabiished.

The result of all this is that while we shall probabiy exceed the enroiiment of the autumn of last year, despite all hindrances, nevertheless we shaii faii far short of the goal that has been set and of what actually would have been accompiished under normai conditions.

But this work must be done. The great affairs of the nation have had to be pressed, and the great causes of humanity carried to a victorious conciusion in spite of all obstacles. So must it be in this most essential work of the Church. Nothing must be allowed permanently to hinder our plans for giving religious instruction to the children and youth of the Church, and therefore nothing should stand in the way of our plans for training those who are to be the teachers and leaders in this work. Let us, therefore, resolve anew that without further delay we will inaugurate our plans of teacher-training, that we wiii begin at once even though so much time has been iost.

The war is ended. The Church faces the challenge of reconstruction, of the training of the forces for a new era in the Church and in the world. We must rise to the demands of the situation, and do whatever may be necessary to help provide the trained leadership that will surely be required for the teaching of religion to the American children.

Ciasses are urged to assemble and report organization at once, and to make use of all the time that remains between now and the Christmas holidays. Let us not allow the enthusiasm that was aroused by the Teacher-training Drive to wane, but let us conserve the results of the work already done and press forward to secure a real victory out of what seemed for a time at least a partial defeat.

"MORE EGGS" PAID THE PASTOR.

"I've got more eggs than I ever did in my life, paid my debts, clothed the children in new dresses, and I paid the pastor his dues. I have money to spare now. "More Eggs" is the remedy for me. I sold 42½ dozen eggs last week, set four dozen, ate some and I have 1½ dozen left." Mrs. Lena McBroom, Woodbury, Tenn.

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, discovered the wonderfui tonic "More Eggs" that revitalizes the flock and makes the hens work ali the time. This remarkable egg producer means big poultry profits for you. Don't delay. Send a doiiar to-day to E. J. Reefer, 3258 Reefer Bld., Kansas City Mo., for a package of "More Eggs." Or better yet, send him $2.25, and he will send you three packages of "More Eggs" tonic prepaid. This is a season's full suppiy. A Miiiion Doiiar Bank guarantees that if you are not absoluteiy satisfied your money wiii be returned on request without question. So send either a dollar, or $2.25 to-day for this wonderful egg producer. Or write Mr. Reefer for his FREE Poultry Book that tells the experience of a man who is helping a great many people make money with their pouitry, and who, himself, has a made a fortune out of the poultry business.—Adv.

A BUSY DAY.

Mr. Editor: This day, November 19, in one home I baptized 8 children and received 6 into the Church by vows, and in another home I received father and mother by vows and baptized their three children. Accompanied by two men, who carried my grip, we walked three miles, and I preached at 11 a. m., and conducted Sunday school at 4 p. m.; then visited six families, baptizing two children. Preached at 7 p. m., and raised $10 on Conference collections, which gives $85 "over the top," and am ready to retire for the night. Fraternally,

FOOT COMFORT ASSURED.

Brooklyn Man Solves the Problem.

It is no longer necessary to suffer agonies that are caused by misfit shoes, for Mr. Simon of Brooklyn has proven that he can fit perfectly by mail. Simon's EzWear shoes are built to give every possible foot comfort; they are soft and stylish and do not need breaking in. They fit like the proverbial old pair, the minute you wear them. Every pair is guaranteed to give satisfaction and to fit perfectly.

Mr. E. P. Simon will gladly send a free catalogue of over 500 styles of EzWear shoes to all who write him, along with his scientific self-measuring blank. Write for your copy today and give your feet their much needed happiness. Address all communications to Mr. E. P. Simon, 1589 Broadway, Brooklyn, N. Y., and you will receive personal attention.—Adv.

I do not think we have any right to think of a heaven for others, much less of a heaven for ourselves, in the world to come, until we are wholly determined to make this world a heaven for our fellow men, and are hoping, believing, ioving, and working for that, and for its realization not in a thousand or miiiion years, but in a nearer and nearer future.—Stopford A. Drugs Excite Your Kidneys Use Salts

If your Back is aching or Bladder bothers, drink lots of water and eat less meat.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to ioad your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, hramless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous saits is made from the acid of grapes and iemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no ionger is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Saits is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone shouid take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder wbat became of your kidney troubie and backache.

Be so rich in God that you can afford to do without everything else.—B. M. Adams.

Comb Sage Tea in Hair to Darken It

Grandma kept her looks dark, glossy, and youthful with Sage Tea and Sulphur.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troubiesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through hair taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Never bear more than one kind of trouble at a time. Some people bear three kinds—ali they have had, all they have now, and all they expect to have.—Edward Everett Hale.

Unimpeachable—If you were to see the unequalled volume of unimpeachable testimony in favor of Hood's Sarsaparilla, you would upbraid yourself for so long delaying to take this effective medicine for that blood, disease from which you are suffering.—Adv.

NEW ORLEANS
CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Vol. 65—No. 49. Official Organ of the Louisiana, Mississippi, and North Mississippi Conferences Methodist Episcopal Church, South Whole No. 3276.

HENRY T. CARLEY, Editor. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, DECEMBER 5, 1918. CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Manager.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE

First Day.

The seventy-third session of the Louisiana Annual Conference met in the First Methodist Church, New Orleans, La., on Wednesday morning, November 27, at 9 o'clock, Bishop Jno. C. Kilgo in the chair. The Bishop conducted the devotional exercises, which consisted of singing hymn No. 458, "Jesus, I my cross have taken,"

REV. V. C. CURTIS,
Presiding Elder of the Greenville District, North Mississippi Conference.

prayer, and the reading of Revelations 1-2. After the Scripture lesson, the Bishop gave an inspiring address on the greatness of Christ and his Church.

The Secretary of the last session of the Conference, Dr. F. S. Parker, called the roll. The attendance at the opening session of the Conference was smaller than usual, due probably to the fact that there is still a good deal of sickness throughout the State, and to the further fact that several members of the Conference are engaged in various forms of religious work connected with the war.

Dr. F. S. Parker was unanimously elected secretary, and upon his nomination, the following were elected: assistant secretaries, Jno. F. Foster and R. H. Harper; statistical secretary, R. W. Vaughan; assistants to the statistical secretary, H. W. Cudd, R. W. Smith, J. M. Boykin, Leland Clegg.

On motion of Briscoe Carter, the Conference rule against a presiding elder's serving on a quadrennial board was rescinded. On nomination of the presiding elders, the following Boards and Committees were elected:

Orphanage Board—Clerical: E. L. Cargill, H. W. Ledbetter, C. E. Fike, J. M. Alford, A. J. Coburn, G. P. White, John Sholars. Lay: Dr. R. D. Webb, J. M. Robinson, B. M. Jones, L. Higginbotham, C. B. Trotter, W. W. Sutcliffe, C. W. Patterson.

Board of Temperance and Social Reform—Clerical: J. W. Faulk, J. L. Sutton, H. S. Johns, A. W. Turner, B. T. Crews, S. J. Holladay, S. L. Riggs. Lay: W. R. Baker, Crow Girard, S. A. Montgomery, Hal Kleine, A. J. Scott, S. D. Pearce, J. L. Pitts.

Board of Lay Activities—Conference Lay Leader, T. W. Holloman, W. H. Black, W. M. Spinks, R. O. Randle, A. G. Murry, T. L. Edwards, S. M. Russ.

Commission on Finance—Clerical: R. S. Walton, W. R. Harvell, H. N. Brown, F. S. Parker, C. C. Wier, and the presidents of all Conference Boards. Lay: J. C. Foster, A. M. Mayo, W. S. Holmes, S. H. Meyer, S. M. Russ.

IF I WERE A YOUNG MINISTER.

By Andrew Gillies.

Two of the most essential characteristics of a vital ministry are poise and perspective. To be able to see clearly what ought to be done and then, despite clamor and criticism, to hold steadily to the task of doing it—that power will enable even an ordinary man to bring extraordinary things to pass. It marks the difference between a builder and a potterer. And if ever that power was needed, it is needed now. The world is in eruption and nobody knows the end thereof. The only thing upon which men are agreed is that we cannot go back. Old things are passed away; all things must become new. But what will be the effect of the new order of things upon organized Christianity? Crowns and thrones are perishing; kingdoms are rising and waning with bewildering rapidity; but are we sure that

The Church of Jesus
Constant will remain?

In short, what will the world after the war mean to the Church—transformation or extirpation? That is the question asked by skeptic and believer alike.

The Men Who Will Make the New World.

The men who, more than any others, will determine the answer are the young men in the Christian ministry, for they will be in the thick of things during the long period of reconstruction. And they will answer it best by approaching the matter from the opposite angle and asking, "What can organized Christianity do for the new social order?" Our business is not to save the Church, but to save the world. Jesus Christ is in charge of that enterprise and He has made it perfectly clear that it cannot be accomplished by any merely defensive campaign. Furthermore, He has furnished ample munitions of war and left adequate instructions in military strategy.

Therefore, if I were a young minister, I would concentrate my energies on becoming a preacher, the best preacher that could be made out of the material in hand. The day of the ecclesiastical engineer has gone. That method of kingdom building, along with many others, has been weighed in the balance and found wanting. Stripped of all illusions and brought face to face with the grim realities of life, death and the beyond, a burdened and perplexed humanity wants the truth, and it is the minister's business to see that the truth is proclaimed. The British soldier's succinct statement, made before going "over the top," "It is all right to entertain me, but I want some one to tell me how to die," was the imperfect voicing of the race's inarticulate plea for prophets, for men who will speak with authority and tact of God and Christ and the soul's salvation. This is no time for the apostle to be serving tables.

The Message.

My message would be salvation by faith in an atoning Savior and Risen Lord, and no sneers of "the enlightened" or clamor of "the liberals" would cause me to change it one iota. A great deal of the talk about the new age needing a new message is arrant nonsense. Down at bottom the "new age" will be just like all other ages, made up of sinful men and women who need a Savior. There is substitution for "Christ and," for the sinful Jesus the sinful need. Neither Hellenistic humanism nor a creedless church made it of those who believe anything or nothing, can save the world. "Christ crucified is unto the Jews foolishness," now is in the day of Saint Paul, but unto them which are called in every age, He is "the power of God and the wisdom of God." We may well stop conforming systems of theology with saving faith, but there is an irreducible minimum before which we must take our stand with the statement, "Thus far thou shalt go and no farther." The weakness of the modern church has not been bigotry or intolerant dogmatism, but "fuzz in theology" and vagueness in the pulpit. And what is needed in the new age is not a new message, but the old message of salvation by faith in the personal Savior made vital by a pulpit and church both proclaiming and embodying its truth. As Henry Watterson put it, "Democracy is a side issue. If the world is to be saved after the war it will be saved by Christianity, by Jesus Christ and Him crucified." (The italics are mine.)

One by One.

I would make the primary purpose of my whole ministry the thorough conversion of individuals. In the case of children, you may call the result "decision," for I have no desire to quibble over the chronological question of their relation to the Kingdom. Along with the modern emphasis on the social implications of the gospel has come a ministerial impatience (often unconscious) at the age-old method of world salvation by the regeneration of individuals. Amid "the din of social reforms, political purgations, and all the clamorous, insistent things" of the past quarter of a century, the unobtrusive work of leading men to Christ one by one has seemed slow and ineffectual. It is significant, however, that that very change in emphasis from the mass to the individual, from social salvation by general uplift to social salvation by individual transformation, marks the difference between the old dispensation and the new. The longer Jesus's public ministry continued, the more time He gave to the little handful of men and women who were to "turn the world upside down." I would be a fool to discount the value of reforms and leadership in them as a constituent part of the minister's work, but I would be a bigger fool if I did not insist that his greatest and most far-reaching work is the leading of individuals into the life as it is in Christ. Get men soundly converted, really surrendered to God and transformed by His power, and you can trust them to become honest, just and helpful in their multifarious relations with their fellow men. But scamp or neglect that work, ignore conversion as a basic element in world salvation, or take men into the Church while they are still trying to serve two masters, and you can thunder away at social sins and tinker away at social problems until doomsday without achieving any lasting results. The old preacher in rural England who was rebuked because the total definite fruit of one year's work was the conversion of one boy really did a fair year's work because the conversion was thorough and the boy was Moffat.

Keep Near the Sources.

In order to be an effective spiritual physician I would compel myself to constant intimacy with God and vital contact with men. Two of the perils of a settled pastorate in these complex times are that a man will be too busy to spend much time with God and too busy with impersonal matters really to touch the life of the people. And if the mediaval ascetic went too far in one direction, the modern ministerial "good mixer" goes too far in the other. Popular opinions to the contrary notwithstanding, people do not want a mere "good fellow" in the pulpit or out of it. The demand for "reality" in the pulpit is nothing more nor less than the demand for a preacher who knows God so thoroughly through personal communion that he can speak with authority, and knows men so intimately through passionate interest and personal contact that he can speak with discernment. Like Jesus himself, the world wants an apostle who is "in the world but not of it," whose soul dwells with the Eternal in mystical spiritual detachment, but whose heart and mind are only as immersed in the task of doing good. Perfunctory preaching, however cultured, will not do. Perfunctory calling or slum work will not do. They want a ministry that has its roots in intimate oneness with God and flowers in that self-obliterating service which is redolent of honest interest and sacrificial love. Such a ministry was that of Samuel Rutherford and Fletcher of Madeley, of Hugh Price Hughes, Maltbie Babcock and Silvester Horne. Such is that of Bishop Brent and Dan Crawford and Wilfred Grenfell and our own Helms of Boston, a ministry that answers to the full all that yearning of weak and sorrowing and sinful and discouraged hearts for

The touch of human hands—
Such care as was in Him
Who walked in Galilee
Beside the silver sea.

Such a ministry, in healthful tone and vital power, the young minister of to-day can have if he will. He must feel its worth, hold steady against outward opposition and inward inertia, be content sometimes with slow progress and meager results; amid disappointment and disaster and misunderstanding he must "endure as seeing the invisible," but in the end he will achieve, and he will behold one more demonstration of the truth of the promise, "The works that I do shall ye do also, and greater works than these shall ye do because I go unto my Father."

More than any other person in the world, I envy the young minister of the gospel to-day.—The Christian Advocate (New York).

PLAN OF SOLDIER MINISTRY.

Under a plan of the War Department for "Visiting Clergymen and Soldier Ministry" issued October 11, after Conference between representatives of the General War-Time Commission of the Churches and of the War Department, we present the following as a plan of operation for the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in rendering the ministry authorized:

I.

A. Pursuant to paragraphs D, E, F, and G, we will submit to the General War-Time Commission of the Churches, to be certified to the War Department as "Visitors at Large to Camps," the names of certain Bishops, General Secretaries, Connectional men and members of our War Work Commission to visit, lecture, preach, and minister to soldiers in the camps of our country upon invitation and under direction as provided in the order of the War Department.

B. We will further submit to the War Department from each State of our territory wherein camps are located, according to size of the State and number of camps therein, the names of from two to six men of outstanding ability from the regular pastorate and from schools and colleges who will give from two weeks to three months each to ministry in behalf of soldiers in camps within the State or nearby, subject to conditions of the War Department order.

C. We will further submit the names of not more than four men of decided evangelistic gifts to minister to camps under like conditions.

D. We will seek to provide from two to four teams of entertainers for general camp visitation, these teams to be composed of musical and other talent capable of entertaining, inspiring, and instructing our soldiers in lines helpful to morale. These will be certified to the General War-Time Commission and through them to the War Department.

II.

Pursuant to paragraph H., we shall endeavor to open and maintain in a high degree of efficiency in our larger cities near the great camp centers Headquarters for Enlisted Officers and Men, affording them facilities for rest and proper recreation when on leave. We will seek to have appointed in connection with such Headquarters a minister of the Gospel to seek men on leave and bring them to these Headquarters, relating them to the various social and definitely religious services of the churches of the city, and in general ministering to the soldier on leave. It is contemplated that this work will be carried on largely through "Enlisted Men's Clubs" under the management of the "M. M. C." (Methodist Men's Clubs). The names of the ministers stationed at such Headquarters will also be furnished the General War-Time Commission of the Churches to be certified by them to the War Department, and invitation will be sought in behalf of these that they may minister from time to time in the adjacent camp, as the chaplain or chaplains therein may desire.

III.

In and through all, we will seek to magnify the position and service of the chaplains of our army, co-operating in every possible way that their great ministry may be most effective.

We will seek, through the ministry rendered, to make the men to whom we minister better soldiers, bringing them the touch and the news from "back home," and carrying news of their welfare and happiness to the "folks back home."

We beg to say to all our people that the order of the War Department, under which the above is now planned, appears to us as practically an ideal arrangement, permitting, under proper and necessary military control, all vital ministry in behalf of our soldiers in camp and on leave.

We would especially magnify the importance of service for the "man on leave,' and urge our Churches everywhere to shape their services with special reference to these.

War Work Commission of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

A BREATH OF BOGALUSA OZONE.

By Rev. A. Inman Townsley.

Oh, say, did you ever treat yourself to a day in the pine forests, primeval, and inflate your lungs with the bracing air of the "Ozone Belt," where the majestic long-leaf yellow pines wag their heads "when fretted by the gusts of heaven?" Did you ever revel in the field and forests in the autumn days, and feast your eyes upon proud and royal Nature when she has bedecked herself in a robe of royal beauty more glorious than that of King Solomon? For variety and blending of the many hues and colors of Nature, the fields and forests of Louisiana cannot be surpassed. Here one gazes with admiration upon the old gold of hickory, the bright and flashy garnet of the sumac, the royal purple of the sweetgum, the rich amber of the oak and ash, the delicate canary of the maple and poplar. The divers hues and tints of the flowers are none the less luxurious and glorious to behold! Surely, He who bade us consider the lilies, how they grow, is a lover of beauty and attractiveness, else he would never have created such a world of beauty for His creatures! But enough of this bombast, lest I weary you with babblings.

This is not an advertisement for the "Magic City" and "Ozone Belt"—they need none—but only the fickle fulminations of a peripatetic parson who tries to see some of God's nature-pictures, and is glad of it.

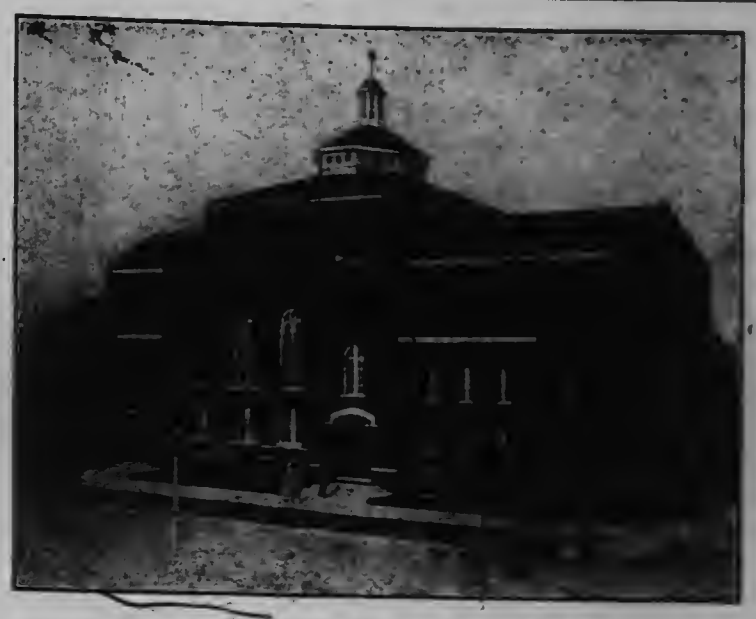
This has been the busiest year of my life; but how little has been done for the Master! How much wasted energy and how many vital and imperative things have gone undone, while time, yes, precious time, has been pilfered in petty and puny piddling! The modern pastor must carefully conserve his time, lest he be engulfed in the "big drives" and "clarion calls" of country. "These ought we to do and not to leave the other undone!" There is time for all if we know how to use it. Let us take a hint from Mr. Wesley, who was always "in haste but never in a hurry!" No man, perhaps, ever made better use of his time than did he!

During my two years' pastorate in the city of Bogalusa, more than 300 persons have been received into the Church, 78 infants have been dedicated to the Lord by holy baptism, 65 marriages and 88 funerals have been held. Holy Communion has been administered 88 times, 1645 pastoral visits have been made, 324 sermons delivered, 204 patriotic meetings attended and participated in. But what of all these "tabulated statistics?" They do not necessarily mean so much real or spiritual growth!

The true test of a pastor's success is not how many names have been added to the church roll, but how many genuine conversions from sin unto salvation; how many broken hearts have been healed, and how many heavy burdens have been lifted by his public and private ministrations. I do not discount "counting the noses" and scrutinizing church registers, for had a certain Hebrew prophet done so, he might not have succumbed to that attack of "ministerial blues and dumps" and fled into the wilderness and asked the Lord to relieve him of the task of living! But the "piddling parson" who wastes all his time in "scrambling statistics" will not be blessed with many Isaiah-like visions of the sinfulness of man and the holiness of Jehovah!

To me, there are many unique and fascinating facts about working in Bogalusa:

This is a city of "magnificent distances," and hence it gives the pastor much practice not only for theology but for "leg-ology!" No trouble to become president of a "walking club" and "sprint" until your "jints" are sore! There are no street cars and few jitneys, so that one is compelled to walk.



Another unique fact is that even though the war has taken more than 100 men from this church, yet the pastor preaches to more men and boys than to women!

Another good feature about this church is that the pastor does not have to worry about the church finances. This is all attended to by the official board, even all the Conference collections.

Bogalusa has the finest Y. M. C. A. building in the State of Louisiana, and the finest Y. W. C. A. in the South! These are vital adjuncts of the church life.

But time would fail me to try to tell all of the good things—and bad things too—about our church and city!

Happy is the pastor who comes to Bogalusa next year; he can truly say with the Hebrew poet, "The lines have fallen to me in pleasant places; mine is a goodly heritage!"

The Methodist Church at Clarksdale, Miss.,
Where the North Mississippi Conference will be held.

We are indebted to the pastor, Rev. R. O. Brown, for the statement below concerning the Church at Clarksdale, Miss., where the North Mississippi Conference will be held. Brother Brown is closing his third year as pastor of this church.

The forty-ninth session of the North Mississippi Annual Conference will be held in Clarksdale, December 11, 1918. The new church in which the Conference will convene, is the fourth building which has housed our congregation since Methodism begun its work in the city. The plans for the new building were adopted in the spring of 1916. Ground was broken the following fall, and the corner-stone was laid by Bishop W. B. Murrah, February 5, 1917. The building was completed, and the opening service held, October 7, 1917.

The building has every facility for efficient church work, containing fourteen classrooms, parlor, two choir rooms, pastor's study, Junior Department assembly room, Primary Department, Intermediate Department, kitchen and dining room.

The pastor and officials are preparing to give the Conference the best entertainment they have ever had, and a hearty welcome to the "Queen City" of the Delta.

NO SUGAR-COATED GOSPEL.

The call for a diluted gospel is not coming from the men of the army and navy. As every minister of the gospel in the "Y" work will bear witness, the men in the service are willing to hear a man who has a real message and who convinces them that he speaks out of the deep experiences of his own life. One of the best known Presbyterian ministers of this country, who for some months has been in an army camp as a "Y" Secretary, says:

"It is a great mistake to think that the Gospel must be sugar-coated and given in broken doses to the men of the army, or so diluted that they will not recognize it. The soldiers, while in good spirits and cheerful and confident, realize that these are serious times, and that they are engaged in a serious business. Most of them do not want the time for religious meetings to be taken up with patriotic talks or useless anecdotes and stories. They have come to hear a message from God, and they are disappointed if they fail to get it. I have never preached to more attentive or more responsive congregations anywhere. In the three months or more of my work here, there have been only two or three services after which there were not some definite Christian decisions. I wouldn't picture all the soldiers as hungering and thirsting for the Gospel by any means, but many of them are ready and eager to receive it when presented to them in its simplicity, and the Y. M. C. A. is doing more than any other agency I know of to give it to them. I shall always be grateful for having had the opportunity of having a small share for awhile in such great work."

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Dear Brethren: The apportionments made for our claimants are not sufficient. How many of you, whom the Lord has blessed, will help us to supplement these entirely too small amounts? Send us some large checks at once. God will bless you if you will. W. M. SULLIVAN,
Secretary Board of Finance.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE PROCEEDINGS.

preachers blameless in their life and official administration?" The names of the presiding elders were called, their characters were passed, and they made their reports, as follows: Briscoe Carter, Alexandria District; H. W. May, Baton Rouge District; H. W. Bowman, Lafayette District; A. S. Lutz, Monroe District; W. W. Holmes, New Orleans District; J. M. Henry, Ruston District; C. D. Atkinson, Shreveport District. The reports of the presiding elders showed that this has been a year of unusual progress in the work of the Church, in spite of the many difficulties that have arisen. The Bishop asked pertinent questions and made illuminating remarks that added greatly to the interest and value of the reports.

On motion, Thursday was set apart as the time for hearing the representatives of the Missionary Centenary Movement, with the provision that at 11 o'clock a Thanksgiving service be held, with a sermon by Bishop Kilgo.

Question 22 was resumed, the names of the following brethren were called, their characters were passed, and they were referred to the Committee for the superannuate relation: R. S. Isbell, J. F. Wynn, F. G. Hocutt, J. H. Brown, J. F. Patterson, T. S. Randle, R. A. Davis, F. N. Sweeney, J. T. Sawyer, M. G. Jenkins. It was reported that J. L. P. Sheppard and H. Armstrong, greatly beloved superannuate members of the Conference, had died during the year, and their names were referred to the Committee on Memoirs. The name of H. J. Boltz was called. His name was not referred, and he thus became active again.

Question 12 was called, "What local preachers are elected deacons?" P. S. Carpenter, of the Baton Rouge District, and J. H. Stafford, of the New Orleans District, were duly elected.

Rev. A. L. Dietrich and Rev. J. L. Neill, of the General Sunday School Board, Rev. N. E. Alford, a local preacher of the Mississippi Conference, two of whose sons are members of the Louisiana Conference, and Dr. Luther E. Todd, Secretary of the Board of Finance, were presented to the Conference.

Question 22 was resumed. The Bishop called the names of the preachers by districts, the presiding elders answered for them as a whole, and their characters were passed. When the name of J. J. Kelly, of the Baton Rouge District was called, his presiding elder announced that a committee of trial had been found necessary in his case during the year, and that he had been suspended from the ministry for one year. Their characters having been passed, various preachers made their reports.

Question 18 was called, "Who are located?" H. W. Jamieson, now engaged in Y. M. C. A. work at Camp Martin, La., made his report, and was granted a location at his own request. Brother Jamieson expects to continue in the Y. M. C. A. work for a considerable period of time, and this was the ground for his request.

W. C. Everett, Manager of the Dallas branch of the Publishing House, Rev. Peter Kittle, in charge of missionary publications, Dr. John A. Rice, and the Rev. Dr. Vaughan, of the Central Texas Conference, were presented to the Conference. Brother Everett made a short but interesting address on "Books."

At the request of Dr. F. S. Parker, he was released from membership on the Epworth League Board and L. I. McCain was put in his place.

After announcements, the Conference adjourned with singing and the benediction by Dr. F. N. Parker.

Second Day.

The second day's session opened promptly at 9 o'clock, with Bishop Kilgo presiding. The hymn, "Rock of Ages, cleft for me," was sung. Dr. George S. Sexton led in prayer, and Bishop Kilgo read a Scripture lesson from the first chapter of the Epistle to the Ephesians, upon which he commented briefly.

The Secretary called the roll of absentees from the first day's session, and the minutes were read and approved.

The Question, "Who are superannuated?" was called. The names of H. B. Vandenburg, of the Lafayette District, Robert Randle, of the Monroe District, V. D. Skipper and J. M. Brown, of the Shreveport District, were called, and upon motion, their names were referred to the Committee on Conference relations for the superannuate relation.

The program for the Missionary Centenary campaign was then taken up. Team No. 2, consisting of Rev. J. L. Neill, Mrs. J. W. Downs, and Rev. F. S. Onderdonk, had charge of the service. All these speakers presented various phases of the Centenary Movement. Rev. J. L. Neill spoke of "The Centenary Challenge." Mrs. Downs discussed "The Call of the Orient," and "An Enlarged Home Vision," and Rev. F. S. Onderdonk spoke of "The Call of Latin-America."

When the hour of 11 o'clock arrived, a Thanksgiving service was held, which consisted of singing, prayer by Bishop W. P. Thirkield, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Scripture reading by Dr. F. N. Parker, and a sermon by Bishop Kilgo. The Bishop took as his text, Matt. 6:33, and he delivered a great discourse on "The Kingdom of God." Bishop Kilgo's fame as a preacher had preceded him—he met all expectations. The session adjourned with the benediction by Bishop Thirkield, to meet at 3 o'clock for further discussion of the Missionary Centenary Movement.

Afternoon Session.

The Conference was called to order at 3 o'clock, Dr. F. N. Parker presiding by appointment of Bishop Kilgo. The program was given as follows:

Prayer—"Our Greatest Need," Mrs. Downs.

"Stewardship of Life," Rev. F. S. Onderdonk.

"Methods and Working Plans," Rev. J. L. Neill.

Round Table discussion.

Dr. Jno. A. Rice also addressed the Conference.

Evening Session.

Bishop Kilgo opened the evening session with a devotional service and a stirring address on the missionary work of the Church. At the close of his address he asked Dr. F. N. Parker to take the chair.

Dr. R. S. Stout, Secretary of the Board of Church Extension of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church, was presented. He made an eloquent appeal for assistance in the work of his denomination, a child of our own. In the good old negro way, a "table collection" was taken, the congregation depositing its offering on the table. The sum of $276 was given Dr. Stout for his work.

Rev. J. L. Neill and Rev. F. S. Onderdonk then gave the stereopticon lecture, "Making the World Safe for Democracy," a most interesting presentation of the missionary work of our Church in all its missionary fields.

At the close of the lecture, the Board of Missions and the Sunday School Board made their reports No. 1. The Board of Missions recommended that the quota assigned the Louisiana Conference as its part of the Missionary Centenary fund be increased to $750,000 for the five years of the campaign, and that Rev. N. E. Joyner be appointed Conference Missionary Centenary Secretary. The report was enthusiastically adopted.

The Sunday School Board, in its report, pledged the hearty support of the Sunday schools of the Conference to the Centenary Movement. The report was adopted.

Third Day.

The Conference met promptly at 9 o'clock, Bishop Kilgo in the chair. The devotional exercises, conducted by the Bishop consisted of singing, prayer by Rev. H. W. Bowman, and a Scripture lesson from Rom. 8. Bishop Kilgo made a short address.

The minutes of the previous session were read and approved.

Under Question 22, Rev. A. G. Shankle, of First Church, Shreveport, made his report and bade the Conference farewell, having transferred to the Florida Conference.

Question 1 was called, "Who are admitted on trial?" E. N. Barrios and A. J. Martin, from the Lafayette District, W. H. Giles, from the New Orleans District, and Claude H. Mayo and Ellis Smith, from the Shreveport District, were duly admitted.

In answer to Question 24, "Who remain on trial?" S. J. McLean and J. E. Selfe were continued in the class of the first year. S. A. Seegers, Leland Clegg and B. D. Watson were advanced to the class of the second year.

E. B. Daniel was discontinued on his own request.

L. W. Smart, from the Monroe District, and L. P. Moreland, from the Ruston District, were admitted as traveling preachers from the Methodist Protestant Church.

J. M. Boykin, having passed the necessary examinations, was advanced to the class of the third year and elected to deacon's orders. R. T. Ware, already a deacon, was advanced to the class of the third year.

Question 9, "Who are deacons of one year?" was called. A. L. Harper, J. L. Lay, R. W. Smith and A. D. George, having stood approved examinations, were advanced to the class of the fourth year. F. B. Hill, already in orders, was advanced to the class of the fourth year. B. H. Andrews, not having stood the examination, was continued in the class of the third year.

J. L. Evans and W. F. Roberts, not having appeared before the Committee, were continued in the class of the fourth year. It was explained that Brother Evans was unable to be at Conference on account of illness.

Dr. Stonewall Anderson, Secretary of the Board of Education, Dr. Hoyt M. Dobbs, Dean of the Theological Department of Southern Methodist University, Mr. Frank Reedy, of the University, and Dr. H A. Boaz, Secretary of the Board of Church Extension, were presented to the Conference. Dr. Anderson and Dr. Boaz addressed the Conference briefly.

The Committee on Conference Relations made its report No. 1, recommending that R. S. Isbell, J. F. Wynn, F. G. Hocutt, Thos. Randle, J. F. Patterson, J. H. Brown and J. T. Sawyer, R. A. Davis, F. N. Sweeney, and M. G. Jenkins, be continued in the superannuate relation, and that H. B. Vandenburg, Robert Randle, V. D. Skipper, W. F. Henderson, Sr., and J. M. Brown be granted the same relation. The report was adopted.

Question 4, "Who are admitted into full connection?" was called. R. T. Ware and J. M. Boykin were called before the chancel, addressed by the Bishop, and, having satisfactorily answered the disciplinary questions, were duly admitted.

On motion of Briscoe Carter, the vote on the Constitutional questions handed down from the General Conference was made the order of the day for 10 o'clock Saturday.

The Conference took action making the membership of the District Conference to consist of those enumerated in paragraph 87 of the Discipline and one layman from each church, elected by the church conference, provided that every pastoral charge shall have not fewer than five members.

R. O. Randle presented report No. 1 of the Committee on Lay Activities, announcing that W. M. Spinks, of Ruston, had been elected Conference lay leader.

Resolutions expressing appreciation of the bequest of $1200 by the late John B. Meyer for the work of the M. E. Church, South, were presented by W. W. Holmes and unanimously adopted by the Conference. Brother Holmes paid a glowing tribute to the memory of Mr. Meyer.

Dr. Geo. S. Sexton, Commissioner of the Representative Church, Washington, D. C., was presented and addressed the Conference briefly.

The hour of adjournment having arrived, announcements were made, the benediction was pronounced and the Conference stood adjourned.

Fourth Day—Morning Session.

Conference convened promptly at 9 o'clock, Bishop Kilgo in the chair. After singing, and a prayer by R. H. Harper, the Bishop read a Scripture lesson from John 15, and made a short talk.

The minutes of the previous session were read and approved.

G. D. Anders asked that his name be referred to the Committee on Conference Relations for the supernumerary relation. His request was ganted. The Committee recommended that he be granted supernumerary relation. His request was granted. Committee was adopted.

S. W. B. Colvin and W. T. Woodward, of the Monroe District, and C. V. Breithaupt, of the Alexandria District, were granted a location at their own request.

The order of the day having arrived, the vote on the constitutional questions was taken, with the following result: On granting laity rights to women—for, 95; against, 12. On substituting "Christ's Holy Church" for holy Catholic Church—for, 67; against, 48. The Bishop declined to put the question concerning the duty of Christians to the civil government, on the ground that the question was not in proper form.

Briscoe Carter took the chair at the request of Bishop Kilgo.

The report of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Louisiana Conference was read and ordered to record. The report showed that encouraging progress had been made during the year.

The report of the Epworth League Board was read and adopted.

Resolutions vigorously denouncing race horse gambling were presented by Dr. S. H. Werlein and others and unanimously adopted and copies ordered furnished to the press for publication.

Reports Nos. 1 and 2 of the Committee on Finance were read by W. S. Holmes, and adopted. The amount apportioned the Louisiana Conference for general benevolences was given as $35,500, and the amount for Conference benevolences was made the same. All money collected for these causes is to be sent to A. M. Mayo, Conference Treasurer, Lake Charles, La., who will distribute it monthly to the various causes, according to the proper percentages, fifty per cent of all such collections to go to the Conference causes and fifty per cent to the general causes. F. S. Parker gave an explanation of the working of the new financial plan.

Report No. 2 of the Board of Missions was presented, providing for the acceptance of the Memorial Home, an institution for fallen women, located in New Orleans, which institution was proffered to the Conference, and providing for a board of trustees. The report was adopted.

The report of the Treasurer of the Legal Conference was read and ordered to record.

Report No. 2 of the Sunday School Board was read. It recommended that Alonzo Early be appointed Sunday School Field Secretary in place of C. V. Breithaupt, who had asked for a location on account of health conditions in his family. The report was adopted.

On motion of F. S. Parker, J. F. Foster was elected Editor of the Conference Minutes and Custodian of Conference Records.

The report of S. H. Meyer, the treasurer of the War Work Emergency Fund, was read and ordered to record.

Mr. J. B. Grambling, President of the State Epworth League, was presented to the Conference. He addressed the Conference briefly.

W. F. Hunter was admitted as a traveling preacher from the M. E. Church.

The report of the Committee on Church Literature was read and adopted. The report strongly endorsed the Advocate campaign, to be made early in the year, and in place of W. W. Drake, who had resigned as a member of the Publishing Committee of the Advocate, nominated S. J. Davies, who was elected.

A motion was made and carried that when the Conference adjourn, it adjourn to meet at 3 o'clock p. m. Announcements were made and the benediction was pronounced by Dr. G. S. Sexton.

The Committee on Public Worship announced the following assignments for Sunday:

Other speakers at soldiers' camps, Rev. Martin Hebert, Rev. A. A. Bernard, and Rev. A. I. Townsley.

Rev. T. J. Embree will speak at St. Matthew's colored church at 11 a. m.

Afternoon Session.

The Conference met Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. Jno. F. Foster. In the absence of the Bishop, Dr. F. N. Parker was elected to preside over the afternoon session.

The minutes of the morning session were read and approved.

The following Boards and Committees presented their reports, which were adopted: Orphanage Board, Board of Education, Nos. 1 and 2; Bible Society Board, Committee on Temperance and Religious Reform, Committee on District Conference Records, Committee on Evangelism, Board of Church Extension.

The Board of Education recommended that W. W. Drake be appointed Conference Secretary of Education.

On motion, the Conference requested the Bishop to appoint A. A. Bernard and Martin Hebert as Y. M. C. A. Secretaries.

Resolutions of sympathy for Rev. A. W. Turner, Superintendent of the Louisiana Anti-Saloon League, who is seriously ill, and of appreciation of the work he has done in behalf of prohibition, were read and adopted.

The report of the Auditing Board was presented by A. M. Mayo. It showed that $39,474 had been collected this year, and that probably $1000 or more had come in since the report was formulated.

The question, "Where shall the next Conference be held?" was called. Ruston and Oakdale were placed in nomination. The vote stood: Ruston, 25; Oakdale, 43. On motion, the vote was made unanimous for Oakdale.

A motion was made and carried that when the Conference adjourn, it adjourn to meet in memorial session at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

The Conference adjourned with the benediction by Dr. F. N. Parker.

Fifth Day.

Sunday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, the Conference met in memorial session. The Committee on Memoirs made its report, and resolutions were adopted in honor of the memory of Rev. H. Armstrong and Rev. J. L. P. Sheppard, superannuate preachers who had died during the year, and tender tribute was paid to the memory of Mrs. J. F. Wynn, the wife of one of our honored superannuates and A. P. Hoit, one of the most prominent laymen of Louisiana, who passed away recently.

Sixth Day.

The Conference met promptly at 9 o'clock Monday morning. The devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. F. B. Hill. In the absence of the Bishop, Rev. J. D. Harper was elected to preside temporarily. The minutes of the previous session were read and approved.

The Bishop took the chair.

A letter from Rev. J. F. Patterson, a superannuate member of the Conference, now residing at Oakum, Texas, was read to the Conference.

Resolutions commending A. M. Mayo, Rev. W. R. Harvell and Rev. J. G. Sloane for their faithful and efficient work as members of the Auditing Board, were read and unanimously adopted.

The Bishop stated that there were no transfers to be announced.

The report of the Joint Board of Finance was read and adopted.

By action of the Conference, the treasurer of the War Work Emergency Fund was instructed to turn over to the Board of Missions any balance remaining in his hands.

Report No. 3 of the Board of Missions, and the report of the treasurer of the Board of Missions, were read and ordered to record.

Report No. 2 of the Board of Church Literature was read and adopted. The report provided that the Conference designate the month embracing the last two weeks in January and the first two weeks in February as the time for carrying on the campaign for the New Orleans Christian Advocate. The Bishop addressed the Conference concerning the activities of the laymen in circulating Church literature.

Dr. George Summey, pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, and the Rev. Dr. Berkley, rector of St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal Church, were presented to the Conference. Bishop W. P. Thirkield, of the M. E. Church, was on the rostrum as a visitor.

R. W. Vaughan, Statistical Secretary, read his report, answering Questions 23-50. The Bishop addressed the Conference concerning the great importance of keeping accurate statistics.

R. W. Vaughan, Superintendent of the Louisiana Methodist Orphanage, addressed the Conference.

The Committee of Resolutions presented resolutions of thanks to the local churches and all concerned who had helped to make the sessions of the Conference so delightful. The resolutions were unanimously adopted by a rising vote.

The minutes of the morning session were read and approved, the Bishop led the Conference in singing and in prayer, the appointments were read, and the Conference adjourned with the benediction by Bishop Thirkield.

THE CENTENARY—WHY?

The world was never so restless, never so needy, as to-day. The doors into the nations were never opened so wide.

Our people were never so responsive, nor so prosperous; our Church was never so well organized.

Unfulfilled enterprises shame our pride; unprecedented opportunities drive us forward; denominational obligations must be met.

Problems of after-war reconstruction demand preparedness; new opportunities will arise in belligerent lands; larger claims will be made upon Methodism as the Church of the people.

America has been fighting for the spread of Christian principles. Brotherhood is the center of the Centenary message.

THE CENTENARY IN MISSION LANDS.

Buenos Aires First to Go Over—Brazil and China Following.

First Church, Buenos Aires, a mission church, has the distinction of leading not only the Methodism of South America, but that of North America as well, as the first church in the whole world-wide connection to raise its allotment in the Centenary campaign. Two hundred thousand dollars, Argentine, was the amount, and it was pledged in full in the month of September. The campaign extended over ten days and was conducted in a thoroughly efficient manner by five teams of six members each, acting under the direction of an Executive Committee. Though a number of large gifts were made, practically the entire membership and constituency of the Church, rich and poor, contributed gladly.

From our Brazil Conference comes similar good news. Rev. J. W. Tarboux writes that at the recent annual meeting a considerable sum was subscribed to the Centenary, followed by a gift of $500 from one member of Dr. Tarboux's church in Rio.

Away out in West China the native Christians are becoming enthused with Centenary zeal. They are giving liberally toward the extensive program of missionary enlargement that has been laid for that section. The native contributions are being invested chiefly in land as sites for churches and schools to be erected as part of the Centenary program. A missionary writes from Chungking that such steps have been taken by the natives at no less than seven places in his territory. At Sunchang a military man volunteered one thousand strings of "cash" for a mission school; at Neikiang some of the leading business men are pushing the movement; and at Tzchow a school endowment of $5000 is being raised.

Everywhere in the mission fields the native Christians will be asked to co-operate thus in the great Centenary program. The indications are that in proportion to their ability they will gladly come forward with a worthy share. A like spirit and equal liberality on the part of the Church at home will guarantee the Centenary's success. With our greater light and infinitely greater ability we will certainly not be willing to fall behind these, our brothers of other lands, who have but just now come into the fold.

NORTH GEORGIA ASKS FOR MORE.

The most encouraging reports regarding the Centenary continue to come in from the Annual Conferences. The North Georgia Conference, not content with its allotment of $2,100,000, unanimously voted to round out its share to two and a quarter millions. Bishop W. A. Candler, the president of the Conference, made a stirring speech in behalf of the Centenary, which was represented also by a delegation from headquarters. Dr. John S. Jenkins, one of the outstanding missionary pastors of North Georgia, was appointed Conference Missionary Secretary.

TWO MEN ON THE JOB IN NORTH ALABAMA.

The North Alabama Conference was equally enthusiastic and unanimous in getting behind the Centenary. A day was given to the presentation of the various phases of the program and an immense audience, numbering two thousand, heard the story at the evening session.

More than one hundred signed tithing cards.

LIVING UP TO THE MAXIMUM.

C. G. Hounshell.

Our soldiers in the battle line have been living up to their maximum, knowing that at any hour their time might come to go over the top into a struggle which meant life or death. Only the fittest could hope to survive. The soldier dare not live short of his very best. Only self-denial, hard discipline, clean living and a great purpose could win for him the victory.

Have the lives of those of us who stayed behind been worthy of these noble sons who have faced shot and shell? Have we been living up to our maximum? And now that the war is over shall we relapse into our old, lazy, selfish habits and become lovers of ease and seekers of pleasure? Shall we not rather seek to live on the high plane of unselfish service and sacrifice that glorified our boys at the front? If in these days of reconstruction Christians everywhere will only live and serve and give with the same intensity and oneness of purpose that characterized the winning of the war, the whole world may be won for Christ in this generation.

God help us henceforth to live the maximum life!

The Sunday School Board requested that the Sunday school's portion—$44,000 a year—be raised to $50,000 a year. One gift of $25,000 was made by a layman.

Rev. R. M. Archibald and Rev. F. K. Gamble were appointed Conference Missionary Secretaries and instructed to give their whole time to the Centenary program. This is the first Conference so far to set apart two men to this work.

GOOD REPORTS FROM OKLAHOMA.

Reports from the two Oklahoma Conferences, East and West, indicate good interest in the Centenary. Both Conferences accepted their apportionments and Conference Commissions and District Committees were organized. Dr. Frank Barrett, former pastor of St. Luke's Church at Oklahoma City, was appointed Centenary Secretary for both Conferences. Dr. Barrett has worked in the government campaigns and brings to the Centenary an experience that will be valuable.

MEXICAN BIBLE WOMAN PRAYING FOR CENTENARY.

She was a wonderful old woman, a marvelous woman, who was present in all of the meetings of the Texas Mexican Mission Conference. She took her seat on the front bench and sat in rapt attention, bowing her head energetically to everything said. She was dressed in black, with a black lace mantilla over her head. Shining out from this quaint headdress her beautiful old face, radiant with emotion, arrested the attention of the speakers, who soon recognized her as their most interested listener. The climax came on Centenary Day when the Intercession Cards were distributed and this dear soul seated herself to fill out her card. One had but to watch the eager, sensitive face as she painstakingly affixed her signature, to know that already she had begun the labor of love and was in earnest prayer for the success of the Centenary Movement.

When asked about her by one of the Centenary team, Rev. F. S. Onderdonk, Superintendent of the Texas Mexican Mission, said: "Who is she?" Why she is one of the Lord's very own—a Bible woman from Del Rio. Out of her salary of twenty dollars a month she gives fifteen dollars to the Church and takes in washing to eke out a living. There is scarcely a service held in the church at Del Rio that this Bible woman does not attend, always accompanied by a number of people whom she has led to Christ. Every morning she goes to the church and sits in prayer for her people. Then she goes out from house to house visiting and carrying the Word and in a few days more souls are won for Christ! Not modern methods, probably; but O how sure! If the Centenary Movement goes over the top in this part of Methodism it will be largely because of this woman's prayers."

TWO SUPERANNUATES FIND JOY IN TITHING.

A tender and impressive little incident occurred at the recent session of the Los Angeles Conference when a venerable superannuate rose to testify to the joy of being a steward for the Lord. He said, "Brethren, when I took the superannuate relation I bought a superannuated horse and together we two set out to make a living. I secured six acres of land and the old horse and the old Methodist preacher, superannuates both of us, went to work. Of the six acres I planted an acre and a half in garden truck and the rest in beans. We worked hard, the old horse and I, helped by God's sunshine and rain and his ever-loving care, and to-day, thanks be to God, I am ready to render an account. The acre and a half brought in $250 and the yield of beans at the present market price will net $950—$1200 in all—and I calculate the Lord will get his share. One hundred and twenty dollars is a small amount compared with the abundant blessings which He has daily poured out for me and mine, but I am so thankful that in my old age I can still render unto the Lord and by the payment of the tithe acknowledge His ownership."

CENTENARY PRAYER MEETING.

Program for December.

BOYLIKE.

There's a man comes down our street;
He brings my mamma's mail;
An' every day I watch for him from Inside our front rail.
'Coz he don't say, "Aw, ain't he cute!"
Nor call me pretty names,
An' he don't tell me to be good, an' say,
"Be careful, James."
I'd love my ma a whole lot more if
She'd just talk like him,
An' holler out, "Hello, old scout!"
Or else, "Good mornin', Jim!"

HIS MOTHER'S PRAYERS.

His mother lay awake in the moonlight. She could not sleep thinking of her boy "over there." He had been such a timid little boy, afraid even of sudden noises, and mortally afraid of giving or receiving pain. Many a time she had seen him wince, and then set his mouth firmly, as during his boyhood he forced himself to go through things that the other boys gloried in.

Then came the draft, and he was of age the month before they were called. So she was not surprised when he came home one day, and said:

"Mother, I have enlisted in the ambulance service. I cannot go into the trenches and feel that I have to go out and kill men. So I have taken the only way. I can drive, and the ambulance service seemed best."

And being his mother, though he said no more, she understood; and he had gone, brave in his khaki uniform, and he was now "somewhere in France," perhaps even to-night in danger and stress.

She could not sleep, and impelled by an impulse she could not resist, she slipped on her knees beside the bed and prayed.

"O Lord," she implored, "I do not ask you to save his life and bring him back to me—his life is yours and his country's—but I do ask that you give him courage to be brave. Do not let him be a coward. Save him from that."

The little clock on the mantel struck twice in its silvery tones before she arose again. Sometimes she prayed, sometimes she just knelt there, waiting for the answer, until at length a sense of peace and security stole over her, and rising from her knees she lay down in her bed and slept as calmly and peacefully as a little child. She had left her boy in the Everlasting Arms.

That night, "somewhere in France," her boy drove his ambulance amid shellfire. It was his first experience with shells—he had been fortunate—but now they were coming thick and fast, with the awful star shells bursting in the sky.

White-lipped he drove amid the shower bursting around them on every side, with his assistant sitting beside him ready to grab the wheel if anything happened to him. Every nerve tense, he drove his load of wounded men, gripping the wheel firmly and trying to put out of his mind those awful explosions, the terrible destruction wrought.

Suddenly a shell burst near them, and his assistant sank back with a groan. A piecee of shell had hit him in the leg.

"Go on, old fellow," he said, while he hastily applied first aid to his own wound. "It's not serious, but enough to lay me out. You will have to go it alone now, and hurry all you can."

Everything blurred about the boy in his fear. He wanted to run from this terrible havoc, he wanted to run and scream, and scream and run, and hide where those bursting shells could never, never find him; but from force of habit and training he clung to his wheel. Suddenly he felt himself growing faint at the awfulness of it all. What if he should really faint and they all be destroyed? The machine stopped, something was wrong, and he was alone with his wounded out in that living hell. He swayed dizzily, then—

All at once before his eyes rose a vision of his mother's peaceful, quiet room, and his mother praying in the moonlight beside her bed for her boy—praying not for his life, but that he might have courage and strength. Only a second the vision lasted, but in a flash there arose in him a calmness and strength he had never felt before.

He sprang from his seat. "Cheer up, old fellow," he called to his assistant, "we will be going again in a minute. Keep up your courage." And he threw himself in the road under the machine, pulled out his box of tools, and set to work amid the falling shells. As he worked he sang. Why should he not? Wasn't his mother praying for him? All around him, like armor, he felt the protection of those prayers. No harm would come to him, or those in his care. Had not his mother put them all in God's keeping?

Clear and strong on the air rose the strains of "The Star-Spangled Banner." His wounded comrade stifled his groans and joined, and the men who lay in the ambulance did not know how near they had come to being abandoned to death.

At last all was ready again, and they leaped forward quickly. The trip to the hospital was made, and his mother's boy stood straight and strong and alert, as he made his report and turned to his waiting ambulance with another helper to take the place of his wounded comrade.

All night long back and forth he made his trips amid the shellfire. All night long his hands grasped the wheel, calm and unafraid; for was he not wrapped in the invisible protection of his mother's prayers? Naught could harm him now, and better than all, he knew that never again would he know fear. He, that night, face to face with death, had looked him in the face, and was unafraid, for at last he knew that God was stronger than all.

And when his mother picked up the daily paper and read that her boy, her little timid, shrinking boy, had received the croix de guerre for extraordinary bravery, she bowed her head, and said:

"Father, I thank thee for my answered prayer."

BY A HAIR.

Some thirty-five years ago, at a public dinner, General Von Manteuffel, the German military governor of Alsace, got into a dispute with a French diplomat over the question of the superiority of French workmen over the artisans of other nations. As General Von Manteuffel hated the French and everything that savored of that nation, the dispute assumed the proportions almost of a quarrel. Finally the French diplomat, with a smile, remarked that nothing existed that was so ugly that a French expert could not make it into a thing of beauty.

Pulling a hair from his bristly grey moustache, Von Manteuffel said: "All right; then take that, send it to your French artisan, and let me see if he can make a thing of beauty out of it."

The diplomat took the hair, sent it to a well-known Parisian jeweler with a letter explaining the circumstances, appealing to his patriotic pride, and telling him to spare no expense in making that hair "a thing of beauty;" and then he assured the German general that if he would have patience he should see the result of real French skill.

In the course of a week the general received a neat parcel from the jeweler. In it was a beautiful scarf pin in the form of a Prussian eagle; in the talons of the bird was the hair, at each end of which was a little gold ball. On one of the balls was inscribed "Alsace" and on the other "Lorraine," while on the eagle's perch were the words, "You hold them, but by a hair only."

Needless to say the general had very little to say after that against French workmanship.—Young People.

A STRANGE BABY.

"Mother has put my bed right beside Daddy's," said the little visitor, and he can put his hand over on me."

That made the lady she was visiting ask, "What would you think of a great big baby, as big as our piano, who didn't like to be all alone at night?"

The little visitor did not answer, for she couldn't imagine any baby as big as a piano.

"It was a baby elephant,' said the lady, "and it was being taken from one place to another on a train. It had to ride in the baggage car. Even a baby elephant can make a terrible noise, called trumpeting, and whenever the keeper left this baby, it began to trumpet so loudly that nobody else could stay in the car. So a cot was brought in, and the keeper rolled up in a blanket and went to sleep.

"All night long the big gray baby stood up, for it seemed to be afraid to lie down in the train. Every little while it would reach out with its long trunk and very gently feel of its keeper, as if to make quite sure that he was near.

"I think we can easily guess how that keeper treated the elephant, don't you?" For if he had not been gentle and kind, the big baby would not have loved and trusted him as it did."—Exchange.

New Orleans Christian Advocate

HENRY T. CARLEY, Editor.

CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Manager.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:

Louisiana Conference—Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., Rev. W. W. Drake, Rev. J. F Foster.

Mississippi Conference—Rev. C. W. Crisler, Rev. J. T. Leggett, Rev. J. R. Jones.

North Mississippi Conference—Rev. W. W. Woollard, Rev. J. H. Felts, Rev. T. H. Lipscomb.

DIRECTIONS.

All checks and money orders should be made payable to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications pertaining to subscriptions and other business matters should be addressed to the Manager, or to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications intended for the Editor should be directed to him at 512 Camp Street. Corresponoents will observe the following rules: 1. Write on only one side of the paper. 2. If you have a typewriter, by all means use it; otherwise, use a good quality of black ink. 3. Leave a space of at least two inches at the top of the first page; leave a margin of at least an inch on the left-hand side of the page; do not crowd the words and the lines together. 4. Take special pains to write proper names correctly and legibly. 5. Use letter paper if you can get it—not note paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after three or four weeks, notify us, and we will make it right.

IMPORTANT NOTICE—CHANGE OF ADDRESS.

We earnestly request all preachers whose post office address is changed after Conference to send us a card with request to change the address of their paper. Let this card be sure to give the old address, as well as the new. This is very important. We cannot change the address on the paper unless we have the subscriber's request to do so. In any case, it is impossible for us to get the correct post offices from the list of the appointments. Those who want to get every copy of their paper will heed this request promptly.

CONFERENCE PERSONALS.

Rev. Robert Randle, who took the superannuate relation at this session of the Conference, has been in the itinerant ministry for fifty years. He preached his second sermon on his way to join the Conference at New Iberia. He rode 350 miles on horseback, from Minden, La., to he present at that Conference. During his ministry, he has ridden on horsehack, in huggy and "foothack," ahout 110,000 miles. He will make his home at Monroe, La., with his son, R. O. Randle, one of the leading laymen of the State. Brother Randle has served Methodism magnificently throughout his ministry.

Rev. J. M. Brown, who went on the honor roll at this session of the Conference, has been a member of the Conference for fifty-five years. He will be seventy-nine years of age next January. He was educated at Centenary Institute, Summerfield, Ala., and joined the Alahama Conference, hut was transferred to the Louisiana Conference in 1873. He has heen a forceful figure in Methodism throughout all these years. He will make his home at Belcher, La.

Rev. W. H. Coleman, whose transfer to the Memphis Conference was announced last week, has heen appointed pastor of St. John's Church, Memphis.

Dr. J. C. Beach, a local preacher in old John Street Church, New York City, was a visitor at the Conference.

Dr. Hoyt M. Dobbs and Mr. Frank Reedy, of the Southern Methodist University, were present during several sessions of the Conference. Mr. Reedy made the principal address at the anniversary of the Board of Education Saturday evening.

Dr. John A. Rice, who served four years as pastor of Rayne Memorial, was a very welcome visitor to the Conference and to New Orleans. His address on Tuesday evening hefore Conference opened was a great utterance.

Bishop Wilbur P. Thirkield, of the M. E. Church, in charge of the New Orleans episcopal area of his Church, was present at the Thanksgiving service on Thursday, and at one of the evening services.

A great many members of the Conference missed the genial H. H. Ahrens, who seldom fails to attend a session. His knowledge of Methodist procedure and his ahility as a newspaper man have made him an unexcelled reporter of the doings of an Annual Conference. He is at present engaged in important war work in New York.

One of the most faithful and attentive lay delegates present was Mr. W. R. Baker, of St. Joseph, La. The Editor especially enjoyed meeting this loyal friend of the Advocate.

Of the preachers' wives in attendance upon the Conference from a distance, we had the pleasure of shaking hands with Mrs. E. K. Means, Mrs. I. T. Reames, Mrs. A. S. Lutz, Mrs. F. B. Hill, Mrs. S. L. Riggs, Mrs. A. I. Townsley, and Mrs. C. E. Fike. Others in attendance were Mrs. J. W. Booth, Mrs. J. B. Williams, Mrs. S. D. Howard, Mrs. T. D. Lipscomb.

Rev. J. Loyd Decell, of McComb, Miss., Rev. G. S. Harmon, of Poplarville, Miss., and Rev. H. W. Van Hook, of Biloxi, Miss., were some Mississippi Conference preachers who peeped in to see how the Louisianians do things.

Bishop Kilgo's Thanksgiving sermon pleased mightily the great congregation that heard it Thursday morning. His address to the class that was received into full connection was a great exposition of tbe work of the ministry.

Rev. C. V. Breithaupt has been eminently successful as the Conference Sunday School Field Secretary. It was a source of great regret to his brethren that health conditions in his family made it necessary for him to ask for a location at this session of the Conference.

Dr. U. G. Foote, of Rayne Memorial, was kept from attending Conference by an attack of grippe. He was greatly missed by the brethren, who have learned to love him.

The Conference love feast Sunday morning, conducted by Rev. P. A. Sowell, an honored superannuate of the Tennessee Conference, who makes his home in New Orleans, was a most profitable and inspiring service.

Bishop Kilgo preached a great sermon on the Atonement Sunday morning. At the close of the service, Rev. L. W. Smart, and Rev. L. P. Moreland, received as traveling preachers from the Methodist Protestant Church, assumed the vows of elders in our Church. Rev. J. M. Boykin was ordained a traveling deacon, and Rev. P. S. Carpenter and Rev J. H. Stafford were ordained local deacons.

Rev. W. F. Henderson, Sr., asked for and was granted the superannuate relation. He has been preaching about 39 years, and has been a member of the Conference 31 years. He was elected a steward in the church at Mooringsport in November, 1875, from which he was superannuated at this session of the Conference. He has served that charge three times as pastor, two terms of four years each, and one term of two years. He will make his home at Cedar Grove, La., where he expects "to rest—not remain idle." Brother Henderson enjoys the love of all his brethren.

Bishop Kilgo says that sciatica is the toothache five miles long. The only difference of opinion that might arise is concerning the length of the ache. Some victims think it is considerably more than five miles.

Rev. Paul M. Brown, of De Ridder, and Rev. K. W. Dodson, of Minden were unahle to attend Conference on account of illness. They were greatly missed.

Rev. F. N. Sweeney became ill soon after his arrival at Conference, and was compelled to return home.

Mr. W. C. Everett, the genial manager of the Puhlishing House at Dallas, Texas, was a welcome visitor. He says it is well understood in the Publishing House that he claims the Louisiana Conference as his own in the annual round of visits.

The weather was of the usual Conference variety—good, bad and indifferent. Wednesday and Friday were especially disagreeable. But the preachers maintained their good humor.

Dr. R. H. Wynn enjoyed a unique distinction—he represented officially Centenary College, as president, the Bayou La Chute charge as pastor, and First Church, Shreveport, as pastor. There is widespread regret that he has given up the presidency of Centenary, but no man in the Conference is more greatly heloved as a pastor.

Rev. W. Winans Drake, of Noel Memorial, Shreveport, has heen elected acting president of Centenary College, to serve until next June. He will attend to the duties of this office in addition to his work as pastor of one of the leading churches of the Conference.

We doubt if any Conference in the Connection has a more efficient staff of secretaries than the Louisiana. Dr. F. S. Parker, Jno. F. Foster and R. H. Harper know all that is to be known about complete and accurate records. R. W. Vaughan, as statistical secretary, aided hy a fine corps of assistants, is as good as the best.

The New Orleans Methodist women made all the delegates their ardent admirers hy serving an elegant luncheon at the church each day of the Conference except Sunday and Monday.

Rev. G. D. Anders served this year, Indian Bayou, one of the largest country churches in Methodism with more than five hundred members. He reported the baptism of 100 infants during the year. Brother

Anders asked for and was granted the supernumerary relation.

Mr. J. B. Grambling, of Shreveport, president of the State Epworth League, was present during the Conference and represented his work very effectively. We confidently predict unusual activity in League work during his administration.

The brethren missed Rev. A. F. Vaughan, now serving as chaplain in France, and Rev. J. Cude Rousseaux, chaplain at Camp Beauregard, both members of the Conference.

So far as we are able to judge, the increased number of lay delegates had no appreciable effect upon the attendance. Of course, however, conditions were abnormal this year.

We are deeply grateful to the many brethren who expressed their appreciation of the Advocate and their determination to push its circulation during the next Conference year. A goodly number of the preachers called at the Advocate office—we appreciate their kindness in so doing.

The members of the Conference evidently had their minds fully made up on the question of laity rights. A rising vote was taken and there was no trace of a disposition to dodge the issue. The result—95 for, 12 against—was just about what it was expected to be in this Conference. After the result was announced, Dr. Sam Steel facetiously asked, "Now, what has become of my speech?" Dr. Steel brought a round of applause when he took his stand on the rostrum when the negative side of the question was put. What he believes in, he believes in—which is altogether right.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. F. C. Bell, of Brownfield, Miss., reports that his charge will pay all its assessments in full this year.

Rev. W. G. Henry, who served our Church at Brookhaven, Miss., as pastor this year, has been transferred to the North Alabama Conference and stationed at Huntsville.

We learn that Mrs. J. H. Downer, an announcement of whose death appears in an other column, passed away as the result of injuries sustained by her clothing's catching fire before an open grate. We extend our sympathy to her son, Rev. C. E. Downer, and all the bereaved ones.

We learn from the Holly Springs Reporter, of November 28, that Rev. E. R. Smoot, our pastor at Holly Springs, was called to Kentucky on Saturday of the previous week, on account of the death of his father. We deeply sympathize with Brother Smoot in this great sorrow that has come to him.

Rev. H. P. Lewis, Jr., of Madison Station, Miss., states that for the first time in his life he has been able to send checks to all Conference treasurers in full payment of all assessments on his charge, several weeks before Conference. Brother Lewis will report the proceedings of the Mississippi Conference for the Advocate. We guarantee that the reporting will be well done.

We have received the following note from Dr. T. B. Holloman, of Vicksburg, Miss.: "On last Sunday, October 17, we buried the mother of Brother H. P. Keown in the cemetery at Edwards, Miss., beside the remains of her husband, who was buried there some years ago." We extend sincere sympathy to the bereaved members of the family.

EDUCATIONAL ASSESSMENTS.

Dear Brother Carley: I have received checks for Educational assessments from: Aberdeen Station, Rev. J. T. Lewis, P. C.; Buena Vista Circuit, Rev. W. R. Williams, P. C.; Nettleton Circuit, Rev. A. S. Briscoe, P. C.; Eupora and Maben, Rev. H. M. Young, P. C.; Webb charge, Rev. O. L. Savage, P. C.

Sincerely,
E. NASH BROYLES, Treasurer.

A NOTE FROM BROTHER I. L. PEEBLES.

I have been in charge of East End Church, Meridian, Miss., 25 days. I have baptized 37 infants, taken 12 persons in to this church, made about 125 visits, and secured 8 subscriptions and one renewal to the Advocate. I. L. PEEBLES.

MANHOOD VS. GUNS.

To-day we place too much dependence upon material things. This is an age of the worship of money, steamboats and big guns. These are powerful things, we will acknowledge; but you must always add the rider, "in the hands of men." Otherwise they are dead, inert things. All the gold in the world is of no value until men can get hold of it and use it. And the finest steamboats and the biggest guns stand helpless, ready to rust and decay, if there are not found men to work them. Let those who will make all they can of material things; the essential thing, after all, in this world is manhood.

There have been some things happening on the "western front," as it is called, that ought to teach us some lessons. We in Canada have no reason to complain of the way in which the exploits of our soldiers are being spoken of. We are told that they have "done a great thing" in breaking the so-called "Hindenburg line." Those who have been looking over the conquered territory have stood amazed at the works of defence installed by the Germans. There were practically lines of fortresses of steel and concrete, with a small forest of barbed-wire entanglements in front of them full of cleverly concealed machine-gun nests. All that science and inventiveness, hard labor and diligence could do was done, and the Germans delighted to say that their line was "impregnable." Yet that impregnable line has been broken, and, it is our proud word to say, by our own Canadian troops. The question may be asked, as we endeavor to comprehend the great thing that has been accomplished—how was this great thing done? The answer may be parried. Material was brought against material, gun against gun. But above this comes the quick response—it was done by the army that had the most men and the better men. All the fine and clever and powerful resources of Germany will fail her if she has not men to man her guns and hold her lines. The last resort is "men, and better men," and that is where the Allies are winning. Hence we ought to be brought back to revalue our manhood.

It is just as true in our churches as elsewhere. We have gloried in our fine churches and flourishing institutions, but what are all these if they are not well manned? More men and better men should be our cry, that with these we may fill our churches and our colleges and send them out to overthrow the entrenched works of darkness in our world.

We hear a great deal of the triumphs of our workmen, the deeds of our munition workers, our shipbuilders and our farmers, and what they are accomplishing to-day. We hear of the successes of our financiers. We would not rob anyone of the meed of praise that is their due for doing their full duty at this time of crisis; but we should not forget the meed of praise that is due to the source from which we get this essential factor in the world's crisis—the home that produces them. Nor should we forget the Christian forces that train and inspire them for high moral and spiritual service. When we hear of people breaking up their homes and going into munition factories, and ministers belittling their calling and leaving the winning and shepherding of souls to enter shipyards and financial institutions, we cannot help but think that they need a new vision of the greatest work that is being done to-day—the creating and the inspiring of manhood. Those who are courageously doing their duties in their homes, and those in our churches, Sunday schools and Leagues who are giving time and attention, love, labor and prayers to the winning and fashioning of souls for God and Christian service are doing the most valuable work that is being done on earth to-day. Let us never forget the essential factor in our world to-day is manhood. And whatever will produce the best men and the most men is going to win.—E. Ryerson Young, in the Christian Guardian.

Isn't This Worth Thinking About?

Suppose five years ago you had $100.00 and have been saving it in some "secure" place, such as the dresser drawer? If you now wish to use it, you still have $100.00. No more—no less.

Had you placed that money in our bank you would now have $116.00 instead of just $100.00, for that's just the amount of interest your money would have earned, without the slightest worry or exertion on your part.

MRS. R. B. DOWNER PASSES AWAY.

Dear Brother Carley: Mrs. Jane Holbrook Downer, widow of the late R. B. Downer, of the Mississippi Conference, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. K. L. Barlow, Berneli, Miss., on November 25, 1918. She was buried by the side of her husband in the Cedar Lawn cemetery at Jackson, Miss., on November 26. I had charge of the funeral services, assisted by Dr. A. F. Watkins and Brother Chas. W. Crisler. She is survived by a twin sister, Mrs. A. E. Barnes, of Monticello, Miss., and four children, Mrs. K. L. Barlow, Mrs. Guss Cooley, R. E. Downer, and Chas. E. Downer, pastor of the Hattiesburg Circuit. She was seventy-nine years of age.

Brother R. B. Downer was one of our much loved superannuate preachers. I suppose an obituary will follow later. Yours fraternally,

W. H. LEWIS.

Jackson, Miss.

THE APPEAL OF CHRISTIANITY.

Christianity is no appeal to selfishness, but a call to self-surrender and self-dedication. It appeals to men only in so far as they "lose" themselves and lay aside all self-seeking. Nor is it, as some have contended, merely an individualistic religion, as if its mission were exhausted in the "saving" of individual souls. Its message is essentially social, and concerns the present order and present needs of the world. The salvation of a soul means something nobler and wider than mere deliverance from personal consequences of sin in a future state.—R. L. Ottley, D.D.

A Treat for the Skin
Freckles, tan, sunburn, pimples, eczema, all can be easily and delightfully vanished with the use of Palmer's Skin Success Ointment. Used for over 80 years. Rev. A. E. Ballard, D. D., President Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Association, Ocean Grove, N. J., writes: "Your Skin Success Ointment completely cured me of an irritative itching eczema and I cheerfully recommend it to all who may be similarly afflicted." It is not only delightfully antiseptic and cleansing, soothing and softening to the skin, but also immediately effective in bleaching the complexion and in vanishing blackheads, freckles and all skin eruptions. MERIDIAN LETTER.

Dear Brother Carley: I enclose check for $26.50, for subscriptions and renewals as per enclosed list. The Advocate has always been attractive to me for so long that when I read your inquiry the other day as to who is the oldest subscriber, I wondered for a moment if it were not I. But the Advocate is peculiarly attractive to me now under the nimble touch of one of the nine of '99. I am glad Millsaps has furnished us so good an Editor. I can not but think that such a teacher as Weber, being dead, yet speaketh, through these ancient columns under the hand of an esteemed pupil.

Conference is little more than a week away. It has been a good year. Who shall forget it? Unlike the Psalmist, three things did I ask of the Lord for this year: first, that the war might be won by the United States and our Allies; secondly, that national prohibition might become assured; and third, that Central's new church building might get well under way. The Lord has given all, and more, for some weeks ago, in addition, he gave our home a new, beautiful girl baby, whom we love very much. Now isn't that "a good year, Bishop," whether the collections are in full or not?

Our pastoral force in Meridian has recently been reduced by Brother E. C. Gunn's appointment to a chaplaincy. I take it that he is now on the sea. Brother Peebles is closing the year at East End. Rev. F. S. Onderdook, of San Antonio, Tex., spent last Sunday with us, speaking three times in the interest of the Centenary, making a fine impression.

Meridian is looking forward to entertaining the hosts forming the Baptist State Convention, which will be meeting here on November 26. It is a privilege to attend its sessions.

Since the First Presbyterian Church here has no pastor now, and we have no building, the two congregations have been holding a joint prayer meeting on Wednesday evenings, generally led by this pastor. They have been well attended.

Meridian is proud of its Y. M. C. A., the secretary of which is our Mr. J. B. Holland, superintendent of Fifth Street Sunday school. All old indebtedness has recently been paid, and the Association faces a great future.

We are expecting to meet the Editor and Brother Chalmers at McComb.

Cordially,
H. B. WATKINS.

MISSISSIPPI CLUB AT SCARRITT.

Scarritt Bible and Training School opened in September with a larger representation from Mississippi in the student body than from any other State. Therefore, Mrs. Vic Thompson Hoyle, "our hub" as the girls call her, organized the Mississippi Club. The officers of the Club are: President, Miss Sarah Brinkley; Secretary and Treasurer, Miss Cavie Clark.

The purpose of the Mississippi Club is to secure through our efforts the largest representation possible from Mississippi for Scarritt from year to year. At present we have the names of fifty-eight young women as prospective students to whom Scarritt literature will be sent; and we intend to keep in touch through personal letters with many of this number. The Club is also identified with the Student Volunteer Association of Mississippi. The work of this Club is due, for the most part, to the untiring efforts and inspiration of Mrs. Hoyle, who acted as Field Agent for Scarritt last summer in our State and in that capacity made possible this large representation from Mississippi.

As to the personnel of the Club, we have eight members: Cavie Clark, Mize, Miss., preparing to teach music in Brazil; Marzie Hall, Walnut Grove, Miss., preparing to teach Bible in some foreign field; Lillian Knobles, State Line, Miss., preparing to teach in a mountain school; Sarah Brinkley, Waynesboro, Miss., a senior, expecting to go to Africa; Mrs. Ida Terry, Crenshaw, Miss., preparing to do home work; Jean Callahan, from Japan, disputed property but we claim her since she was in school in Mississippi last year, preparing for evangelistic work in Japan; Otie Branstetter, Jackson, Miss., preparing for home work; and Mrs. Vic Thompson Hoyle, Tupelo, Miss., organizer and director of the Club.

If we can learn how to control our thoughts by trying to reflect God's thoughts, then our whole life will become a prayer, and by degrees the same mind will be in us that was also in Christ Jesus.—Selected.

THE MEMPHIS HOSPITAL

YES, the Memphis, Mississippi, North Mississippi and North Arkansas Conferences own and are operating a well equipped hospital in Memphis known as the Methodist Hospital, Lucy Brinkley Annex, with fifty beds devoted exclusively to surgical and maternity cases for women and children. Special terms will be made to the wife or child of a Methodist preacher.

Whatever delays there may have been or may be in the beginning and completion of the new hospital building have been and will be due to the exigencies of the war and our banking facilities and not to the ownership of the Lucy Brinkley Annex. We call upon everyone to send in all past due subscriptions and to talk and work and pray for new ones. We need all the help possible.

Biliousness

WHEN you have a bilious attack your liver fails to perform its functions. You become constipated. The food you eat ferments in your stomach instead of digesting. This inflames the stomach and causes nausea, vomiting and a terrible headache. Take Chamberlain's Tablets. They will tone up your liver, clean out your stomach and you will soon be as well as ever. There is nothing better.

PLEASANT ASSOCIATIONS ON THE WASHINGTON CIRCUIT.

It is a decided pleasure to serve the Washington Circuit. I suppose it is true of all the others, but since I have had the privilege of serving none of them, I cannot say. I have been here for three years and should like to bear testimony to the fact. For one thing, the people of this section are kind and hospitable to a degree that I have seldom seen equalled and never excelled. Tney have been anxious to help their pastor, and a great many of them have been exceptionally fine church workers. The members of other denominations have been always kind and helpful, and their ministers have aided in every way they could. I believe that I would be safe in saying that we have had more sermons on the circuit by ministers other than the pastor and presiding eider during the iast three years than during any other ten of its history. Maybe not, but I think so.

But I have come to think that the finest thing that I have found has been association with those men and women in the Church who have passed the meridian of iife, but whose godiy lives and genuine interest in the Church make them a benediction to the pastor. The younger members are just as fine, but their Christian experience has not ripened into its fuli development. God has been kind to the people of this section and many of them have passed the four score mark, and some the four score and ten. With their mental faculties undimmed, their faith in God and hope for the future grow brighter as the days go by. For their faithful and yet modest service they deserve that the Church at iarge shall know of their faithfulness.

At the head of the list are Mrs. Mary E. Norman and Brother William J. Haziip, both members of the Washington Church and both above ninety. The latter recails hearing Dr. John G. Jones preach at Washington when he was pastor here in 1834-35. He recalls many incidents toid him of Lorenzo Dow. Mrs. Norman was a student once in Elizabeth Academy, only one other living so far as I know. She is no doubt the oldest member of the Methodist Church in Southwest Mississippi. Another honored member of the Washington Church is Miss Rebecca Fletcher, who lives on Coie's Creek, in Jefferson County, too far away to come to church but ever mindfui of her pastor and the needs of the Kingdom. John W. Latham and Mrs. Adaline R. Lazarus have been faithful members of the Pine Grove and Linwood churches for many years, and richly merit the blessings of a kind Providence in their deciining years. Brother E. F. Cobb and his wife have made their home the pastor's home and are old-time Methodists whose lives are in accord with the best teaching of their faith, which is aiso true of William J. Thorn and his wife, of Kingston. Their home simply radiates hospitality, and many a tired pastor has found there much needed rest. Mrs. Martha J. Farrar has been an active member of the Kingston church since 1855, and has lost none of her indomitable will or devotion to her church yet. She aiso was a student at Elizabeth Academy. Two ladies there are who have linked their lives with the itinerant ministry, Mrs. Kate Flowers and Mrs. Ciara B. Drake. They know the joys and sorrows of the ministry and it is a priviiege especially for a young minister to have the privilege of being in their homes. The iatter is burdened with grief over the loss of her youngest son, Lambuth Drake, who died at Camp Pike in October. What shall I say of John D. Ireland and Mrs. Francis Shepard, the iatter a member of our church at Cannonsburg? Simply this, that God, humanity, and the Methodist Church have never cailed in vain for their time, their talents, and their means. More cannot be said.

What memories these names must call up with many members of the Mississippi Conference! The transforming power of lives iike these upon the community in which they live cannot be estimated. Personally, I find the best answer to the opponent of Christianity in the lives of the faithful servants of the Cross, who are making their way toward the sunset of life their faces aglow with the eternai sun light of God's love and power. As the night cometh, their way is lighted by the Star of Bethiehem. Weil may they say,

"Swift to its ciose ebbs out iife's little day;
Its joy grows dim, its glories pass away;
Change and decay in all around I see
O Thou that changest not, abide with me.
Abide with me, fast fails the eventide
The shadows deepen; Lord, with me abide.
When o'her helpers fail and comforts flee
Help of the helpless, O abide with me."

J. B. CAIN.

Whoever is confident and boastful because he has great skill, cleverness, power, favor, friendship, and honor, he has a god, but not the one true God. Here thou mayest see how confident, secure, and proud men feel when they have these things, and how timid and despairingiy if they have them not, or if they lose them. Therefore I say that to have a God means to have something in which the heart puts all its trust. Hence thou canst easily understand what and how much the first commandment demands—namely, the whole heart of man and perfect confidence in God aione, and in no one eise.—Martin Luther.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF.

Girls! Try it! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a small bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice heavy healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.—Adv.

RHEUMATISM AND INDIGESTION.

Practically all physicians and medical writers are agreed that there is a ciose relationship between Indigestion and Rheumatism. This view is substantiated by the fact that Shivar Spring Water, which is probably the best American mineral water for Dyspepsia and indigestion, relieves Rheumatism and the Rheumatoid diseases, such as Gout, Sciatica, Neuralgia and Nervous Headache. All of these diseases are probably related and all are probably due in whole or in part to imperfect digestion or to imperfect assimiiation of food. Physicians who have studied this water and who have observed its effects in tbeir practice believe that it relieves these maladies by rendering the digestion complete and perfect and thereby preventing the formation of those poisons which inflame the joints and irritate the nerves, and aiso by eliminating, through the kidneys, such poisons as have already been formed.

The following letters are interesting in this connection:

Dr. Crosby, a South Carolina physician, writes: "I have tested your Spring water in several cases of Rheumatism, Chronic Indigestion, Kidney and Bladder troubles and in Nervous and Sick headaches and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time will give permanent relief. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the Liver and Kidneys and Bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter."

Dr. Avant of Savannah writes: "I suffered for years with a most aggravating form of stomach disorder, and consulted a number of our best local physicians, went to Baltimore and consulted specialists there and still I was not benefited. I had about despaired of living when I began using Shivar Spring Water, and in a short time I was entirely relieved."

Mr. Rhodes of Virginia writes: "Please send me ten gallons of Shivar Spring Water quickly. I want it for Rheumatism. I know of several who were relieved of Rheumatism with this water."

Editor Cunningham writes: "The water has done me more good than any medicine. I have ever taken for Rheumatism. Am entirely free from pain."

Mr. McClam of South Carolina writes: "My wife has been a sufferer from Rheumatism and after drinking twenty gallons of your Mineral Water was entirely relieved of the horrible disease."

Mr. Carter of Virginia writes: "Mrs. Carter has had enlarged joints on her hands, caused by Rheumatism. Shivar Spring Water removed every trace of the enlargement. The water is simply excellent."

I have personally derived great benefit from the use of the Shivar Mineral Water and have knowledge of its beneficial effects in a great number and variety of cases."—Rev. A. McA. Pittman.

LAYMEN, READ AND ACT.

Dear Mr Editor: So far as Jackson's preachers are concerned, every one of them went over the top in all drives. I doubt if any one did more effective work than they did. But what i wanted to say and say it loud enough for the laymen of both of our Mississippi Conferences to hear, was that every preacher whose salary is under $2500 should be given a 25 per cent increase. Living expenses have increased 50 to 150 per cent. Let our leading men speak by resolution, calling attention to official boards. They can be up-to-date when paid up-to-date salaries. W. FRED LONG.

FIRST AID TO DIGESTION

In cases of indigestion or dyspepsia, the contents of the stomach, for lack of a proper supply of digestive juices, first ferment, forming gases, and later decompose. This process is attended with more or less discomfort and reacts to the injury of all the digestive organs, with the result of poisoning the entire system, a condition known as auto-intoxication. Three prime considerations arise in treatment of such conditions:

First, the process of decomposition must be arrested, by neutralizing the acid condition of the stomach, thus giving prompt relief from pain.

Second, the salivary glands and other glands which produce the various digestive juices must be stimulated into active secretion in order that the food may be properly digested.

Third, the stomach nerves must be toned up into a healthy state and inflammatory conditions of the membranous lining allayed.

Mi-o-na tablets do this work with remarkable efficiency. So good are they for quick relief and for permanent restoration that they are sold only under guarantee of satisfactory results to the user. Your druggists charges 60c per package; but is under instructions to refund to any customer who is not amply satisfied. If your druggist can not supply Mi-o-na, write direct to the manufacturers, Booth's Hyomei Company, Ithaca, N. Y.

EAT LESS AND BE THANKFUL.

During Thanksgiving week, thousands of groceries displayed a poster furnished by the United States Food Administration with the legend:

"Eat less and be thankful that we have to share with those who fight for freedom."

A strange text for food purveyors—"Eat less!"

A strange text for a lavish people—"Eat less and be thankful!"

A true text for a people engaged in the greatest struggle for liberty since the coming of the Kingdom was first proclaimed; a true text for a people who believe fundamentally in the kinship of all the Father's children.

A great task is set before us, to ship this year 17½ million tons of food. We get some measure of the magnitude of this task as we remember with what strain we shipped last year some 11¾ million tons, when we realize that to keep this pledge we are to ship one-half more from stocks virtually no larger.

We owe this to the Allies as a debt of good faith. Upon our pledge, they based their military program, throwing into the struggle their last ounce of strength, stripping their shipping from every other port in reliance on our resources.

We owe it to them as a debt of gratitude. Before the United States army gathered in strength, France, England, Italy, Belgium, standing in the last ditch, held back the common enemy. With the help of our army, the Allies in the last one hundred glorious days won the victory for freedom. We owe them the security of our liberties, the safety of our institutions, we owe them life. Saving and sharing food is one way in which we can express our thankfulness.

This pledge to send 17½ million tons is the minimum; it goes but little beyond the military program. It scarcely reaches the millions behind the war barriers, victims of Germany and the war, to whom help must come from our stores as they are liberated by the advancing armies. Our debt is 17½ million tons; our thank offering will be all we can save, by self-denial and conscience.

This is the underlying significance of the new Home Card of the Food Administration, issued the first week in December.

Its observance is to be fulfilled throughout the year in the spirit of the Pilgrim Fathers, thankful for freedom and for being kept alive; in the spirit of the Christmas season which invites all to share with one another who sit at the common table.—U. S. Food Administration.

FROM GREENLAND'S ICY MOUNTAINS.

Bishop Heber, whose life we have already briefly sketched in this series, is the author of the great missionary hymn named above. He wrote also that other treasure of the Church, Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God Almighty, for which we give him our sincere gratitude; but it is probable that he is better known by this missionary hymn. Indeed, one can seldom name his name without remembering, subconsciously or otherwise, From Greenland's Icy Mountains. It is a hymn that belongs to every creed and every country. Most of all it belongs to those whose hearts beat strongly for the extension of the Gospel into heathen lands—as did the heart of the great missionary Bishop, the creator of the poem.

The hymn is exactly a hundred years old. The story of how it came to be written has often been told, but it will bear repetition.

Heber was in the ministry at the time of its composition, but he had not yet been raised to the bishopric. One Saturday afternoon in the year 1818, while he was visiting at the home of his wife's father, the Rev. Dr. Shipley, of Wrexham, a dozen friends were gathered with him in the little rectory parlor. It chanced—if we may, for the sake of convenience, use the expression—that Dr. Shipley planned to preach the next day on the subject of missions. He turned suddenly to his son-in-law with the request for a suitable hymn for the occasion.

"This," comments a biography of Heber's, "was scant notice to give a man for the achievement of the distinguishing work of his life * * * and in the few moments that followed Reginald Heber builded better than he knew."

Withdrawing to a corner of the room he wrote the first three verses of his hymn. Then he read them to his companion. Dr. Shipley was eminently satisfied with the result of his proposition, but Heber hesitated; his poet's ear missed something. Retiring again to the corner he remained busy for awhile; finally he returned to the company with what a critic has called the glorious bugle blast of the fourth verse.

The poem was printed that evening and sung by the Wrexham congregation the following morning. Thus was given to us the great hymn that for more than a hundred years has fired the souls of men with zeal for the spread of God's Kingdom on earth.—Southern Churchman.

The Inward Effects of humors are worse than the outward. They endanger the whole system. Hood's Sarsaparilla eradicates all humors, cures all their inward and outward effects. It is the great alterative and tonic, whose merit has been everywhere established.—Adv.

Faith in Jesus Christ never can be the outcome of a logical process. Faith in Him has something more vital, more personal about it—it is to give up a man's self to what he believes to be the most godlike and the most divine.—Alexander A. C. Mann.

Get the Habit of Drinking Hot Water Before Breakfast

Says we can't look or feel right with the system full of poisons.

Millions of folks bathe internally now instead of loading their system with drugs. "What's an inside bath?" you say. Well, it is guaranteed to perform miracles if you could believe these hot water enthusiasts.

There are vast numbers of men and women who, immediately upon arising in the morning, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is a very excellent health measure. It is intended to flush the stomach, liver, kidneys and the thirty feet of intestines of the previous day's waste, sour bile and indigestible material left over in the body which if not eliminated every day, become food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels, the quick result is poisons and toxins which are then absorbed into the blood causing headache, bilious attacks, foul breath, bad taste, colds, stomach trouble, kidney misery, sleeplessness, impure blood and all sorts of ailments.

People who feel good one day and badly the next, but who simply can not get feeling right are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to make anyone a real crank on the subject of internal sanitation.—Adv.

Y. M. C. A's LIGHT.

Then there's the light in the Y. M. C. A. hut, and from General Pershing down to the lowest private the army knows that this is the warmest, friendliest, most homelike, most welcome light that shines out through the darkness of war. It not only shines literally by night, but it shines by day. I have seen some huts back of the front lines lighted by the most brilliant elcctricity. Some of it is obtained from local power-plants, and some of it is made by the Y. M. C. A. Then I have seen some huts up near the lines that were lighted by old-fashioned oil lamps. Then I have been in Y. M. C. A. dugouts and cellars and holes in the ground, up so close to the German lines that they were shelled every day, and these have been lighted by tallow candles stuck in a bottle or in their own melted grease. I have seen huts back of the lines away from danger of air-raids that could have their windows wide open, and I have seen the lights pouring in a flood out of these windows, a constant invitation to thousands of American boys. And again I have seen our huts in places so near the lines that the secretaries had not only to use candles but to screen their windows with double layer of black cloth, so that not a single ray of that tiny candle might throw its beams to the watching German on the hill beyond. I never knew before what Shakespeare meant when he said: "How far a tiny candle throws its beams." But whether it has been in the more protected huts back of the lines or in the dangerous huts close to the lines, the lights in the huts are usually the only lights available for the boys, and to these lights they flock every night. It is a Rembrandt picture that they make in the dim light of the candles sitting around the tables writing letters by candlelight. It is their one warm, bright spot, for a great stove nearly always blazes away in the Y. M C. A. hut, and it is the only warmth the lad knows. Few of the billets or tents in France boast of a stove.

Two things I shall never forget. One was the sight of a Y. M. C. A. hut that I saw in a town far back of the trenches. It was in the town where General Pershing's headquarters are located. On the very tip of the hill above me was the hut. Its every window was a blaze of light. It was the one dominating, scintillating building of the town, a big double hut. When I climbed the hill to this hut I found it crowded to its limits with men from everywhere. The rest of the town was dark and there was little life, but here was the pulse of social life and comradeship, and here was the one blaze and glory of light.

The other sight that I shall not forget was up within a few hundred yards of the German lines. It was night. We were returning from our furtherest hut "down the line." We met a crowd of American soldiers tramping through the snow and mud and cold. They were shivering even as they walked. We stopped the machine and gave them a lift. I asked one of the lads where he was going. He said: "Down to the hut in ——." I said: "Where is your camp?" He replied: "Up at ——." I said: "Why, boy, that's four miles away from the hut." "We don't care we walk it every night. It's the only warm place in reach and the only place where we can be where there are lights at night and where we can get to see the fellows and write a letter. We stay there for an hour or two and tramp back through this —— (censored) mud to our billets."

And of all the lights o' war one must know that the lights of the Y. M. C. A. huts cast their beams not only into the hearts of these lads but across the world, and sometimes I think across the eternities, for in these huts innumerable lads are seeing the light that never was on land or sea, and are finding the light that lights the way Home. And these are the lights o' war. —W. L. Stidger, in "Soldier Silhouettes on Our Front," Scribner, N. Y., 1918.

A LETTER FROM BROTHER BABB.

Dear Advocate: I am nearing the time of my departure from this work (Crawford). I am completing my second term of four years, six having intervened between the terms. These people have endeared themselves to me by many acts of kindness, true loyalty to the Church, true devotion to an afflicted wife to the end, and by the sacred mementoes which followed to her grave. We can never forget them.

Notwithstanding the continuous calls made upon us for help to meet the demands of the war, we have gone over the top in every call, and will do the same for the Church.

Our charge consists of two churches, both in fine condition. Our country church is a gem, and in as fine community as there is in the State. Our church at this place, which was rebuilt two years ago in consequence of having been burned, is superior to the former in many respects, all paid for and insured. My presiding elder, W. L. Duren, though in his first year as such, is up-to-date in all that it takes to make success, and I hope he will be continued at least until his four years are out.

To me, this year has been one of much sorrow and joy commingled. The wife who had traveled with me many thousands of miles through all kinds of weather, sharing with me the joys and privations that naturally come to the itinerant life, went to the good world early in the year. I sorrow because she was so much to me in all the varying paths of life; but do rejoice in her purity of conduct, her illustrious fidelity to God and His Church, and to her husband, down to the last day of this life, and that she has gone home to God. I am so lonely, and yet I am not alone. I love God and His Church and want to do service in His Church to the end.

Brother Carley, I don't know you except through the Advocate and Brother Duren; both commend you, and may success attend your every effort to give us a good paper. Fraternally,

D. W. BABB.

Crawford, Miss., Nov. 18.

"MORE EGGS" PAID THE PASTOR.

"I've got more eggs than I ever did in my life, paid my debts, clothed the children in new dresses, and I paid the pastor his dues. I have money to spare now. "More Eggs" is the remedy for me. I sold 42½ dozen eggs last week, set four dozen, ate some and I have 1½ dozen left." Mrs. Lena McBroom, Woodbury, Tenn.

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, discovered the wonderful tonic "More Eggs" that revitalizes the flock and makes the hens work all the time. This remarkable egg producer means big poultry profits for you. Don't delay. Send a dollar to-day to E. J. Reefer, 3259 Reefer Bld., Kansas City Mo., for a package of "More Eggs." Or better yet, send him $2.25, and he will send you three packages of "More Eggs" tonic prepaid. This is a season's full supply. A Million Dollar Bank guarantees that if you are not absolutely satisfied your money will be returned on request without question. So send either a dollar, or $2.25 to-day for this wonderful egg producer. Or write Mr. Reefer for his FREE Poultry Book that tells the experience of a man who is helping a great many people make money with their poultry, and who, himself, has a made a fortune out of the poultry business.—Adv.

CONCERNING THE SICK CHURCH.

Dear Brother ———: I received your welcome letter a few days ago. I appreciate your anxiety over your sick patient. I would have written sooner had I not also been playing nurse. Sometimes my patient shows hopeful signs of at least a partial recovery, and then, alas! a relapse comes and I must renew my vigil and apply a stronger stimulant. I am thinking strongly of turning my case over to another physician; peradventure he may know the remedy for chronic spiritual inertia. What grieves me, I saw the symptoms well advanced when I came here, and I have not been able to arrest their steady growth.

The sad thing is, the nearer death a patient gets, the less he realizes his needs. When he is ill-natured and disobedient, refusing to take the prescribed remedy in defiance of repeated entreaties and warnings, I can't believe the physician is wholly to blame should a funeral be necessary.

I may be an ecclesiastical nurse, physician and surgeon, but I am not an undertaker and embalmer. When my patient deliberately lies down and dies when adequate nourishment and medicine have been urged upon him without money and price, I feel like saying, "Sleep on and take your rest; arise let us go hence."

A proper amount of jesting is not out of place, but, Brother preacher, this dead church question is a heart-breaking subject to a consecrated shepherd. I think I have honestly asked the good Lord to show me where I have failed to warn my flock. God knows I want to be true to the trust imposed on me by my Church in my ministerial and secular life before my people. One thing I can't understand: I hear frequently, "we love our preacher and we believe he is a true Christian." Why, then, is it that we cannot bring them into the Church and into vital fellowship with God? Maybe we have failed at the point Brother Powell wrote about in this week's Advocate. I am aware in my case there is room for improvement, and I intend to study harder, pray more and preach better next year, should I be returned here or go elsewhere.

I realize every phase of life, Church included, is in a demoralized condition during this crisis through which we are passing. We must try the harder to hold the old ship off the breakers and pray we may soon land safely in the harbor of peace and renewed consecration. Yours fraternally,

FOOT TROUBLES.
No Need of Them, Says Brooklyn Man, Who Has Evidently Solved a Big Problem.

According to the testimony of hundreds of people living in the southland and elsewhere, E. P. Simon of 1589 Broadway, Brooklyn, N. Y., has successfully developed a system of shoe building having for its prime object the conquering of foot and shoe troubles. It appears that Mr. Simon's establishment has become national headquarters for people, whose feet require his remarkable comfort shoe, known as the EzWear, but obtainable only of the inventor. Mr. Simon's new catalogue shows several hundred shoes that combine comfort with style at amazingly low prices and is now ready for free distribution.—Adv.

NESHOBA CIRCUIT.

Dear Brother Carley: I am just closing up my third year on the Neshoba circuit. In many respects we have had a prosperous year. We have had a number of people who claimed salvation, and many expressed a determination to be more efficient members of the Church. We have been worshiping in our new church at Northbend for some time; however, it is not yet complete; we hope to get help from the Church Extension Board, so we can complete it at once. When complete it will be an honor to the Methodist Church, and especially to Northbend. It will cost $2000.

We had good revivals at almost all of the churches on the charge. I was assisted at Mar's Hill and Northbend by M. L. White; at Sandtown and Cook's Chapel by J. T. Abney, and at Hester's Chapel by M. J. Miller, Sr. I held my meeting at Coy.

Fifty-four persons have been added to the Church during the year. Brother W. L. Linfield held our fourth quarterly conference yesterday; despite the cold, cloudy, damp day, we had a delightful conference. We are always glad to have Brother Linfield with us; I don't think there is a person on the charge who does not esteem Brother Linfield as highly as any presiding elder they ever had.

Well, the Annual Conference is almost here, and we preachers should be very prayerful, and ask our divine Father to guide our dear Bishop and his cabinet in their great task in placing us preachers—not pray that our selfish motives may be gratified, but that we may be sent where we can best glorify God. S. E. FLURRY.

Philadelphia, Miss., Nov. 23, 1918.

RESOLUTIONS OF APPRECIATION.

The following preamble and resolutions were presented by J. M. Bush and G. E. Ellis at the fourth quarterly conference held at Utica, Miss., on November 25, and were adopted by the conference:

Whereas, the Rev. B. W. Lewis has served our charge for the legal limit of four years; and whereas he has, during this period rendered faithful and acceptable service to the Church, both as pastor and preacher; and whereas he has commanded the respect of the community as a citizen as well as a minister; and whereas his admirable family have been helpers in his work; therefore, be it resolved:

First—That we greatly appreciate his faithful and effective labors among us, and shall always cherish a warm, brotherly affection for him.

Second—That in his going from us, both he and his family will be greatly missed by the church and community.

Third—That we can most cheerfully commend him to whatever pastoral charge he may in the wisdom of the Conference be assigned, both as a Christian gentleman and a worthy minister of the Gospel.

Fourth—That the above resolutions be spread upon our minutes and a copy be furnished to Brother Lewis, and another to the presiding elder and another to the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication.

Signed: John M. Bush, G. E. Ellis.

"CASCARETS" WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP.

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—Take Cascarets To-night.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.—Adv.

THE MAKING OF A FAMOUS MEDICINE

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Is Prepared For Woman's Use.

A visit to the laboratory where this successful remedy is made impresses even the casual looker-on with the reliability, accuracy, skill and cleanliness which attends the making of this great medicine for woman's ills.

Over 350,000 pounds of various herbs are used anually and all have to be gathered at the season of the year when their natural juices and medicinal substances are at their best.

The most successful solvents are used to extract the medicinal properties from these herbs.

Every utensil and tank that comes in contact with the medicine is sterilized and as a final precaution in cleanliness the medicine is pasteurized and sealed in sterile bottles.

It is the wonderful combination of roots and herbs, together with the skill and care used in its preparation which has made this famous medicine so successful in the treatment of female ills.

The letters from women who have been restored to health by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which we are continually publishing attest to its virtue.

American women are right behind the U. S. troops in the trenches. Women nurses are now installed in hospitals 8 miles in the rear of the actual fighting line.

Many of our American women are unable to take up the duties of nursing at the front, but they should know how to take care of their own at home, and for this purpose no better book was ever printed than the Medical Adviser—a book containing 1,008 pages, and bound in cloth, with chapters on First Aid, Bandaging and care of Fractures, Taking care of the Sick, Physiology, Hygiene, Sex Problems, Mother and Babe, which can be had at most drug stores, or send 50 cents to the publishers, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y.

The women at home, who are worn out, who are nervous or dizzy at times, should take that reliable, temperance, herbal tonic, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Tennessee City, Tenn.—"I was in very bad health for over 20 years. I had woman's trouble. At first I did not suffer pain but was low-spirited, had a worn-out feeling, which no amount of rest would help, and felt that something dreadful was going to happen. I had cold feet and hands and my heart bothered me. Life was a burden. I had three doctors; they did me some good while I was taking their medicines but when I was not taking medicine I felt just the same as before, so I tried Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and also the Golden Medical Discovery and am thankful to say these remedies cured me. I have no symptoms of my old trouble."

CLEANLINESS NEXT TO GODLINESS.

Dear Advocate: Having read the splendid article written by Rev. P. H. Fontaine, so ably seconded by Rev. P. O. Lowrey, discussing "the upkeep of the parsonage property," your humble servant is constrained to make a few remarks.

I have had the honor of living in a Methodist parsonage nearly a quarter of a century and I know whereof I speak. A vast majority of preachers' wives' homes are not as commodious and as attractively furnished as the stewards' wives' homes. This to some extent is disheartening; but it is my honest opinion, until a good many preachers' wives turn over a new leaf and take better care of the parsonage furnishings and accessories, the conditions will remain as they are.

Accumulated fly specks, dust, dirt and disorder will show up plate glass windows and mahogany furniture to a bad advantage. The plainest of furniture can be made attractive by being tastefully arranged, and relieved by a curtain here and a bit of fancy-work there, will add greatly to the cozy and comfortable aspect of the plainest parsonage home.

As Brother Lowrey said, "the preacher's homes as well as their families should be models for their parishioners," but certainly not models of careless disorder from the front hall to the back porch. When chaotic confusion greets the eyes of a refined lady caller, she may be courteous enough to make no remarks but she will mentally decide, "It is not worth while to make any improvements this year."

As little as a great many realize it, it is nevertheless true, the women and girls of the charge expect the preacher's wife to be a living example of the 'ideal woman.' To some extent this is unjust, for we are just plain human beings; however, my observation leads me to believe the shortcomings of the preacher's wife are not dealt with as charitably as her sister occupying a less prominent place.

We believe in "laity rights" and they will come when we are ready for them. Sisters of the parsonage, while we are waiting let us improve our undisputed "standing rights" to make our home as attractive as any in the community.

I am glad this subject is being agitated, for, "behold, the Conference cometh" and a great many have grave apprehensions as to what is in store for us as we "fold our tent." I wish to assure my successor she will find the windows polished, the floors and kitchen tables scrubbed, the pantry free from decayed vegetables and the parsonage linen neatly laundered and folded away.

In conclusion, I move the week before Conference be hereafter set aside and known as "CLEAN UP WEEK" for the Louisiana Methodist preacher's wife. DO I HEAR A SECOND?

Mrs. A. J. COBURN.

EUPORA AND MABEN.

Dear Brother Carley: This has been a pleasant year with us at Eupora and Maben. During the year we have had splendid congregations and two splendid Sunday schools, which have wrought well.

In our protracted services much good was done, and the remembrance of them gives us joy. This is true because a major part of those received were Sunday school children, who are ever faithful in their place and gaining in love and fidelity to the Church and love to God.

All finances committed to our care are being met in full: pastor and presiding elder, Conference claimants, war emergency fund—all were met without complaint. The people here on this charge have been good to their pastor and family in ways greatly appreciated—more because they have remembered us in such substantial ways and with seeming pleasure. We have had a good year.

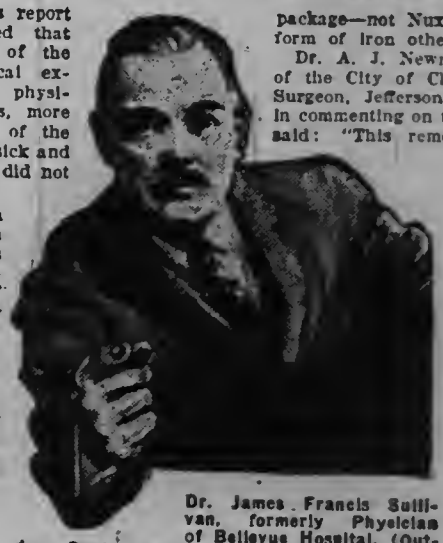
One in Four of Our Men Called for Draft Examination Was Physically Deficient



CITY PHYSICIAN STRONGLY ADVISES ALL PERSONS TO HAVE BLOOD EXAMINATIONS MADE BY FAMILY DOCTOR. SAYS THOUSANDS SUFFER FROM IRON DEFICIENCY

And think its "overwork," "too much worry," "a case of nerves," or some other trouble. Ordinary Nuxated Iron will increase the strength and endurance of such folks in two weeks' time in many instances.

In General Crowder's report to Congress, he stated that twenty-nine per cent. of the men called for physical examination were found physically deficient: that is, more than one out of four of the flower of our land was sick and many of them perhaps did not know it.

In commenting on this serious condition of affairs, Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital, New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, said: "The probability is that many of these cases were due solely to lack of sufficient iron in the red blood corpuscles. When the iron goes from the blood, you can have most any kind of symptoms varying from a weak, nervous, run-down state, to those of most serious maladies; the volume of blood often increases, thereby imposing an extra heavy burden on the heart. Contrary to general opinion, lack of iron in the blood does not necessarily mean you do not have enough blood, but it means your blood is not of the right kind."

If you feel tired in the morning; restless at night; if you suffer from weakness or lack of vitality; go to your family doctor and have him take a specimen of your blood and examine it, and if it shows iron deficiency, get him to give you a prescription for organic iron—Nuxated Iron. Do this so as to be sure that you do not get hold of some of the numerous forms of metallic iron preparations on the market, which may do you far more harm than good. Or if you do not want to go to this trouble, purchase an original package of Nuxated Iron and see for yourself that the words Nuxated Iron appear on the package—not Nux and Iron nor any other form of Iron other than Nuxated Iron.

Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital, (Outdoor Dept.) New York and the Westchester County Hospital.

DR. SULLIVAN SAYS

One-fourth of the people are sick—not up to the normal health mark as shown by General Crowder's reports to Congress on the draft examination. I strongly advise everyone who feels weak, nervous or rundown at times, to go to their family physician and have a blood examination made. Thousands suffer from iron deficiency and do not know it. In my opinion there is nothing like organic iron—Nuxated Iron—to help give increased strength and energy to the weak, run-down and aged.

Dr. A. J. Newman, late Police Surgeon of the City of Chicago and former House Surgeon, Jefferson Park Hospital, Chicago, in commenting on the value of Nuxated Iron, said: "This remedy has proven through my own tests of it to excel any remedy I have ever used for creating red blood, building up the nerves, strengthening the muscles and correcting digestive disorder. The manufacturers are to be congratulated in having given to the public a long felt want, a true tonic, supplying iron in an easily digested and assimilated form. A true health builder in every sense of the word."

Dr. Schuyler Jaques, formerly Visiting Surgeon of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, New York City, said: "I have never before given out any medical information or advice for publication, as I ordinarily do not believe in it. But in the case of Nuxated Iron I feel I would be amiss in my duty not to mention it. I have taken it myself and I given it to my patients with most surprising and satisfactory results. And those who wish quickly to increase their strength, power and endurance will find it a most remarkable and wonderfully effective remedy."

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron which has been used by Dr. Sullivan and others with such surprising results, and which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated and does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

Mi-o-na

"Digestion's best friend"

WITH many hearty eaters the tendency is toward over-indulgence. Over-eating frequently produces uncomfortable after effects and results in disagreeable attacks of indigestion or dyspepsia. The most prompt and pleasant way to avoid serious trouble is by the use of Mi-o-na tablets. Mi-o-na brings instant relief and rectifies digestive troubles. It is pleasant, effective, convenient and inexpensive. If it relieves you it costs you 60c a box; if not, your druggist will refund your money. Sold in tablets, only under such a guarantee. Ask your druggist.

Sunday School

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

I have had two of the most successful charge Institutes of the year on the Homewood charge and the Trenton charge.

The day we met on the Homewood charge was cold and cloudy, but every church on the charge was represented except High Hill. We had a most interesting session. The Homewood Sunday school graded 85 per cent, which is very high. They pledged to hold the Workers' Council once a month, and to put in the Home Department,which will give them 100 per cent. Gasque Chapel graded pretty near. They also promised to hold the Workers' Council, as did Lovitt Schoolhouse and Carr's church. Lovitt Schoolhouse also promised to take an offering for Children's Day.

The Training classes at Homewood and Gasque Chapel have put life and progress into those schools—20 men and two ladies were present to take part in the work. The fifth quarterly conference was held that afternoon and the work was paid out.

Monday the charge Institute was held at Trenton. Five schools were represented by their superintendents —I think it great—Trenton, Burns, Polkville, New Hope, and Pine Grove. 4 Cradle Rolls, 4 Workers' Councils, 1 Home Department, and 4 Individual Teacher-training pupils were the results of this meeting.

Trenton and Burns graded about 65 per cent, which is a good grade. The fifth quarterly conference of this charge reported things in good shape and indications are that their report will be in full.

I think the Teacher-training work as demonstrated by Brother White should cause many to think seriously about the matter. He will be glad to help all who will let him. Write to him in regard to the matter.

Pray for me and the work.

JOHN C. CHAMBERS.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and 1-4 ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.—Adv.

160 Hens—1500 Eggs

Mrs. H. M. Patton, Waverly, Mo., writes: "I fed two boxes of 'More Eggs' to my hens and broke the egg record. I got 1,500 eggs from 160 hens in exactly 21 days." You can do as well. In fact, any poultry raiser can easily double his profits by doubling the egg production of his hens. A scientific tonic has been discovered that revitalizes the flock and makes hens work all the time. The tonic is called "More Eggs." Give your hens a few cents' worth of "More Eggs," and you will be amazed and delighted with results. A dollar's worth of "More Eggs" will double this year's production of eggs, so if you wish to try this great profit maker write E. J. Reefer, poultry man, 6259 Reefer Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., who will send you a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic for $1.00 (prepaid). So confident is Mr. Reefer of the results that a million dollar bank guarantees if you are not absolutely satisfied, your dollar will be returned on request and the "More Eggs" costs you nothing. Send a dollar today or ask Mr. Reefer for his free poultry book that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

GOOD NEWS.

Many of the nervous, pale and debilitated are being helped to recover health and strength. This is good news.

They are taking Peptiron, which combines iron in the most agreeable, effective and up-to-date form, over-coming all the objectionable features of older and other preparations of iron. It comes in chocolate-coated pills—does not injure the teeth, does not leave an inky or metallic flavor in the mouth, and does not cause constipation.

Peptiron is a thoroughly scientific preparation, the ultimate result of careful study and research by one of the most successful of pharmaceutical chemists. It is a real, not a make-believe, iron tonic, especially beneficial in cases of pale, thin blood, weak, unstrung nerves, mental and physical exhaustion—makes the young more vigorous and the old less feeble. Peptiron is sold by all druggists.—Adv.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE

Reported by Rev. H. P. Lewis, Jr.

On Wednesday evening, December 3, the Mississippi Conference Historical Society held its meeting. Rev. T. B. Holloman, the chairman, presided. The main speaker for the evening was Rev. W. T. Griffin, who read a paper on "The Early Days of Methodism In and Around Summit and McComb." One event related was about the Pleasant Valley meeting heid in 1848, conducted by Rev. S. L. L. Scott, which lasted 28 days and resulted in tweive young men's being cailed to preach. Eleven of these saw service in the Mississippi Conference. Mention was also made of the Topisaw Camp Meetings which have given eighteen to the ministry.

Rev. Ira B. Robertson enlivened the evening by reiating his experiences in helping to estabiish Southern Methodism in McComb. Fuliy one-third of the members of the Conference were in attendance at this meeting.

This Historicai Society has gathered much vaiuable information for the Conference, and is having it preserved.

First Day.

The 105th session of the Conference opened promptiy at 9 a. m., Wednesday, December 4. Bishop Kiigo announced hymn 301, foiiowing the singing of which the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was served, the Bishop caliing to his assistance in serving it, Revs. C. W. Crisler, J. R. Jones, H. M. Eilis, H. A. Gatiin and F. B. Ormond. Whiie the Sacrament was being served, the congregation sang "There is a Fountain," "Nearer My God to Thee," and "There'il be no Sorrow There."

Following this, Dr. A. F. Watkins, the secretary of the last session, called the roli of the Conference, and 118 preachers answered to roli cali.

Dr. Watkins was elected secretary, this being the 18th consecutive session that he has been chosen to that position. He was first elected to that position at the Conference held in McComb in 1901, and has served with great efficiency. Upon nomination of Dr. Watkins, G. S. Harmon and H. B. Watkins were chosen assistant secretaries, and J. L. Neiii statisticai secretary, with J. V. Bennett, C. E. Downer, G. P. McKeown, B. L. Sutherland, W. A. Hays, O. S. Lewis and J. A. Moore as assistants.

The Mississippi Conference elected C. F. Emery, Raiiway Secretary for the quadrennium (in place of McAdoo, as the Bishop added).

Committees for the various causes were announced and J. C. Chambers was chosen official reporter by the Conference for the daiiy press.

After the introduction of some connectional and visiting brethren, the Bishop caiied question 22, and the presiding elders made their reports. Interest in these reports was intensified by the questions the Bishop asked the presiding elders, such as: "How long did you hoid the session of your district conference?" "Do you call people to the mourner's bench?" "Where do you preach best, in revivals or just cold-biood?" "Have you been in the parsonages and visited with the wives and chiidren of the preachers?" "How do our Methodist peopie die?" "Do you have conversions?" "What do you mean by conversion?"

Continuing question 22, the names of our superannuates were called. Of the twenty names caiied, oniy four answered. They were H. P. Lewis, ira B. Robertson, W. W. Simmons and E. H. Mounger. One, J. H. Evans, had "crossed the river" and now "rests under the shade of the trees."

The Bishop here introduced something new into our sessions by caiiing the names of ail the preachers by districts and passing their characters. The names of J. B. King and C. H. Herring were referred to the committee on Conference Relations for the superannuate relation.

O. G. Halliburton withdrew from the ministry of the Church, surrendering his credentials. H. K. McKee was located at his own request. The character of C. W. Hiilman was passed and he was discontinued.

Dr. R. S. Stout, General Secretary of the Church Extension Board of the Colored M. E. Church, was introduced, and made an appeal for his cause. Before adjournment, he reported that $136.53 had been given him.

After various announcements, the Conference adjourned for the day.

Wednesday, 3 p. m.

This was the hour set for the anniversary of the Sunday School Board. J. L. Deceii acted as chairman, and, after preliminaries, announced M. L. White, who spoke on "Teacher-Training in Rural Schoois." Brother White has had unusual success in this line of work, and reported as a result of his interest and activities that the Sunday school at Homewood had increased in enroliment from 30 to 150, and in attendance from about 10 to 100.

He said that he had received an average salary for 29 years, of $550, and with it had lived and heiped to educate his chiidren. Some thirteen or fourteen young men have been influenced by him to enter the ministry. He said the first essential to success is to love your people. "if you wiii love your peopie, you wiii give them your best." Another essential is "to go into their homes, take interest in every member of the famiiy and pray for each by name." Third, "Realize the need of the Training Course."

Under the question, "How to do the work?" he said: "Taik it in prayer meeting, Sunday school, in homes, on the road, in puipit and everywhere. Take personal interest in each pupil, his writing and speiiing. Make a big occasion of the delivery of diplomas."

Foiiowing Brother White, J. M. Way of the centrai office in Nashviile gave a stirring address, after which a summary of the work for the year of our fieid secretary, J. C. Chambers, was read by H. F. Tolie.

Second Day, Thursday, Dec. 5.

At 9 o'ciock, the Bishop called the Conference to order and read a Scripture lesson from Ephesians, 3d chapter. In the course of his remarks, he said that the Acts of the Aposties is the greatest missionary document that has ever been produced. After singing hymn 453, the Conference was led in prayer by C. W. Crisler, following which the roll of absentees of both clericai and lay members from the first day's session was caiied.

Robt. Selby moved to suspend the standing ruie of the Conference for Friday evening to aiiow Bishop Kiigo to bring the message for the Board of Education to the Conference. The motion carried.

Rev. H. T. Cariey, editor of the New Orieans Advocate, and Rev. O. E. Haiey were introduced to the Conference.

At 10:15, the Bishop caiied J. T. Leggett to take the chair, and the order of the day, the program of the Missionary Centenary Movement, began. The members of the team that brought the messages to our Conference are J. L. Neiii, a member of our body, Mrs. J. W. Downs, a member of the Woman's Missionary Council, Rev. F. S. Onderdonk, of our Mexican missions and J. M. Way, of South Caroiina. The facts, information and pians laid before the Conference by these workers brought great inspiration and enthusiasm to all who heard them. We were made to feel more profoundiy than ever that we are living in the most auspicious age of the world's history, and that now is the time to press the cause of the Kingdom of God as never before, and to try to bring that Kingdom in. The fields were surveyed, the world's needs presented, the cail to intercession and rigid Christian stewardship of our iives and possessions was made; and as the program proceeded, the accumulated power of the Spirit was feit by aii, so that when the cali was made for signers to the cards for Intercession and Christian Stewardship, there was an inspiring response. Dr. Onderdonk reported 85 signers of the Christian Stewardship cards.

An incident of the day that showed the presence and workings of the Spirit was when Mrs. Downs spoke to a point of personal priviiege, and told of two young ladies who were ready for immediate service in the Mission fields, but on account of debts incurred in procuring their education would be detained for a year or two from reaching the fieidds uniess. The statement had no sooner been made of what was needed to enable these young women to be free to go than C. W. Cochran, one of our laymen from Meridian, arose and said he would assume the debts of $400 and $300 respectiveiy. The crowning service of the day was in the evening, when an address iiiustrated with stereopticon siides of scenes from all our Mission fields was given, at the close of which the allotment assigned to our Conference was announced as $954.000, and on motion of J. L. Decell, it was raised to $1,000,000 without a dissenting vote. In the above report, I have given a brief survey of aii three sessions of the Conference held during the day in order to complete the Missionary Centenary program.

Before the beginning of the program, in accord with the motion passed the first day, the members of the new quadrennial boards were announced

EARL GREY.

By William C. Allen.

It has been said of this English peer who died not long ago that, "No more beautiful or lovable character has adorned our generation." A biography by Harold Bigbie (published by Hodder & Stoughton, in London and New York, 1917), tends to confirm this assertion. His name must not be confounded with that of Lord Grey, now living, once English minister for Foreign Affairs.

When Governor-General of Canada, Earl Grey upon one occasion was lost in a strange country. "Coming at last in sight of a forlorn cottage, he sent one of his staff to inquire if they could have tea there. When he arrived before the door of this shack he found an old Scots body standing there who had been told that he was the Governor-General. She came to his side, raised an old withered hand, and began gently stroking his thigh, looking up at him awesomely as he sat on his horse. 'There, there,' she muttered, 'I could easier talk to the Lord Jesus Christ than I can talk to you.' 'Of course you could,' said Lord Grey, bending down to her; 'you talk to Him every morning, and every evening: this is the first time you have talked to me.'"

As a young man, Lord Grey was profoundly moved by the writings of Mazzini and would mark passages that particularly impressed him. He pencil-scored the following reference to action: "If your conscience tells you it would be injurious, desist, desist, even though it seem that an immediate advantage to your country or family would be the result." Again he marked, "The sufferings of the poor are partially known to the wealthier classes; known, but not felt." Here was the beginning in his life of what the world needs more of—Christian statesmanship.

Early in his career, he commenced to distrust political parties; he seemed to feel that real democracy could not be reached through fidelity to them. He declared that, "Uniformity produces deadness, and freedom and diversity of relations alone supply the conditions which give birth to intellectual life, activity, originality, and statesmanship." He feared party control of the House of Commons and believed that a strong and resolute House was absolutely essential to the safety of the people. In this connection he wrote, "As soon as men lose faith in one another, anarchy comes knocking at the door." May it not be well for America to remember this in years to come?

Earl Grey carried his religion into politics. He considered that God was a political necessity. We are told that he "loved the divine Majesty." He braved aristocratic Church associations when he declared, "Christianity has been fighting on an impossible ground. It has had to speak of its love principle in a world organized for the advantage of the strong. The system of commercial competition, with all its inevitable cruelties, is the very negation of Christianity. And yet our State, which is founded on this principle, professes to be founded on Christianity!. Obviously this is nonsense * * * It is a State definitely opposed to the conception of a Christian State." He plead that the Church "create a real sense of brotherhood," and practice it. His biographer says, "He asked one to contemplate how vastly different now would be the state of mankind if, instead of a chronicle of religious wars and theological divisions, the history of the last thousand years had recorded the effort of mankind to obey the simple and definite commands of Christ. He saw everything his soul could conceive of in religion, in those two commandments, love of God and love of man."

He applied his conception of the Christian religion to private life, and we are all acquainted with the fact that many good men fail to do so. Once a friend of his when speaking to him regarding a certain incident remarked, "I shall never forgive that." With a look of pity he replied, "Then God help you!"

Lord Grey was born to the enjoyment of wealth, beautiful buildings, field amusements, intellectual excitements, social ceremonies, dinner parties, wide influence, political power. He was a handsome man, loving wit and fun. At one time he was very nearly spoilt by society. But he never forgot God and his obligations to men. He was gallant on behalf of the right. It is to be regretted that such a life could not have been spared to the service of humanity and that he died just at this critical period of the world's history. When on his death-bed he gave to his biographer this final message:

"A voice from the grave often gets a hearing. That's what I am after. I want to try to make my voice sound from the grave. I want to say to people that there is a real way out of all this mess materialism has got them into. I have been trying to tell them for thirty years. It's Christ's way. Mazzini saw it. We've got to give up quarreling. We've got to come together. We've got to realize that we're all members of the same family. There's nothing that can help humanity, I'm perfectly sure there isn't—perfectly sure—except love. Love is the way out, and the way up. That's my farewell to the world!"

Are not many of us beginning to realize that this splendid Christian statesman spoke the truth?

SKETCHES FROM THE FRENCH FIELD.

Prepared by Miss Ella K. Hooper and Mrs. L. M. White, Council Workers.

III. Developments.

The Conference following the organization of the first Methodist Church in our field appointed Rev. C. V. Breithaupt to develop and extend the work. He labored with indefatigable zeal for seven and a half years and the work grew, not rapidly, but steadily and with deep, strong roots. At the end of that period, there was an established church in Houma, the parish seat, the Bayou Blue church had grown to a membership of 120, and there were a number of other "centers" where services were held, as well as some established work in Lafourche, the adjoining parish. Brother Hebert continued the work of the pioneer in the French Mission and had also the supervision of the field. Other workers were connected with stations and circuits.

Among the latter, deserving of special note, was Rev. A. D. Martin, brother of the founder of the Bayou Blue church. He has, perhaps, experienced more hardships and persecutions than any other worker in the French field and at the same time opened up more new communities to the Gospel. His work, as he expresses it, has been as "ice breaker" and a splendid one he makes.

In 1912, the Woman's Missionary Council sent a deaconess, Miss Eliza Iles, and later Miss Kate Walker. These deaconesses, by organization of clubs and classes and by house-to-house visiting, won the hearts of many not reached by the preachers and prepared the way for the present work carried on by the Council—a work for the evangelization, education, and uplift of the women and girls of the French Mission.

These, all laboring in faith, obtained a good report, but have not completed the task: God having provided some better thing for us, that their work without ours should not be made perfect.

What then is yet to be done? The task is a great one and requires courage and consecration on the part of the workers, and the hearty interest and co-operation and prayers of the Church as a whole.

The needs may be divided into three classes: evangelistic, educational, and financial. Many communities are yet untouched by the Gospel, and the first need is for the Spirit-filled, evangelistic preacher, the "ice breaker." He must penetrate new regions and by patience in tribulation and by being a living epistle, win hearts for Christ and establish a church. Following the conversion of the people and the organization of a church, comes the need of education. One would not expect a newly evangelized community in China or Africa to grow in grace and become a center of stalwart Christians without Bible study or Christian training, especially if the converts could neither read nor write, and the conditions are practically the same here. Financial aid is needed to build churches, to establish night schools, to supply more workers, and to provide Christian education for the native young people, who alone can really complete the task of emancipation and Christianization.

AN OPPORTUNITY THAT WILL COME BUT ONCE.

Ninety-one acres of land adjoining Paine College campus can be bought at a very reasonable price, and the trustees of that institution are very anxious to seize this golden opportunity. This land will be used for farming. The present campus of only 17½ acres is very inadequate for teaching agriculture. The acquisition of this new property will be equal to adding $100,000 endowment to the permanent funds of the College. It is a chance that the school cannot afford to miss.

Of the $10,000 needed immediately, almost one-half is already in sight. The deal must be closed by the end of December. Every Southern Methodist who believes in giving the Negro race a Christian leadership ought to send a contribution at once to President Albert D. Betts, Paine College, Augusta, Ga. If you cannot send money now, then write and tell him what amount you will pay later. The whole amount must be pledged at once. Several Liberty Bonds have been given, and more will be acceptable, for they are as good as cash if not better.

Bishop J. H. McCoy, D.D., of Birmingham, Ala., is president of the Board of Trustees, and he has recently issued the following letter concerning the matter:

"May I add my hearty endorsement to the appeal which President Betts, of Paine College, is making to the Church for funds with which to add to the lands of that institution? The Board of Trustees, of which I have the honor to be president, regards it essential to the development of the College on the larger and more practical lines it has matured, that a much larger body of land be had than we now have. And it is felt that the opportunity offered as set out by President Betts is an exceptional one, as this land joins our present campus and is being offered at what we consider a reasonable price.

"I sincerely trust that our great Church will make a prompt and liberal response to this worthy cause. Very truly yours,

"J. H. McCOY."

GOD'S WORK.

In every moment of our days, when once our hearts are yielded to His service, God is working in us and through us. Hitherto, perhaps, our little world has only been large enough to hold self and the present. But gradually, through tender leadings and unfoldings, and, it may be, through pain and suffering, we come to learn life's lesson—that it is God's world, not ours; that our existence is not finished and rounded off here, but forms part of one vast scheme to which mind and heart and spirit expand and grow, while all the horizon round them grows and expands, too, until it touches the shore of the illimitable future, and we become conscious that earth and heaven are not so far separated but that the first is but the vestibule of the second—imperfect, cloudy, full of broken fragments, but still part of the same temple of God as that to which we shall pass in by and by.—H. Bowman.

OVER THERE! OVER HERE!

American Y. M. C. A.
12 Rue d'Aguesseau, Paris, France.
Octoher 15, 1918.

I wrote you some days ago that the Religious Department of the Y. M. C. A. in Paris would furnish our chaplains with a communion set, a baby organ where needed, Testaments, song books and quite a large and growing assortment of literature. In addition, I am trying to arrange for a lantern which can be used in hospital wards and in tents so that men who cannot get out to the movies of the Y. M. C. A. can find in these slides and films a source of entertainment and instruction. They can also be utilized in evangelistic services.

In the letter referred to, I requested that each chaplain coming over from our Church should bring a duplicate Corona because we have several men who have not been supplied. Please request the chaplains in question to take the Coronas in their hands to the Chaplain's School at Le Mains and leave them in the care of Major John A. Randolph, who is at the head of the school, and who will hold them for me. It will not do to express or send them in any other way. This is a better plan than to leave them with the Y. M. C. A. in New York as before suggested.

Our men are needing transportation. Their groups are much scattered, and it is impossible to get to the soldiers without aid. A motorcycle is out of the question—the administration has requisitioned everything of the kind. During the last ten days I have supplied Chaplains Howard and Hightower with bicycles. Our chaplains may need a fund each for local demands in aid of sick soldiers and the wounded. I will advance the same where there is a real demand.

Have just returned from a two days' visit to the Chaplains' School mentioned above. Found twenty there under the instruction and superintendency of Major Randolph. Spoke five times during my stay, and trust some real contribution was made to the splendid group of men gathered there. They were kind enough to say that I had helped them and I was given a cordial invitation to come again. My mission over here is primarily to the chaplain and his soldiers. It was a great privilege not only to speak to them, but to have fellowship with, and to pray for them individually in several cases. The strain is terrific on these faithful men. Two had been gassed and were just recovering, two others had been struck with fragments of shells and were partially disabled. One came with me last night who is suffering from rheumatism of the joints due to exposure in the trenches. They have not hesitated to share the privations of the rank and file and will wear the scars for life. Two have yielded up their lives on the battlefield. You do not wonder that I count it the privilege of my life to be here and to minister in every way possible to men who have not counted their lives dear unto themselves.

I have been making a careful study of the entire field and its needs. It is so immense, as it relates itself to the moral and religious welfare of two million men scattered over hundreds of square miles and billeted in thousands of villages in addition to the regular cantonments, that it cannot be grasped in a day, neither can wise conclusions be swiftly reached. My ideas are beginning to take shape and it is becoming clear that as a Church we should align ourselves with the religious and educational work of chaplains and Y. M. C. A. secretaries, and with the relief work of the Red Cross. I have written an article to the Christian Advocate on the Educational program, and will be sending another on the Religious program. The soldiers have been asking where the Church is, and it is of vital importance if we are going to have any influence over these men when they return, to have a representative of the Church on the ground. Every service I have held, and they have been many, I have asked the boys to come forward and give me their hand, stating the locality they are from and what Church they belong to so I might get in touch with the pastor. Several have proposed to enter the ministry or missionary work, and it is evident we must look to these fine young men—the flower of our country—to fill our depleted colleges and to re-enforce the attenuated line of missionaries in foreign fields.

I have preached much to the negroes, advised with their chaplains and leaders and endeavored at headquarters to insist upon more personal attention to the stevedores especially. The latter are at the ports unloading steamers and loading trains, building tracks, yards, roads, etc. The temptations to which they are exposed are simply fierce—wine and women, together with gambling and association with the worst element to be encountered anywhere. Our military authorities are doing all in their power, but still the evil exists, and those of us who know the negro and the South and the awful aftermath of such exposure without adequate safeguards are bestirring ourselves to help our military leaders to the extent of our ability.

Finding thousands of Chinese laborers from North and Central China, the dialects of which I speak, I have discovered another field of need and opportunity, and have been visiting their camps and distributing literature, especially the Scriptures. The latter I got from the British and Foreign Bible Society in London.

My hands are busy and my heart is full. The opportunity of the centuries is before us. Are we alive to its demands and do we propose to meet it—adequately meet it? God help us. If we fail, ours will be a fearful condemnation as a Church. Our country is bending to its task. Can we do less? Major Randolph tells me that the Chaplains' Committee, which is, through Bishop Brent, in constant touch with General Pershing, is calling for 600 more chaplains, or 150 a month until the required quota has been received. Whole regiments are without ministerial services. I found 4000 men in one case with only one chaplain. I leave the situation for the present with you and the Commission. Give them my love as you meet them from time to time, and may you and they be given courage and strength for the great task which has been intrusted to your hands. You might send a copy of this letter to each member that this outline of what I am attempting over here may be laid before them. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you and the Church.

Your brother in the Gospel,

W. R. LAMBUTH.

Third Day.

Bishop Kilgo called the Conference to order at 9 o'clock and read a lesson from John 15. The Conference, led by the Bishop, sang "Rock of Ages," and was led in prayer by J. M. Morse.

After the reading and approval of the minutes of the preceding session, S. F. Harkey and A. J. Beasley, of the North Mississippi Conference, who are transferring to us, were introduced.

A message of greetings from W. N. Thomas, chaplain in the U. S. Navy and member of our body, was read to the Conference.

W. B. Waldrop was granted the supernumerary relation. Our superannuates are: H. P. Lewis, Ira B. Robertson, E. H. Mounger, I. L. Peebles, W. W. Simmons, R. Bradiey, J. T. Nicholson, T. B. Holloman, J. B. King, C. N. Martin, C. H. Herring, E. D. Phillips, R. F. Witt, J. W. Brown, W. W. Cammack, G. W. Huff, L. Carley, W. D. Dominick, J. M. Massey, C. T. Noble, B. H. Rawls and G. R. Ellis. The Committee on Conference Reiations recommended that the presiding elders of these brethren be requested to secure reports from each of them concerning their physical condition as weli as any work they have been able to do during the year, to present to the next Annual Conference for its guidance in determining their future relations. This recommendation was adopted with their report.

Reports from Dr. A. F. Watkins, President of Millsaps College; M. M. Black, Commissioner for Millsaps, and Robt. Selby, Commissioner for Emory University, were read by these brethren to the Conference.

Dr. I. W. Cooper presented a cause dear to his heart, the education of our young ministers, to the Conference, and was allowed to solicit subscriptions to the same.

The foliowing questions were caiied:

1. "Who are admitted on trial?" T. M. Ainsworth, E. M. Allen, M. L. McCormick, W. N. Ware, and Otto Porter.

2. "Who remain on trial?" C. Y. Higginbotham, H. E. Raley, L. M. Sharp, J. M. Smith, J. A. Smith, and M. A. Massey.

The Bishop added much interest to the session by asking the above young men such questions as these: "'Do you want to be a great preacher?" "What kind—as the world regards greatness, or as Christ?" "Do you know when a man is converted?" "How do you know?" He also remarked: "The Spirit comes down, not like a bullet, but like the wind—it fills the house."

8. Who are received from other churches as traveling preachers?" S. B. Watkins from the Congregational Methodist Church.

10. "What traveling preachers are elected deacons?" A. J. Beasley, who was also advanced to the Ciass of the Fourth Year, and J. B. Stringer.

14. "What traveling preachers are elected eiders?" M. F. Adams, R. H. Clegg, M. W. David, S. C. Moody, M. W. Porter, W. J. Waiters, and T. B. Winstead.

A. A. Sims, who was not able to attend the Conference and appear before the Committee, was retained in the Class of the Fourth Year.

12. "What iocal preachers are eiected deacons?" B. H. Williams and A. J. Boyies.

It was reported to the Conference that during the year Bishop McMurry had ordained as both deacon and eider C. J. Bushey from the local ranks, in order to qualify him for the U. S. Army chaplaincy.

52. "Where shall the next session of the Conference be held?" Hattiesburg and Meridian asked for it, and strong speeches were made by representatives from each place, urging us to accept their invitations. The cali from Meridian seemed most dear to the majority of the Conference, and Meridian was chosen.

Dr. Bray, the General Secretary of the Board of Education of the Colored Methodist Church, addressed the Conference in behalf of the cause he represents and created great enthusiasm among the members of the Conference. He asked for an offering of $400, and secured $673.

Following announcements, the Conference, led by the Bishop, sang "O Think of a Home Over There," and adjourned with the benediction pronounced by Dr. Onderdonk.

Afternoon.

At 3 p. m., Mrs. Downs addressed the ladies of McComb in the Presbyterian Church on the subject of the Missionary Centenary Movement, and Rev. W. J. Ferguson preached in the Methodist Church.

Evening.

At 7:30 p. m., the Conference and citizens of McComb assembied in the Centrai School auditorium to observe the anniversary of the Board of Education and hear Bishop Kilgo, the speaker for the evening. The Bishop was at his best and swayed the audience at his will from iaughter to tears and from dead silence to unbounded enthusiasm. His theme, as this writer would cail it, was "Real Education versus Mis-Education." He spoke on the value of things fundamentai, and the folly of the superficial. Some of the thoughts advanced were: "The world is not so much in danger of the lack of education as it is of a superabundance of mis-education. It is very evident that something has gone wrong in the world." "Germany has not educated too much, but rather mis-educated." "What a price we have had to pay for this mis-education! Price in money alone, $200,000,000,000. Everything taxed to the limit to pay this awful debt." "We have made a mess of God's world. We ought to be ashamed of ourselves." "America has run wild with the thought of patriotism. We haven't had time to think. True patriotism is a tragedy." "The truest, outstanding, nobiest patriotism is in the hearts of the mothers, and it is tragedy." "What has gone down with the Kaiser? How do you know Democracy has not gone?" "Every fanaticism, falsehood, piece of nonsense, has been proclaimed in the name of liberty." "The highest things of education are found in faith." "The real contents of education are in knowing the thoughts of God. Our education fails if we do not have it crowned with Jesus Christ."

Saturday—Fourth Day.

The Conference was caiied to order by the Bishop, and he read a Scripture lesson taken from Romans, 8th chapter, beginning with verse 32. The Conference sang hymn 208 and the Bishop called on J. M. Morse to lead in prayer.

After the reading of the minutes by Dr. Watkins, P. D. Hardin read resoiutions of sympathy for the family and friends of Mrs. C. H. Otken, who died suddenly Friday morning. The resolutions were unanimousiy adopted.

The editors of the Conference Journai made their report, which was adopted. In connection with making the report, Dr. Watkins gave public expression of appreciation on the part of the editors of services rendered by J. L. Decell in securing advertisements for the edition of the Journal for this session, to heip pay cost of its publication.

The Conference showed a more thoughtful spirit for our Conference ciaimants by accepting an assessment amounting to $20,000 for the coming year. This is an increase of nearly 50 per cent over the assesment of last year.

The Conference eiected W. D. Davis as treasurer of the Finance Commission, and provided an assessment of $300 to defray his expenses. The Finance Commission was authorized to work out its own financial pians.

The Bishop spoke to a point of personal privilege by calling attention to the careless method we have of keeping a record of our membership, and urged more carefulness on the part of the preachers in charge and presiding elders in making out the statistical reports.

Question 9 was caiied, and R. A. Aliums, J. B. Cain, H. C. Casties, J. H. Jolly, C. P. Jones, D. W. Uimer, J. T. Weems, A. J. Beasiey, and S. F. Harkey were passed and advanced to the Class of the Fourth Year.

At this point, the Bishop commended the classes of our Conference and said that they were the best he had heard reported on in all his rounds of Conferences this year.

Four brethren of the Louisiana Conference, H. W. May, Alonzo Early, S. S. Bogan and L. I. McCain, were introduced to the Conference. The question was raised in the minds of some, "What are these feliows doing here?" But just a little later, when the Bishop received the class of this year and made his address to the class, we were convinced that they knew a good thing when they saw and heard it, and that they knew it was worth more than the expense to hear the Bishop give his charge to the ciass. We were giad to have those brethren with us, and say to them: "Come again."

Only one, A. J. Beasley, was present to be received into the Conference. All who heard it pronounced the Bishop's charge one of the best ever delivered to a class in our Conference. Some of his remarks were: "We are a militant host. I am under orders. If you don't iike these things in us, don't come pestering us. We are not pestering you." "The world is fuii of ecciesiastical parasites to-day. If you want to run loose, don't come here and let us put our bridie on you. It is a curb bit, and the reins are in the hands of a Bishop. It takes sanctified, regenerated manhood to follow the cali of the Methodist itinerancy." "Do you want to be a preacher—burning up to be a preacher— really on FIRE to be a preacher?"

"A preacher's life and work is a tragedy—the greatest in the universe." "You can lecture on literature, science, etc., you can speak on politics, but you can't preach but one thing, and that is the Gospel." "If you are a Gospel preacher, having gotten the inspiration by agony before God in prayer because of sin and the need of salvation, the crowds will come to hear you. Paul and John Wesley never wanted for crowds to preach to." "The preacher who has quit studying hard, deep books, has back-slidden." "The most ignorant as well as the most learned man knows when one is preaching." "The world is going to hell, with full steam, down grade, throttle wide open on a straight track. Oh, Brother, preach! preach! PREACH, like a house on fire—like in the throes of an earthquake, like judgment just ahead and the world on the brink of hell."

I. W. Cooper introduced a resolution regarding the building of a hospital in the bounds of our Conference, calling for a commission of eight preachers and eight laymen. The resolution was adopted, but amended to contain nine preachers. The Commission is composed of the following: P. H. Enochs, L. L. Roberts, S. E. Monton, L. N. Dantzier, J. S. Otis, Jas. Hand, C. W. Cochran, Jno. A. McLeod, W. M. Buie, C. W. Crisler, J. M. Morse, W. H. Saunders, H. M. Ellis, H. B. Watkins, J. T. Leggett, P. D. Hardin, I. W. Cooper.

Robt. Selby addressed the Conference relative to his work as Commissioner for Emory University. Besides raising the funds for the L. Q. C. Lamar Law Building, he is also securing funds to establish a chair in Sunday School Pedagogy at the University, amounting to $25,000.

The vote of the Conference on Woman's Laity Rights stood 58 for and 47 against.

The vote on change in the Creed was 75 for and 48 against.

The reports of Committees on Temperance and State of the Church were read and adopted.

The Bishop requested Dr. I. W. Cooper to preside at the afternoon session.

Preaching services were announced for Sunday as follows:

Centenary—10 a. m., Love Feast conducted by W. M. Sullivan; 11 a. m., sermon by Bishop J. C. Kilgo, followed by ordination of elders; 3 p. m., Memorial Service; 6:15 p. m., Epworth League led by J. B. Cain; 7:30 p. m., preaching by H. B. Watkins.

First Baptist Church—11 a. m., H. M. Ellis; 3 p. m., Young People's Mass Meeting, W. D. Hawkins, leader; 7:30 p. m., H. W. Featherstun.

Presbyterian Church—11 a. m., C. W. Crisler; 7:30 p. m., P. D. Hardin.

South McComb Methodist—11 a. m., F. B. Ormond; 7:30 p. m., L. E. Alford.

East McComb Methodist—11 a. m., H. S. Westbrook; 7:30 p. m., J. V. Bennett.

South McComb Baptist—11 a. m., I. W. Cooper; 7:30 p. m., F. B. Ormond.

East McComb Baptist—11 a. m., W. A. Hays; 7:30 p. m., H. A. Wood.

Summit Methodist—11 a. m., H. F. Toile.

Summit Baptist—11 a. m., A. F. Watkins.

Summit Presbyterian—3 p. m., J. A. Smith.

Sweet Home Colored Baptist Church—7:30 p. m., J. C. Chambers.

Colored Holiness Church—3 p. m., C. A. Schultz.

After other announcements, the Conference sang "I Am Bound for the Promised Land," and adjourned with the benediction, to meet at 3 p. m.

Afternoon.

The Conference was called to order by I. W. Cooper. E. H. Mounger read I Jno. 1, and led in prayer. The Conference sang, "A Charge to Keep I Have."

After reading of minutes of the morning session, a large number of reports were read and adopted.

R. E. Neilner, Assistant Secretary of the General Epworth League Board, addressed the Conference.

B. F. Lewis, Manager of our Orphans' Home, spoke of his work and requested the hearty cooperation of the brethren.

J. C. Chambers spoke out of a full heart of his appreciation of the sympathy and help the brethren have given him in his work.

Towards the close of the afternoon session, the Bishop came in and resumed the chair, and when there was a lull in business, he delighted the members of the Conference with a running reminiscence and comment on various subjects. None of us ever tire of hearing the Bishop talk. We feel that we have come to know and love him dearly.

After singing "O How I Love Jesus," the Conference adjourned to meet in Memorial Service at 3 p. m. Sunday.

Memorial Service, Sunday, 3 p. m.

Rev. J. L. Selis, who presided, announced Hymn 50, "Abide With Me." Prayer was offered by W. W. Moore, and E. H. Mounger read the Scriptures, selecting Rev. 22:1-14.

Question 21 was called: "What preachers have died during the past year?" J. H. Evans, whose memoir was read by W. M. Williams. Following this the Lewis Quartette sang "The Beautiful Land." By special request of the Conference, the committee on memoirs brought in a memorial on the life of Dr. R. S. Ricketts, which was read by Dr. A. F. Watkins. Remarks on the life and character of these saints of God were made by C. W. Crisler, E. H. Mounger, W. H. Huntley, W. B. Jones, R. H. Barr, J. S. Purcell, G. H. Thompson, A. F. Watkins, L. L. Roberts, J. M. Wood, M. L. White and W. H. LaPrade.

The report of the Committee on Memoirs was accepted by a rising vote.

The session adjourned with the singing of the Doxology and benediction pronounced by A. S. Oliver.

Sunday Services.

The Conference met for the Love Feast at 10 a. m. W. M. Sullivan presided. After serving the bread and water, Scripture reading and singing "Ashamed of Jesus," the brethren, both preachers and laymen, utilized the time speaking of their personal religious experiences. Within the hour, 38 spoke and many more desired to speak. As the service progressed, the spiritual tide ran higher and higher, and we were made to feel like Peter on the Mount of Transfiguration, that it was good to be there.

The brethren told of trials, sicknesses, sorrows, and the comfort and joy they found in the Lord as they turned to Him. Some spoke of its being a year of continual praise and victories, some of richer and deeper experiences, and of a greater love in their hearts for Christ and His Cause.

The writer heard the remark that it was one of the best Love Feasts the Conference has ever held. Brethren, can't we take it back into our charges? Let's seek to have a real love feast in every home we visit, with every life we touch, till all be united in the bonds of Christian love.

The Bishop's Sermon.

He used as his text, Jno. 1:11-13. I shall not try to give a gist of it. Suffice it to say, the Bishop made clear in emphatic terms the Divinity of Jesus Christ, the Only Begotten of the Father. He showed how Christ completely routed the devil and thus established his Sonship in the wilderness temptations. He showed how Christ never wavered from His appointed task, but on the cross paid the price for man's redemption. He made clear what it means to be redeemed, regenerated and to receive power to become sons of God. He told of the life of real sonship, and of the privileges enjoyed both here and hereafter.

But, O how the congregation was moved under the influence of that powerful message! Brother Wiley Ferguson, overflowing with emotion, repeated over and over again, "Glory, glory, glory!" Uncle Ira B. Robertson could not keep back his "Halleluiahs." Waves upon waves of the deepest emotions of joy and glory passed over the congregation. The Holy Spirit was there and filled the house.

Surely, we will go to our works another year, determined to present the Gospel message more earnestly and zealously than ever before. At the close, the candidates for elder's orders were ordained.

The 7:30 p. m. Service.

Rev. H. B. Watkins was to have preached at this hour, but was not able on account of being sick. Rev. H. F. Toile was called on, and preached from the text, "Ye are the salt of the earth." It was a sermon to the heart of the Christian that did us all good, and doubtless many persons resolved to make their lives more positive for good than they have been, because of having heard that sermon by Brother Toile.

Sixth Day.

Bishop Kilgo called the Conference to order at 8:30 a. m., and read from 1 Timothy. The Conference sang Hymn 508. M. B. Sharbrough led the Conference in prayer. Dr. Watkins read the minutes of the Saturday evening session and the memorial session of Sunday afternoon. Upon reading the statistical reports, the Bishop called attention to the carelessness on the part of the preachers and presiding elders in reporting properly the numbers of members. Where statistics show a decrease in number of members, the Bishop contended that the facts would show a substantial gain. Upon the strength of the Bishop's exhortation, the statistical report relative to number of members was recommitted to the presiding elders, who are given ten days' time to furnish to the editors of the Conference Journal a corrected list of members.

Various reports were read and adopted.

The Joint Board of Finance reported that during the year the following claimants on the Board had died: J. H. Evans, Mrs. D. Merchant, Mrs. N. M. Clark, Mrs. J. M. Weems, and Mrs. R. B. Downer.

The Commission on Finance distributed the assessments on the districts, as follows:

	Local work.	Gen'l work.
Brookhaven District	$6982	$6850
Hattiesburg District	6155	6042
Jackson District	6740	6612
Meridian District	6264	6147
Newton District	5294	5191
Port Gibson District	5946	5838
Seashore District	6626	6500
Total	$44,007	$43,180

Resolutions of thanks prepared by C. F. Emery were read by G. S. Harmon and adopted by a standing vote.

After the reading of the minutes of the morning session, the Conference sang "There is a Land that is Fairer than Day," and how the preachers did sing it! Following this, the Bishop offered a prayer, committing all that lies before us to the Lord.

Before the reading of the appointments, Dr. Watkins secured the floor and, over the Bishop's protest, expressed the Conference's appreciation of the Bishop's presence and administration. The appointments were read, the Doxology was sung, and the Bishop pronounced the benediction. Thus came to a close one of the most delightful and profitable sessions of the Mississippi Conference ever held.

JESUS AS A BOY.

We read that Jesus "was subject to" his parents. Obedience to his father and mother was characteristic of his boyhood. We are justified in thinking of him during these years when he was preparing for his sacred mission as a good son, taking his share in the life and work of his earthly home, learning his father's trade and working with him in his daily tasks. He was serving God in this way while a boy and young man, as truly as he was serving God in late years by his preaching and teaching.—Exchange.

The Centenary in the Sunday School.

WHY SHOULD THE SUNDAY SCHOOL TAKE PART?

THE CHALLENGE.

The Centenary presents to the Sunday Schools of our Church the greatest challenge of all time.

Thousands of Methodist Sunday school boys followed General Pershing on his victorious march through France. Many of them sleep in Flanders' fields, but they never allowed "Old Glory" to trail in the dust.

The challenge of the Centenary to the Sunday schools at home is to lift the blood-stained banner of the Cross out of the mire of neglect and, with the message of Christ, carry it to the ends of the earth.—J. L. Neill.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL NEEDS THE CENTENARY.

1. The chief work of the Sunday School is to produce efficient Christians.
2. An efficient Christian must do effective Christian work.
3. Christian missions is the supreme work of the Christian Church.
4. The raising of a definite sum of money for a specific purpose will have real educational value.

THE CENTENARY NEEDS THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

1. There is to be much more in the Centenary than the raising of money.
2. The Sunday School is the only organization through which an entire generation can be trained to a proper conception of missions.
3. The Sunday School can furnish enough volunteers to meet every demand.
4. The Sunday School is the best agency at the command of the Church to educate the whole people concerning world needs and the necessity for Prayer and Stewardship in meeting those needs.

THE PASTOR'S PART.

1. Assist your Superintendents in the appointment of a good Missionary Committee in each Sunday school.
2. See that a Missionary program is rendered each month, as required by the Discipline. A program is to be published in the Sunday School Magazine and School Standard.
3. Insist that all money given on Missionary Sunday in the Sunday school be directed as a "Special" for Missions and that it be sent monthly with specific directions as to its use, to Dr. J. J. Stowe, Centenary Treasurer, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn.
4. Do all in your power to lift the monthly offering for missions in the Sunday school to a minimum of five cents a month for each pupil enrolled.
5. Supply the Department of Missionary Education with all the information asked for, and we pledge ourselves to do what we can to help you "over the top."

THE SUPERINTENDENT'S PART.

1. Appoint a Missionary Committee of three members.
2. Plan his program for the fourth Sunday in each month, so that the Chairman of the Missionary Committee will have plenty of time for the presentation of a Missionary program.
3. See that the Workers' Council directs all money raised on Missionary Sunday in the Sunday School as a Special for Missions. For all suggestions and assignment of Specials, write Department of Missionary Education, address given below.
4. Do all in his power to make the Minimum Offering for Missions in the Sunday School an average of five cents a month per pupil enrolled, to be sent each month to J. J. Stowe, Centenary Treasurer, P. O. Box 38, Nashville, Tenn.
5. Report at once the full name and correct postoffice address of the Chairman of the Missionary Committee to the undersigned.

Financial Goal for the Sunday School: $3,500,000.

How will Your School Meet the Challenge of the Centenary?

For further information write to J. L. Neill, Superintendent Department Missionary Education, General Sunday School Board, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn.

The Home Circle

GARDENING.

This is the short and sorrowful tale
  Of Jessica Jenkins Jones;
She planted a packet of seeds with pride
While her dog looked on with his head on the side
  And thought, "She's burying bones."

When Jessica left, he dug like mad
  In search of the luscious bones.
So Jessica's garden it did not grow,
And Jessica's dog was cross, and so
  Was Jessica Jenkins Jones.

THE WHITE GUINEA'S NEST.

"Henry, if you find that guinea's nest, you may have as many eggs for breakfast as you can eat," said Glenn's grandmother as the men were starting off to work one morning.

"I'd be glad to, Mrs. Tolliver, and I'd enjoy the eggs; but we're mighty busy just now, and you know it takes long patience and watching to find a guinea's nest," replied Henry, grandfather's helper on his big Western farm.

"Yes, I know that you haven't time, Henry; but I do wish some one would find the nest. I know there must be lots of eggs in it, she has been laying so long. I think it must be in the wheat field somewhere. The only way I know to find it is to watch her go to the nest, but I never can find the time," replied grandmother.

Glenn looked thoughtful after his grandmother had gone into the house. Why couldn't he find the guinea's nest and surprise grandmother? She had said you must watch the guinea, and he could do that as well as any one.

The white guinea was in plain sight at that time, picking about the yard; so Glenn sat down on the steps to watch her.

The winter before grandmother had had a flock of seven guinea fowls, but one thing and another had happened to them until now only one hen remained.

It seemed to Glenn that he had been sitting there for hours, when at last the guinea hen started for the wheat field, across the road, in a somewhat furtive manner. Glenn followed her cautiously; for if the guinea suspected that she was being followed, she would not go to the nest.

As he crossed the road, Glenn idly picked up a long stick lying there, and afterwards he was glad that he did. He had not been visiting at the farm very long and was not very well acquainted with it, but he knew one thing—grandfather had the tallest wheat he ever saw; why, it reached away above his head. And how thick it was! A great, waving, yellow mass when the wind blew!

The white guinea moved slowly, stopping to pick here and there, but still Glenn had hard work to keep her in sight in the thick wheat without coming too close. On and on they went. It was now about ten o'clock; but as it was a cloudy day, the sun was not very hot.

Ah! the guinea was stopping at last under a little clump of bushes. And Glenn caught a glimpse of a nest full of speckled eggs.

The white guinea slipped slyly on the nest; and Glenn, suddenly remembering the stick in his hand, decided to set it up to mark the nest, so he could find it again and return to the house. As he stole softly away, he thought he was going back exactly the way he had come; but after he had walked until he was all tired out, he knew he must have taken the wrong direction. But even in that case, he thought, he ought to by this time have reached the other edge of the field. Glenn did not know that this field contained over fifty acres and that it would take a small boy a good while to walk across it, even if he went in a straight line. So he turned about and walked on.

About this time it began to rain; and as Glenn tried to hurry, the thick wet wheat tripped him in a most irritating manner. It was all he could do to keep back the tears. He felt as if he might just as well lie down in this awful wheat and not try to go on any longer. But then no one knew where he was, and he might have to stay here all night—he had no idea what time it was—so he stumbled on again bravely. If only he could just see where he was going.

Suddenly he heard a shout. "Glenn, Glenn! Where are you?" some one called.

"Whoop-ee! Here!" he screamed, feeling as if he wanted to jump for joy.

"Where?" asked the voice.

"Here, here!" shouted Glenn as loud as he could. And pretty soon there was a sound of something coming through the wheat, and there was Henry on the black horse.

The men had come in to dinner and found Glenn missing; so grandfather and Henry had both started out to hunt for him, Henry selecting the wheat field as the most likely place to begin the search. "As soon as I saw that stick standing up over yonder, I felt sure you were in here," said Henry. "What did you set it up for?"

"Why, that is to mark the white guinea's nest. I found it, you know," said Glenn, feeling very contented now upon the black horse in front of Henry.

"Well, I'll declare!" exclaimed Henry. "It was worth getting lost to find that, wasn't it?"

And Glenn said yes; he guessed it was.

Henry and Glenn visited the nest later and found thirty-four eggs, of which grandmother gave Glenn as many as he wanted. But you may be sure he never tried to walk through the wheat field alone again.—Catherine Masters, in Epworth Herald.

AS THE CROW FLIES.

Johnny Wheelan looked at the little side gate hanging on its hinge and wished very hard that he hadn't tried to swing on it. Father had told him not to, and Johnny had meant to swing but a minute; but he had taken only one or two rides when, ker-plunk! down came the gate, dragging its top hinge right out of the post.

Father would be sure to ask him how it happened. "Look here," Johnny said to himself, "that hinge must have been just barely holding on or it wouldn't have pulled out so quick. I'm not that heavy!" and having persuaded himself that this comfortable excuse was true, Johnny went around to the front porch, where his father was reading the evening paper. "What are those black birds, father?" Johnny asked presently, as a long-winged line of birds crossed the yard above the treetops.

"Crows," answered father. Don't you know a crow when you see him, John?"

"I know 'em when they're close," said John. "Where are they going, father?"

"Wherever it is, they are taking the shortest cut to it," answered Mr. Wheelan. "They always do. I never forget it, because when I was a little boy like you my father told me I could never be a real man unless my speech was 'as the crow flies'—right straight to the truth, no cutting off corners and going around hard places. We never could fool God, my father used to say; and the only speech that pleased Him was 'as the crow flies.'"

"Father," said Johnny quite suddenly, "I was swinging on the side gate just now, and it broke down."

"That is told 'as the crow flies,'" said father.—Jewels.

PERSISTENT PREACHERS.

By Luther E. Todd.

Let Us Reason together about that proposed $10,000,000 Endowment Fund for the benefit of the Superannuates and the widows and orphans of deceased preachers of the M. E. Church, South. Do we really mean to raise this money, or is our talk about it mere pastime? Are we willing to pay the price for success?

1. The Preachers Must Do It. Not by passing resolutions, discussing plans for its accomplishment, wishing it might happen, or waiting for a few rich men to hand us the $10,000,000. No, it will not come about in any of these ways. But, when every preacher in the Church realizes that this is his work, takes off his coat, rolls up his sleeves, and says "I'm going to see this thing through"—then it will come to pass. It is a matter of distressing need that confronts us. In some cases among our 2000 claimants, it is perilously near a matter of life or death. Whether we want it so or not, it remains true that the Bishops, presiding elders, pastors, and editors of the M. E. Church, South, are faced with the responsibility of liberating our Conference Claimants from the tolls of poverty. Why? Because we are the leaders of the people, and they have the money.

2. The People Must Know. How can they know if we fail to tell them? Once they are made to realize the situation, they will come to the rescue. Our 6000 pulpits must ring clear and strong on

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:

Louisiana Conference—Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., Rev. W. W. Drake, Rev. J. F Foster.

Mississippi Conference—Rev. C. W. Crisler, Rev. J. T. Leggett, Rev. J. R. Jones.

North Mississippi Conference—Rev. W. W. Woollard, Rev. J. H. Felts, Rev. T. H. Lipscomb.

DIRECTIONS.

All checks and money orders should be made payable to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications pertaining to subscriptions and other business matters should be addressed to the Manager, or to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Commnnications intended for the Editor should be directed to him at 512 Camp Street. Correspondents will observe the following rules: 1. Write on only one side of the paper. 2. If you have a typewriter, by all means use it; otherwise, use a good quality of black ink. 3. Leave a space of at least two inches at the top of the first page; leave a margin of at least an inch on the left-hand side of the page; do not crowd the words and the lines together. 4. Take special pains to write proper names correctly and legibly. 5. Use letter paper if you can get it—not note paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after three or four weeks, notify us, and we will make it right.

THE NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

On account of the recurrence of the epidemic of Spanish Influenza, the North Mississippi Conference, which was to have convened in annual session at Clarksdale, Miss., on December 11, will hold only an executive session of brief duration. Only those whose presence is necessary for the transaction of important business will be in attendance, and adjournment will be had at the earliest possible moment.

While all will regret the circumstances which have made this procedure necessary, we must, nevertheless, recognize the wisdom of complying with all the demands of prudence in facing a serious situation. We hope to be able to give our readers a full account of the proceedings of the executive session of the Conference in next week's Advocate.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE PERSONALS.

The Editor of the Advocate was most delightfully entertained in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Baugh. It was a privilege to enjoy the hospitality and Christian fellowship of this elegant home. The presence of "Mother" Baugh added great grace to the occasion. Our fellow-guests were Rev. E. L. Alford, of Centerville, and Dr. D. M. Key, of Millsaps College, both of them most delightful companions.

Rev. J. C. Chambers, the efficient Sunday School Field Secretary, was elected Conference reporter for the daily press. He performed his duty admirably.

Dr. A. J. Lamar, of the Publishing House, was a visitor to the Conference. He was busily engaged in looking after our great publishing interests, but not too busy to extend brotherly courtesies to the Advocate representatives, the Editor and the Publisher. Dr. R. P. Wilson, whose knowledge of books is marvelous, was in charge of the book display of the Publishing House.

Most appropriately, the name of the lamented Professor R. S. Ricketts was referred to the Committee on Memoirs. The name of Professor Ricketts is enshrined in the memory of hundreds of students who were blessed by his gracious influence.

Dr. and Mrs. H. Walter Featherstun were the guests of Mrs. W. B. Mixon, who was a student at Kavanaugh College, located at Holmesville, Miss., during Dr. Featherstun's presidency of that institution. Many former students of this school, which did a great work for education in its day, live in McComb City.

Rev. O. E. Haley, a member of the Indiana Conference of the M. E. Church, who has been engaged in Y. M. C. A. war work, was present as an applicant for admission into the Mississippi Conference.

Mr. W. M. Bule, nephew of the late Major R. W. Millsaps, was present as a lay delegate. He is a worthy successor of his distinguished kinsman in the interest he takes in the work of the Church.

Dr. J. M. Sullivan and Professor George Lott Harrell, of Millsaps College, both of them leading laymen of Mississippi, were in faithful attendance at the Conference.

Mr. C. W. Cochran, of Meridian, accompanied by his wife, was one of the prominent lay delegates present. Mr. Cochran's generous contributions to the work of the Church show how deep is his interest in its welfare.

The Editor had the pleasure of meeting Messrs. J. S. Felder, of McComb, W. H. Felder, R. Z. Felder, and Wyatt Felder, of Summit. They are all loyal friends of the Advocate, two of them having taken it more than forty years, one having been a subscriber for more than thirty years, and the other—the youngest—having been a regular reader for more than ten years. And they all confessed that they have acquired the habit of reading the paper. May their tribe increase!

Dr. T. B. Holloman, who has been a member of the Mississippi Conference for 45 years, modestly asked that he be granted an honorable location at this session. His brethren promptly overruled him, and with expressions of highest esteem and affection, gave him the superannuate relation. Dr. Holloman is one of the most beloved Methodist preachers in Mississippi. He was graduated from Emory and Henry College in June, 1873, and joined the Mississippi Conference in December of the same year. His father gave him the choice of a law course at Lebanon, Tenn., or a medical course at Louisville, Ky., but he preferred the ministry. At various times, efforts were made to induce him to transfer to other Conferences, at least three different churches in leading cities of the South wanting him as their pastor; but he steadfastly declined, preferring to remain in Mississippi. Dr. Holloman has just finished his quadrennium at Crawford Street, Vicksburg. It is probable that he will make his home on the old Holloman plantation on Big Black River, near Phoenix, Miss., where he was born and reared. We promise our readers some interesting communications from Dr. Holloman from time to time.

Rev. H. W. May, presiding elder of the Baton Rouge District, and Rev. Alonzo Early, Conference Sunday School Field Secretary, were visitors from the Louisiana Conference. Brother Early stated that for the present his post office address is Amite, La.

Mr. J. H. Chisholm, prominently connected with the Masonic fraternity of Mississippi, was a visitor at the Conference.

The Conference hosts, Rev. J. Loyd Decell and Rev. A. B. Barry, assisted by an active committee of laymen, saw to it that everything possible was done for the comfort of guests. They were assisted in their efforts by the entire citizenship of McComb, so far as we were able to observe.

Rev. H. P. Lewis and Rev. Ira B. Robertson, the two oldest members of the Conference, now on the "Honor Roll," were present during the sessions of the annual gathering of their brethren. They are greatly beloved by the Mississippi preachers.

The sermon by Rev. Wiley J. Ferguson on Friday afternoon warmed the hearts of the congregation. The close of the service reminded one of "the good old days" when shouting was heard in the land.

Mrs. J. T. Leggett, wife of the presiding elder of the Brookhaven District, is greatly interested in the education of French girls made orphans by the war. She has been in correspondence with Dr. E. O. Watson concerning the matter, and already she has succeeded in providing for the education of six. Mrs. Leggett would be glad to correspond with those who might be interested in this fine form of Christian service. Her address is Brookhaven, Miss.

Rev. M. L. Burton, though not quite as active "on his feet" as some others, is one of the most active members of his Conference when important work is to be done. And he brought with him to McComb a fine list of subscribers to the Advocate.

Bishop Kilgo won the hearts of the brethren by his winsome manner, illuminating questions, vigorous comments and appropriate remarks. The Conference changed one of its standing rules that he might be permitted to deliver the address at the anniversary of the Board of Education on Friday evening.

During the Conference, M. L. White and J. S. Purcell were called home to conduct funerals.

Rev. W. A. Terry, on the second day of the Conference, received word that members of his family were sick with influenza, and requested leave of absence to go to their assistance.

Rev. J. C. Chambers, our Sunday School Field Secretary, in his report showed that he had led an active life during the year. He has traveled 16300 miles, preached 58 sermons, made 120 speeches, delivered 217 addresses, read 45 books and sold 319, written 1562 letters and cards, and had 19 professions of salvation. He has done a great year's work.

A sad event during the session of the Conference was the sudden death of Mrs. C. H. Otken, wife of the late Dr. C. H. Otken, who for many years back was prominent in religious and educational work in the Baptist Church. Mrs. Otken was the mother of Mrs. B. F. Lewis.

We were delighted to have with us during part of our session Rev. H. W. May, P. E. of the Baton Rouge District, Louisiana Conference, and Revs. Alonzo Early, S. S. Bogan and L. I. McCain from his district.

Wives of preachers who attended part or all the sessions of the Conference are Mesdames J. T. Leggett, A. B. Barry, J. L. Decell, W. W. Moore, H. E. Carter, H. W. Featherstun, C. A. Schuitz, H. P. Lewis, E. J. Coker, W. H. Lewis, L. E. Alford, B. F. Lewis, R. A. Sibley, H. P. Lewis, Jr., N. B. Harmon, G. H. Galloway, W. W. Simmons, and T. W. Adams.

One of the inspiring features of the Conference was the early morning prayer meeting, held just before the opening of each day's session. The few who were able to attend it and take part, found wonderful blessings in store for them.

The prayer meeting was the inspiration services held at the Railroad Shops at the noon hour by some of the brethren. More of this kind of work should be done at all our Conferences.

Rev. N. E. Alford of Magnolia, father of Rev. L. F. Alford, was in attendance on the Conference.

Revs. B. W., J. M., and O. S. Lewis took advantage of the Conference's being held in McComb, to visit the old Lewis homestead, where Rev. H. P. Lewis lived with his family for twelve years, and where most of the children were born.

The class of 1889, which was one of the largest ever received into the Conference, celebrated with a banquet on Thursday at the McColgan hotel. Those present were M. L. White, President; H. Mellard, Secretary; P. H. Howse, Treasurer; J. T. Leggett, G. H. Thompson, H. L. Norton, J. C. Ellis, C. W. Crisler, B. W. Lewis and W. H. Lewis. The original class included also W. N. Stevens, M. J. Miller, J. R. Whittington, J. J. Smiley, Harry Brown. The following brethren were guests of the class at the banquet: W. H. Saunders, J. C. Chambers and O. S. Lewis.

The weather during the Conference session was the most ideal we have had for many years.

The spirit of the Conference was spoken of by many of the brethren both in private conversation and publicly as being the finest we have had in years. The preachers testify that the Conference has been a real benediction to them.

One of the preachers, S. B. Watkins, was taken with the "flu" during the Conference session. At latest report he was improving.

Rev. H. B. Watkins was royally entertained by some of his old parishioners from Magnolia on Saturday. He was sick Sunday.

Mrs. Riley, Field Secretary of the Orphans' Home, was in attendance on the Conference.

The Bishop in his closing remarks to the Conference, got into a complimentary mood, and said that if the North Mississippi Conference should measure up to the standard be found here, he could say that the Methodism of Mississippi is the most dependable, sound, solid Methodism in the Church. The Conference broke out in great applause at this statement.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. O. P. Armour, of Houlka, Miss., has sent the Advocate 28 new subscriptions and 12 renewals this year. He writes that he will have a good report at Conference.

Thrift Stamps and War Savings Stamps will make fine Christmas presents this year. They are worth having, they grow in value, and their purchase helps the Government now.

Mississippi has challenged Louisiana and Alabama for the honors of the Red Cross Christmas Roll Call. The goal is universal membership, and the time for the race is December 16-23.

Dr. Jno. T. Sawyer preached at the Louisiana Avenue Methodist Church last Sunday, morning and evening, in the absence of the new pastor, Rev. W. D. Kleinschmidt. He reports having had good congregations and close attention.

According to recent announcement, 1843 chaplains have been commissioned for the army since the war began, and 151 for the navy. Of these, 1403 are Protestants, and 591 Catholics. Included among the Protestants are three Christian Scientists and fourteen Jews.

Mr. C. E. Lagrone, a son of the late Rev. W. S. Lagrone, of the North Mississippi Conference, is a resident of the Crescent City, engaged in the cotton business. He holds his church membership at Parker Memorial. His two sisters are visiting him at present.

Rev. R. H. Harper occupied the pulpit at First Church, this city, last Sunday, morning and evening. The reports that reached us were to the effect that the large congregations were greatly pleased with his ministry, and that the church enters upon the new year with bright prospects.

Rev. I. L. Peebles, who stated in a recent note to the Advocate that he had baptized 37 infants during his 25 days' pastorate at East End, Meridian, desires us to amend his report by putting the number of infant baptisms at 40. Brother Peebles believes in gathering the children into the fold.

Rayne Memorial Church, this city, Rev. U. G. Foote, D.D., pastor, has just closed one of the most prosperous years in its history. It raised for all purposes $19,928—a contribution of about $40 per capita of its membership. This church contributed to the support of the Mary Werlein Mission during the year $2211.50.

Dr. Theodore Copeland, who has been pastor of our church at Pine Bluff, Ark., has recently been appointed to First Church, Texarkana, Ark. Dr. Copeland has served as pastor in New Orleans, St. Louis, Grenada, Miss., Birmingham, and other important cities of the South. He is widely known as a successful evangelist.

The Touro Infirmary, of this city, celebrated its fiftieth anniversary on the evening of Thursday, December 5. We acknowledge the honor of an invitation to be present at the exercises. The Touro is a great institution, which has done a great work throughout its history. We congratulate its directors upon its notable achievements.

It is impracticable for us to make mention in detail of the many brethren who interviewed the Advocate representative at the Conference sessions at New Orleans and McComb City, settling their own accounts and turning in lists of new subscribers and renewals, but we assure them that their kindness is greatly appreciated by both Editor and Publisher. Their expressions of good will and their pledges of hearty co-operation during the year encouraged us mightily.

ORPHANAGE DAY! SUNDAY, DECEMBER 22.

During the recent session of the Louisiana Annual Conference, a resolution was passed requesting the Sunday schools and churches of Louisiana Methodism to observe Sunday, December 22, as Orphanage Day, in lieu of the Work Day, which was to have been observed in October. Of course we realize that many of the churches and Sunday schools have already observed a day of their own choosing, and the returns from many places have been most gratifying. But quite a number of places have not yet observed the day, and we trust that in compliance with this resolution as many of the churches and Sunday schools as possible will observe the time mentioned above.

In view of the tremendous rise in the prices of all articles necessary to life and living, and that we will not be able to run our produce cars as heretofore, every effort to increase the income of our Orphanage will be needed. We feel very sure that our people will rally to this call, and that we will have a splendid showing for this Orphanage Day.

We would remind you, also, that we have 120 children in our home, who look to the good people of Louisiana as their Santa Claus! You have not disappointed them in other years. You will not do it this year.

With happy Christmas greetings to all our friends, I am, Faithfully,

ROB'T W. VAUGHAN,
Superintendent, Louisiana Methodist Orphanage.

Ruston, La., Dec. 7, 1918.

THANKS TO OUR FRIENDS.

We desire to express our thanks to the following friends who have sent us two or more subscriptions recently: Rev. N. G. Augustus, Coldwater, Miss., 8; Rev. E. Nash Broyles, Macon, Miss., 5; T. M. Babington, Franklinton, La., 4; Rev. J. M. Alford, Mangham, La., 4.

IMPORTANT NOTICE—CHANGE OF ADDRESS.

We earnestly request all preachers whose post office address is changed after Conference to send us a card with request to change the address of their paper. Let this card be sure to give the old address, as well as the new. This is very important. We cannot change the address on the paper unless we have the subscriber's request to do so. In any case, it is impossible for us to get the correct post offices from the list of the appointments. Those who want to get every copy of their paper will heed this request promptly.

Isn't This Worth Thinking About?

Suppose five years ago you had $100.00 and have been saving it in some "secure" place, such as the dresser drawer? If you now wish to use it, you still have $100.00. No more—no less.

Had you placed that money in our bank you would now have $116.00 instead of just $100.00, for that's just the amount of interest your money would have earned, without the slightest worry or exertion on your part.

Help your money to grow.

A SPLENDID GIFT TO METHODISM.

The Florida Christian Assembly Association has made a most munificent gift to the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, jointly, in conveying the very valuable property hitherto owned by said assembly, at Enterprise, Fla. This fine gift was made possible by the big-hearted generosity of Mr. James N. Gamble, of Cincinnati, who cheerfully cancelled an indebtedness of $13,500 due him on the property. This kindly deed of Mr. Gamble, a leading layman of the Methodist Episcopal Church, is the most practical and tangible kind of unification that should obtain between the two great churches.

With Lake Junaluska for summer conferences and Enterprise for winter meetings, of many kinds, large opportunities for growing outstanding leaders for both Churches, is now clearly in our hands, and we should use them to the limit of possibility.

J. R. PEPPER, President,
Board of Missions, Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

Obituaries.

Obituaries not over 200 words in length will be published free of charge. All over 200 words must be paid for at the rate of 1 cent a word. Count the words and be sure to send the amount necessary with the obituary. That will save trouble all around. We cannot make discriminations. Memorial resolutions are subject to the same rule as obituaries.

ESTHER HELEN FANT departed this life on October 10, 1918, after a short illness with influenza. She was the beloved young wife of Mr. Weston Fant, of Sparta, Miss. She was a devout Christian, a charming and dutiful wife and daughter. Esther was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Will Parker, and was only eighteen years of age when she passed away to the other and better world. She joined the Church when nine years old. She was always a joy to her father and mother and sister and brothers. Her sister, Lena Ray, went to heaven just three years ago. Esther leaves a father and mother, a devoted husband and three brothers to mourn her untimely going away. But we know where to find her. Let us all so live that we may meet her again "some sweet day by and by."

MRS. W. L. GRAVES.

Montpelier, Miss.

After a short but painful illness from pneumonia, caused by influenza, LEE EARL HOFFPAUIR, second son of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Hoffpauir, passed away from labor to reward on November 8, 1918. He was in the prime of life, lacking a short time of being with us 26 years. Deceased leaves to mourn his loss a loving and devout wife and sweet baby that he dearly loved and idolized, father and mother, two brothers and four sisters. While family and loved ones mourn, they can be comforted, knowing that he left the testimony that he was going to rest in the arms of Jesus. His prayer was for his loved ones, that all might be saved. His remains were laid away in the old home cemetery at Indian Bayou, where a host of his loved ones await the Resurrection morn. He was converted and joined the Indian Bayou Church (under the preaching of Rev. Dan Kelley in 1917), and lived as near his God as was in his power; and if loved ones are only faithful, there will be a happy meeting over there. Rev. George D. Anders, pastor of Indian Bayou, conducted the funeral services. His father,

T. H. HOFFPAUIR.

The subject of this sketch, Lieut. ANDREW HARRY SIVLEY, was 22 years of age. He was the first young man to volunteer his services for his country from Raymond, Miss. He entered Camp Pike on May 12, 1917, and after he received his commission as second lieut., Artillery, he was sent to Waco, Tex., in September, as a reserve officer. Then he was sent to Camp Beauregard and placed with Battery F, 140th Field Artillery as a lieutenant. From here he was sent to Columbia, S. C., Camp Jackson. From there he was sent to Fort Sill, Okla. After his graduation at this place, he was transferred to Mt. Clemmonds Silfridge Field. His commanding officer told him that he had made one of the best records and grades in his studies and practice of any man that had been there. He was killed in an aeroplane accident on the 29th day of October, 1918. Lieut. Oliver P. Jackson, pilot of the same machine, was also killed the same day. Andrew Harry Sivley joined the Methodist Church in Raymond, 1910, Rev. W. A. Terry, pastor. Those who knew him intimately say he was a fine young man in every respect.

J. H. FOREMAN, P. C.

Mrs. ELIZABETH FRANKLIN was born in Virginia in 1836, and came to Lafayette County, Mississippi, with her parents, in 1839. They settled in North Oxford. She was married to W. H. Franklin in 1854, at eighteen years of age. To this happy union God gave twelve children—seven of whom are still living.

It was my pleasure to know Sister Franklin, being her pastor for three years while on the Toccopola Circuit. Most of the time during those three years she spent with her daughter, Mrs. Kate Peoples, in Tula. She was confined to her bed most all the time from November, 1916, to February, 1918. I was in to see her almost every month during her illness. She was always glad to see her pastor and have him read the Bible and have prayer before he went away. She bore her suffering cheerfully.

She was a member of the Methodist Church for more than sixty years. Many hearts in Tula and surrounding community were made sad Sunday morning, February 3, when her spirit slipped away from earth to heaven. Peace be to her ashes. Her former pastor,

T. J. HOPPER.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Whereas the angel of death has visited our Sunday school and the home of one of our stewards, and taken away one of their most precious jewels, little Addye Lightsey, aged six and a half years, youngest daughter of Richard and Lola Lightsey; be it resolved:

1. That we bow down in humble submission to His holy will, knowing that He doeth all things well for those who love and serve Him.

2. That our Sunday school be ever ready to console and cheer the parents and loved ones in their great sorrow, for while she will be missed in the Sunday school and church, she will be missed most of all in the home. We feel sure little Addye is safe in the arms of Jesus. So, dear loved ones, try to live so as to meet her in heaven, where there will be no partings and heartaches.

3. That a copy of these resolutions be sent the family, as an expression of our sympathy, and one to the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication.

Signed: Mrs. E. F. Pruitt, Mrs. Neil.

Let him who would move and vince others be first moved and vinced himself.—Carlyle.

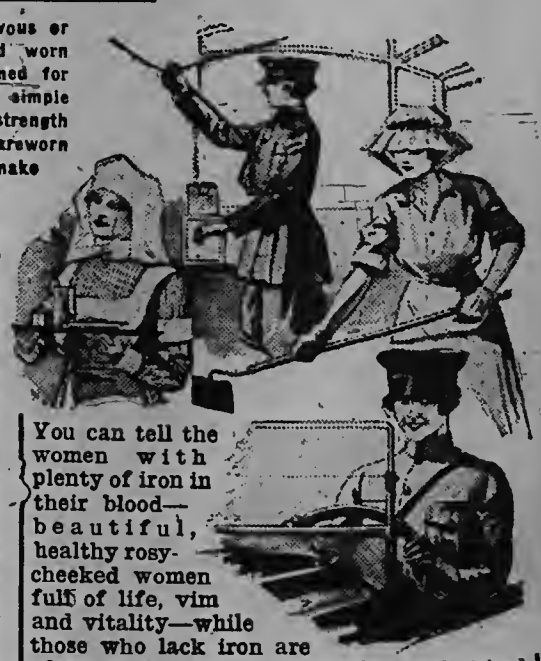
THE MEMPHIS HOSPITAL

YES, the Memphis, Mississippi, North Mississippi and North Arkansas Conferences own and are operating a well equipped hospital in Memphis known as the Methodist Hospital, Lucy Brinkley Annex, with fifty beds devoted exclusively to surgical and maternity cases for women and children. Special terms will be made to the wife or child of a Methodist preacher.



Whatever delays there may have been or may be in the beginning and completion of the new hospital building have been and will be due to the exigencies of the war and our banking facilities and not to the ownership of the Lucy Brinkley Annex. We call upon everyone to send in all past due subscriptions and to talk and work and pray for new ones. We need all the help possible.

Doctor Says Crying Need Of The Woman of Today Is More Iron In Her Blood

TO HELP STRENGTHEN HER NERVES AND PUT COLOR IN HER CHEEKS

Any woman who tires easily, is nervous or irritable, or looks pale, haggard, and worn should at once have her blood examined for iron deficiency. Administration of simple Nuxated Iron will often increase the strength and endurance of weak, nervous, careworn women in two weeks' time and help make them look years younger.

You can tell the women with plenty of iron in their blood—beautiful, healthy rosy-cheeked women full of life, vim and vitality—while those who lack iron are often cross, nervous, irritable, weak, tired, complaining creatures whom nobody wants to have around.

In commenting on the unusual demands being made today of women in every walk of life, Dr. Ferdinand King, New York Physician and Medical Author says: "There can be no healthy, beautiful, rosy cheeked women without iron. I have strongly emphasized the fact that doctors should prescribe more organic iron—Nuxated Iron—for their nervous, run-down, weak, haggard-looking women patients. Pallor means anaemia. The skin of anaemic women is pale, the flesh flabby. The muscles lack tone, the brain fags and the memory fails, and often they become weak, nervous, irritable, despondent and melancholy. When the iron goes from the blood of women, the roses go from their cheeks.

"In the most common foods of America, the starches, sugars, table syrups, candies, polished rice, white bread, soda crackers, biscuits, macaroni, spaghetti, tapioca, sago, farina, degerminated cornmeal, no longer is iron to be found. Refining processes have removed the iron of Mother Earth from these impoverished foods, and silly methods of home cookery, by throwing down the waste-pipe the water in which our vegetables are cooked, are responsible for another grave iron loss.

"Therefore you should supply the iron deficiency in your food by using some form of organic iron, just as you would use salt when your food has not enough salt. But avoid the old forms of metallic iron which may injure the teeth and corrode the stomach and thereby do more harm than good. Take only organic iron—Nuxated Iron.

"I have used Nuxated Iron widely in my own practice in most severe aggravated conditions with unfailing results. I have induced many other physicians to give it a trial, all of whom have given me most surprising reports in regard to its great power as a health and strength builder.

"If people would only take Nuxated Iron when they feel weak, or run-down, instead of dosing themselves with habit forming drugs, stimulants and alcoholic beverages there are probably thousands who might readily build up their red blood corpuscles, increase their physical energy and get themselves into a condition to ward off the millions of disease germs that are almost continually around us. It is surprising how many people suffer from iron deficiency and do not know it."

If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks, then test your strength again and see how much you have gained.

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron which is prescribed and recommended by Dr. King is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city by all good druggists.

Ends Stubborn Coughs in a Hurry

For real effectiveness, this old home-made remedy has no equal. Easily and cheaply prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous old home-made remedy. Anyone who has coughed all day and all night, will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It takes but a moment to prepare, and really there is nothing better for coughs.

Into a pint bottle, put 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Either way, the full pint saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly and tastes pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out and then disappear altogether. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough, and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known as the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

There was never a time when the sacrifices and the help of women were more appreciated than at the present time. Women should learn war-nursing and nursing at home. There is no better way than to study the new edition of the "Common Sense Medical Adviser"—with chapters on First Aid, Bandaging, Anatomy, Hygiene, care of the Sick, Diseases of Women, Mother and Babe, the Marriage Relation—to be had at some drug-stores or send 50c. to Publisher, 654 Washington Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

If a woman suffers from weak back, nervousness or dizziness—if pains afflict her, the best tonic and corrective is one made up of native herbs and made without alcohol, which makes weak women strong and sick women well. It is the prescription of Dr. Pierce, used by him in active practice many years and now sold by almost every druggist in the land, in liquid or in tablets. Send Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., 10c. for trial pkg. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are also best for liver and bowel trouble.

Tryon, Okla.—"I am pleased to have the chance to tell that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription did wonders for me. Last year during expectancy I was so poorly and was getting so weak that I couldn't do my housework until a friend told me of 'Favorite Prescription.' After taking four bottles I was so much better I didn't feel like the same person. Our baby is now seven months old and although he had the whooping cough last winter he weighs nineteen pounds.

"Will advise all expectant mothers to use 'Favorite Prescription' for it did so much for me I am sure it will for them."

RED CROSS ROLL CALL IN THE SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

By Mary L. Stephenson.

The Red Cross Christmas Roll Call is to be ushered in by special Red Cross Sunday on December 15. Thoughout the churches and Sunday schools of our land special sermons will be preached and services will be held calling upon the American people to stand behind the fighting forces in Europe by enrolling to a man in this national organization for military and civilian relief.

With the spirit of the Christmas season and all that it symbolizes in his heart, every member of the church and Sunday school should vie with one another in service. By signing the Red Cross Roll Call you are registering yourself to personal service as well as financial support.

This is an opportunity for all of the children of America to help those less fortunate children of Europe who have suffered at the hand of the Hun. It is an opportunity for adults to reassure their fighting men at the front that all America is behind them; that the people back home are registering a genuine Christmas gift service through the American Red Cross.

A FINE WESLEY BIBLE CLASS.

The Wesley Bible Class was organized in our Sunday school on January 14, 1917, and the name "Baraca" was adopted, with the following as class motto, "No man having put his hand to the plough and looking back, is fit for the Kingdom of God."

Our every effort has been to study the Bible diligently and to fit ourselves for the Kingdom of God. In the spring of 1917 we had 35 members enrolled and do not think that at any time since we organized we have had less than 28 in the class. We always have a fair attendance and much interest is shown, as the lessons are always very intelligently explained in lecture course by our beloved teacher, Mrs. W. P. Burbridge, who has done so much for the church and town.

The officers of the class have done their part nobly. The class president, Mr. Wm. H. Price, has done much for the uplift of the class. It was through his efforts that the class adopted a French orphan, and besides the one we have, he has placed 14 others in the different homes of the good people of Alligator.

We are looking forward to next year's being the best year of our class.

Wonderful Egg Producer.

Any poultry raiser can easily double his profits by doubling the egg production of his hens. A scientific tonic has been discovered that revitalizes the flock and makes hens work all the time. The tonic is called "More Eggs." Give your hens a few cents' worth of "More Eggs" and you will be amazed and delighted with results. A dollar's worth of "More Eggs" will double this year's production of eggs, so if you wish to try this great profit maker, write E. J. Reefer, Poultry Expert, 9259 Reefer Building, Kansas City, Mo., who will send you a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic for $1 (prepaid). So confident is Mr. Reefer of the results that a million-dollar bank guarantees if you are not absolutely satisfied your dollar will be returned on request and the "More Eggs" costs you nothing. Send a dollar to-day or ask Mr. Reefer for his free poultry book that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry. —Adv.

OUR SHARE IN THE WORLD'S WORK.

By H. Croom Armour.

As each one of us steps out into the arena of the world's progress, we have a share in the work of the world. Whether our share be large or small, if we attend to it well, and work with a strong mind and a strong spirit, we will be a success in our share. The men and women who set out to do their share to the best of their ability are bound to come to a glorious success in the end of life's journey.

If a merchant, on going into business, makes a resolution to himself that he is going to buy and sell goods as well as he knows how—in fact is going to win his business to the best of his ability, he has done his share in the great world's work, provided he lives a consistent Christian life behind his business. In fact, if a man does the thing that he starts at well and with a vigorous spirit, he does his share well.

Now, there is such a thing as a person's doing his share wrong, or, in other words, making a failure. A man can start in at any business he chooses, but it rests with him whether or not he will make a success of it. There are plenty of failures of this kind in the world to-day: a failing merchant, a falling preacher, doctor, lawyer, mechanic, and countless others. They have failed in their share of the world's work.

But the greatest share that can come to any of us is to lead a pure, consistent Christian life to the end of our days. That is the share that awaits all men, and is now calling for more reeruits. A minister has the greatest privilege in the world to share mostly in the great world's work, that of saving the souls of humanity. He is kept in touch with God and the Infinite more than any other living being.

A man growing old looks back over his life and comes to the conclusion that he has not made good use of his share in the world's work. He has not lived a Christian life, has not made a success in business—in fact, has been a complete failure in all his undertakings. He will go down to the grave with his share left undone. It is both our duty and privliege, dear reader, to take up his share and attempt to make a success of it.

Another man, also growing old, looks back over his past life and decides that he has accomplished great results in his share of the world's work. He has lived a consistent Christian life, has done well in his business affairs—in fact has been a complete success in life. He will pass into life eternal with the knowledge that he has fulfilled his share well in this world. A crown of glory will be placed on his head in the other world.

So is the difference in people and their shares in this old world of ours. Some do them to the very best of their ability, others drag on through life, caring not whether they perform their works well or not.

In the end, I would say that success is waiting every man or woman who does his share of the world's work well and to the very best of his ability. He should be treated with respect by everyone.

Houlka, Miss.

END STOMACH TROUBLE, GASES OR DYSPEPSIA.

"Pape's Diapepsin" makes sick, sour, gassy stomachs surely feel fine in five minutes.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach, headache, you can get relief in five minutes by neutralizing acidity. Put an end to such stomach distress now by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder caused by food fermentation due to excessive acid in stomach.—Adv.

LETTERS FROM RHEUMATICS.

Possibly you have imagined that you could not get your own consent to write a testimonial letter, but if you have ever experienced the excruciating pains of rheumatism you can at least appreciate the feelings of those who have been relieved of this terrible disease by drinking the Mineral Water from the justly celebrated Shivar Spring. This water overcomes many diseases, including Indigestion, Gout, Uric Acid Poisoning and Liver and Kidney diseases, but no patrons of the Springs are more enthusiastic in their praise of the water that those who have been relieved of their rheumatism. Hundreds of letters like the following have been received by the Management:

Dr. Crosby, a South Carolina physician, writes: "I have tested your Spring water in several cases of Rheumatism, Chronic Indigestion, Kidney and Bladder troubles and in Nervous and Sick Headaches and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time will give permanent relief. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the Liver and Kidneys and Bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisoning matter."

Dr. Avant of Savannah writes: "I suffered for years with a most aggravating form of Stomach disorder, and consulted a number of our best local physicians, went to Baltimore and consulted specialists there and still I was not benefitted. I had about despaired of living when I began using Shivar Spring Water, and in a short time I was entirely relieved."

Mr Rhodes, of Virginia writes: "Please send me ten gallons of Shivar Spring Water quickly. I want it for Rheumatism. I know of several who were relieved of Rheumatism with this water."

Editor Cunningham writes: "The Water has done me more good than any medicine I have ever taken for Rheumatism. Am entirely free from pain."

Mr. McCann of South Carolina writes: "My wife has been a sufferer from Rheumatism and after drinking twenty gallons of your Mineral Water was entirely relieved of the horrible disease."

Mr. Carter of Virginia writes: "Mrs. Carter has had enlarged joints on her hands, caused by Rheumatism. Shivar Spring water removed every trace of the enlargement. The water is simply excellent."

WHAT IS THE USE OF NOISE?

A great steamer was just ready to begin its journey. It towered above the dock so high that it seemed like a building on deep foundations, immovable. People went in and out as they would go in and out of any large structure. They could not tell from the feeling under their feet whether they were afloat or ashore. Silent, massive, motionless, in the midst of the music of an orchestra, the chatter of good-byes, the hurry of belated baggage trucks, the ponderous ship rested. Dock hands hauled away a few gang planks; one or two sections of railing were slipped into place; men and women crowded together on the wharf so far below the steamer decks that they could hardly be separately distinguished by their friends on board. For a few seconds sounded a deep, hoarse blast of steam; then without sound or commotion of any sort the great vessel moved out of its narrow berth on its seaward journey. No clang of bells, no shouting of orders, no clatter of engines. Every man that took part in managing the machinery or guiding the ship knew just where to be and what to do. Somewhere a directing mind spoke the final word and everyone respected it without question.

A few small boys gathered on a field to play ball. They talked loudly on the way. Every one had instructions to give to everyone else. They all wanted to decide everything. Even though they had leaders they did not feel satisfied to follow. So the game went on. An umpire was chosen, but was hardly allowed to settle matters. Finally disputes arose. Loud talk grew louder. The game broke up in a turmoil of charges and counter-charges. Everyone seemed to think that the more vigorously he shouted about what had happened the more clearly he would prove that he was right. Yet they all came out to have a good time, and they thought they had it.

I have heard it said of a preacher that the less he had to say the louder he shouted. Some people underline a great many words in their letters so as to make sure that there is emphasis enough. The letter shouts at you in many places.

Do you think the big steamer would have got away any more successfully if a dozen officers had all been screaming themselves hoarse giving orders? Yet the orders were all given. Don't you think that while noise may be useful as a danger signal, it is something we could much better get on without if we only tried?—Selected.

Don't think because you have taken many remedies in vain that your case is incurable. Hood's Sarsaparilla has cured many seemingly hopeless cases of scrofula, catarrh, rheumatism, kidney complaint, dyspepsia and general debility. Take Hood's.—Adv.

Coughs Worse at Night

The simplest and quickest wsy to get rid of a wearing, racking night cough, tickling throst, hoarse, wheezy bresthing is to take

Foley's Honey and Tar.

In it, you get the curstive influence of the pine tar snd other hesling ingredients, togethef with the mollifying and laxstive sction of honey.

Editor C. T. Miller, Cannelton, Ind. (Enquirer) writes: "I was troubled with bronchial affection and coughed constantly day and night. I took Foley's Honey and Tar and got reliel. It is great for bronchial colds and coughs." La grippe and bronchial coughs, croup, hoarseness, tickling throat, are all quickly relieved.

It often requires courage to turn back when we have taken a wrong step; but it is easier to turn back after the first than after the second or third, and much safer and pleasanter.—Exchange.

REVIVAL AT LOUISVILLE, MISS.

Rev. Dan E. Kelly, Conference Evangellst, has just concluded a two weeks' meeting at Louisville. Notwlthstanding the inclement weather, the revival was a real revlval. At several of the services the large, new Methodist Church would hardly accommodate the crowd. Brother Kelly was here six years ago and held a great meeting. The numerous frlends he made at that time were his enthusiastic supporters in this meetlng. Hls sermons were scholarly and dellvered with that fervor characterlstic of the man. The Spirit was ln the meetlng and in the man. Many reconsecrated themselves to the Lord and pledged for greater service. Some twelve or fifteen joined the Church. We are glad Brother Kelly came, for our Church has been revived and the whole town made better.

Brother Carlyle will again go to Conference with a clean slate—every financial Church obligatlon wlll be reported pald in full.

Yours very truly,
JOHN RUNDLE.

REHABILITATION OF OUR WOUNDED.

The United States Government ls resolved to do its best to restore every wounded American soldier and sallor to health, strength, and self-supporting activity.

Until his discharge from the hospital all the medlcal and surgical treatment necessary to restore him to health ls under the jurisdictlon of the military or naval authorities, according to the branch of the service he is ln. The vocational training, the re-educatlon and rehahlitatlon necessary to restore hlm to self-supporting activity, ls under the jurisdiction of the Federal Board for Vocational Educatlon.

If he needs an artlficial limb or mechanical appliance, the Government will supply it free, wlll keep it ln repair, and renew it when necessary. If after his dlscharge he agaln needs medical treatment on account of his disabality, the Government will supply it free. While he is in the hospital and while in training afterwards the soldier or sailor wlll receive compensation as if ln service and his family or dependents will receive their allotment.

A wounded soldier or sailor, although his disability does not prevent him from returning to employment without tralning, can take a course of vocatlonal tralning free of cost and the compensation provlded by the warrisk lnsurance act will be paid to him and the tralning will be free, but no allotment will be paid to his family.

Every Liberty Bond holder who holds his bond ls keeplng up a part of thls great work of restoring to health, strength, and usefulness the men who have suffered for their country.

Uric Acid in Meat Clogs the Kidneys

Take a Glass of Salts if your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers you—Drink More Water.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys ln their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull mlsery in the kidney region, sharp pains ln the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue ls coated and when the weather ls bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sedlment, the channels often get sore and lrritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three tlmes durlng the night.

To neutralize these irritatlng acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful ln a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stlmulate sluggish kidneys, alsb to neutralize the acids in urine, so lt no longer lrritate, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot lnjure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.—Adv.

Obituaries

Mr. DAVID ALDRIDGE died on August 31, 1918, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Carl Lehmann. He was buried at the old home where he had lived all his married life, and where so many of his children lie sleeping, awaiting the final resurrection. Mr. Aldridge had been sick a long time. He was carefully nursed by his wife and daughter, his sons and his neighbors. But death cannot be cheated of the dust that is his portion. We thank God that he has no claim on the immortal soul. We know our loved ones still live beyond the tomb. Mr. Aldridge was well liked by his neighbors. He joined the Church when he was a very young man; and during his last illness he said he was not afraid to die.

He was one of our few remaining "old Confederates." He married Miss Lou Ducker in 1864. There were nine children born to them. Mr. David and Mr. Boyd Aldridge, and Mrs. Lehmann are the only ones who survive him. He is survived by twleve grandchildren. We sorrow for them all, and for his lonely wife. Seldom have we seen such tenderness shown as she bestowed upon him in his last illness. May God be with and comfort the bereaved ones. A FRIEND.

Stampley, Miss.

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.

Whereas our Heavenly Father in his infinite wisdom has removed from our Missionary Society one of our most beloved members, Mrs. C. K. Jones; therefore be it resolved:

1. That we have lost one of our most loyal workers and the Methodist Church one of the most consecrated members.

2. That a life so pure and full of usefulness will be sadly missed.

3. That we extend our deepest sympathy to the grief stricken loved ones, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family and to the Missionary Voice and the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication.

Signed: Mrs. J. C. Sumner, Mrs. C. M. Haynes, Committee.

RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas God in his providence has seen fit to remove from our midst Mrs. Fula Phillips Jones, whose earthly pilgrimage has ended, a valued and useful life, one whose memory we delight to honor: Therefore be it resolved, that we the Pelahatchie Methodist Sunday School endorse the following:

On October 17, 1918, her spirit winged its way to the heavenly repose. She had been identified with the Sunday school from childhood, and had served loyally and lovingly in every capacity, the last of which was teacher of a junior class of boys. Her's was a strong and valiant character and for those who knew and loved her best, she had a wealth of affection that gave itself out in loving words and deeds.

In the untimely death of our dearly loved member, our school is deeply bereaved, and each member does condole and truly sympathize with the loved ones. We commend them in this hour of trial to our Heavenly Father who doeth all things well.

Be it resolved finally that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the husband, Brandon News, and New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication.

Signed: Mrs. Robt. Pennington, Mrs. O. W. Knight, Mrs. Jesse McLaurin, Committee.

RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, God in His divine wisdom has seen fit to take from our midst our beloved friend and co-worker, Mrs. Victor Smith, and whereas the earnestness and zeal of this devoted servant of the Church, and friend of the Missionary cause, have proved a blessing and an inspiration to us; therefore be it resolved:

1. That we the members of the Missionary Society of the Methodist Church of New Albany, with sorrowing hearts, bow in submission to the will of the loving Father who has only called her to dwell with Him in that house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

2. That we extend to bereaved husband and children our heartfelt sympathy and that we pray that they may feel the comforting presence of our Christ who has wept over human sorrow.

3. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, that they be spread on our minutes, and published in our County paper, and in the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Signed: Mrs. T. E. Marshall, Miss Corrinne Rogers, Mrs. Alma Coker, Committee.

IF YOUR CHILD IS CROSS, FEVERISH, CONSTIPATED.

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated, cleanse little bowels with "California Syrup of Figs."

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.—Adv.

"MORE EGGS" PAID THE PASTOR.

"I've got more eggs than I ever did in my life, paid my debts, clothed the children in new dresses, and I paid the pastor his dues. I have money to spare now. "More Eggs" is the remedy for me. I sold 42½ dozen eggs last week, set four dozen, ate some and I have 1½ dozen left." Mrs. Lena McBroom, Woodbury, Tenn.

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, discovered the wonderful tonic "More Eggs" that revitalizes the flock and makes the hens work all the time. This remarkable egg producer means big poultry profits for you. Don't delay. Send a dollar to-day to E. J. Reefer, 3259 Reefer Bld., Kansas City Mo., for a package of "More Eggs." Or better yet, send him $2.25, and he will send you three packages of "More Eggs" tonic prepaid. This is a season's full supply. A Million Dollar Bank guarantees that if you are not absolutely satisfied your money will be returned on request without question. So send either a dollar, or $2.25 to-day for this wonderful egg producer. Or write Mr. Reefer for his FREE Poultry Book that tells the experience of a man who is helping a great many people make money with their poultry, and who, himself, has a made a fortune out of the poultry business.—Adv.

RESOLUTIONS OF APPRECIATION.

To the Fourth Quarterly Conference, Wiggins Charge, Seashore District, in session assembled:

Whereas under the general polity of the Methodist Church a time limit of four years' consecutive service at any one charge is placed upon the pastorate; and

Whereas, our beloved pastor, Rev. J. L. Sells, has served such limit as pastor of Wiggins charge, and at the end of the present Conference year will leave us for other fields;

Therefore, be it unanimously resolved by the conference:

That during the four years' pastorate of Brother Sells he has acquitted himself with honor and has gained the love and esteem of the people, not only of his own membership, but that of the community at large, the church having been strengthened spiritually as well as built up in numbers and financial support;

That we are glad to testify that his ministry here has resulted in much good to the membership and to the community at large; that his devotion and evident sincerity have resulted in the elimination of sectarianism and united the people of our community in the service of our Lord and Master;

That we regret that it is necessary for him to leave us and go to other fields, and wish it were possible for him to remain as our pastor indefinitely, but that our loss will be others' gain, and we wish for him broader fields and much success;

That these resolutions be placed upon the minutes of this conference, and a copy be presented to Brother Sells, and one sent to the official organ of the Church for publication.

Respectfully submitted,
S. S. MINCY,
J. F. ROBINSON,
J. W. McKEWEN,
Committee.

BLOOD POISON IS SNEAKING.

It steals upon you in the most unexpected manner. Beginning with a mere scratch of the skin and aided by the careless touch of a pair of dirty hands the slight wound becomes infected, festers and spreads. Blood poison sets in and unexpectedly the entire body is affected. Too often it proves fatal. Don't be foolish. Take care of yourself. The application of Gray's Ointment in all cases of cuts, burns, scalds, bruises, stings, sores, whether large or small, will put a stop to any possible chance of infection and blood poison. Telephone your druggist, or write W. F. Gray & Co., 806 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn., for sample.—Adv.

HORN LAKE CHARGE.

Dear Brother Carley: Please allow me space in your paper to report the work and progress of the Horn Lake charge. The writer was transferred from the Western Virginia Conference September 9, and reached here September 14. I found lots of work to do and a people ready to assist, so we launched our campaign. We found that no money had been raised or subscribed on the Conference claims, but at this writing I feel safe in saying that we will have 100 per cent on all claims, and if we do, this will make two full reports the writer will make this year.

This charge will raise during the last three months near $1200 for all purposes. Through the kindness of Mrs. Murry, the parsonage has been given a fine Jersey cow. The writer also secured a two-acre lot for a new parsonage site. This was given us through the kindness of Sister Murry and her stepdaughter, Sister Halbert. May God bless these sisters for their remembrance of the preacher's home.

We serve a fine people; they have co-operated with the pastor in all of his plans and we will, no doubt, make the best report this charge has made in several years. The outlook is good for this charge. In the future, you will hear great things from this people. We have five Missionary Societies, three Seniors and two Juniors. We always enjoy the presiding elder's visits; both people and pastor love him. The Advocate is read with pleasure by most of our people and we hope next year to put it in every Methodist home. Yours in Christian love, C. T. BARTON, P.C.

Drink Castalian Springs Water

It is a wonderful corrective for Malaria, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Enlargement of the liver, Torpid liver, and all kinds of kidney trouble. Pleasant and effective. Buy it by mail, or spend a few pleasant weeks at the Spring. Address Castalian Springs, Durant, Miss.

Try It! Substitute For Nasty Calomel

Starts your liver without making you sick and can not salivate.

Every druggist in town—your druggist and everybody's druggist—has noticed a great falling off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason. Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.

"Calomel is dangerous and people know it, while Dodson's Liver Tone is perfectly safe and gives better results," said a prominent local druggist. Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle costs but a few cents, and if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, you have only to ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no biliousness, sick headache, acid stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like violent calomel. Take a dose of calomel to-day and to-morrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work! Take Dodson's Liver Tone instead and feel fine, full of vigor and ambition.

this cry for justice. The Bishops should lead the way. Pastors everywhere should not only speak out on the subject, but also publish and distribute literature to their people that they may understand. Editors of the Church press should take advantage of every opportunity to tell the story of the great need, and call the people to meet it. When the whole truth about our old heroes is sounded through the Church as it should be, the dollars will flow into the Endowment Fund like rivers into the sea. Let the people know!

3. Is This Fair? I heard a preacher say recently: "The only way I can get my Conference Collections in full is to lump the whole business and make the Conference Claimants the burden of the call." It is my opinion that the assessment for the Claimants should be taken by itself, and all the money subscribed thereto should be reported therefor. If there is more than enough to pay the assessment, let the surplus be sent direct to the Board of Finance for the Superannuate Endowment Fund. It is certainly not just to allow the deprivations of the old, worn-out preachers to serve as a springboard to reach full payment on the other calls of the Church, however worthy they may be.

4. Another Special. Come with me through Table Number Three of your Conference Minutes: there are several columns marked "Special." Very good. I have no complaint. The Church should be taught to contribute "specials" to Foreign Missions, Home and Conference Missions, Church Extension, and all the others. But I ask, in all justice, don't you think it about time to ask our great Church also to contribute "specials" to the Conference Claimants? Especially is this true in the light of the pitiful amount it is now able to pay its Claimants from the money received on the assessment for their support. Just think, if every pastor in the connection would raise a "special" each year for the Claimants, and would send it direct to the Board of Finance for the Superannuate Endowment Fund, what a vast amount of money could be raised in this way. No one would feel the strain of giving, and no other call of the Church would be hindered. The Claimants would soon begin to know that something had happened in Zion, by the increased figures of their pay checks. When we make this possible for them, we will also help ourselves when we stand in their places—and some day we will, whether we think it now or not. I tell you, preachers, it is our task. Let us go in and do it.

5. The Attitude That Kills. I visited a certain Annual Conference, where incidentally I received a bit of information that was most depressing. A presiding elder in naming the men from his district for the various quadrennial Boards, failed to nominate a certain man for the Conference Board of Finance who had been doing splendid work on the old Joint Board of Finance. The explanation given was that this man had become so efficient that he deserved a place on a more important Board. When I heard this, I felt the first pang of real discouragement grip my heart since I accepted the place as Secretary of the Board of Finance. If this work is to be held lightly, and of less importance than any other work the Church has in hand, then certainly it is not a task that any red-blooded man would desire to work at. That presiding elder acted without due consideration. If the preachers, all of them, do not believe in their own cause to the point of unfailing loyalty, it will be practically impossible to influence others to believe in it. The surest and quickest death for any program is to inspire in those who are expected to work it, a feeling that it is unimportant.

A REPORT FROM KILMICHAEL, MISS.

Dear Advocate: Some weeks ago when the glad tidings came from across the sea that the armistice had been signed, which indicated that "Our Boys" would soon return to dear mothers' arms, the hosts of good folks in the city of Kilmichael gathered together immediately, not on the streets with brass bands and horns and tin pans merry-making, but at the Church of God, irrespective of church affiliation, on bended knee honoring and praising God for such a victory over autocracy. We had addresses from quite a number of the representative citizens, followed by an inspiring sermon on a very appropriate subject by the Rev. Mr. McCue, who is principal of the great Montgomery County Agricultural College of this city. It was indeed a great occasion.

Yesterday, Thanksgiving Day, was indeed another great day for Kilmichael. The citizenship of the community gathered again at the Methodist Church to thank and praise the God of Love for such goodness and mercy as has followed us all along the way. Oh, what a glorious meeting we had! Inspiring talks from men and women and this followed by a sermon from Rev. E. M. Vance, who held our revival meeting here for us, made the day an eventful one for Kilmichael.

We have had 73 additions to the Church and a great revival in the Church here. Praise the dear Lord for it all. W. V. SHEARER.

Hyomei

THE BREATH of the FOREST

THAT KILLS CATARRH GERMS.

While lecturing in London, the noted Richard T. Booth, founder of the Blue Ribbon movement, and temperance orator and leader of international fame, who induced over a million men to sign the pledge, developed a very serious catarrhal trouble.

He went to Inland Australia, where he breathed day and night the antiseptic balsams as given off by the forests, especially the Eucalyptus trees. This experience led Mr. Booth to the discovery of the most wonderful catarrhal treatment.—Hyomei.

Hyomei is a germ killing vapor treatment formed from the purest oil of Eucalyptus combined with other healing and antiseptic ingredients. This medicated air is especially effective in treating Catarrh and colds of the head, Catarrhal Coughs, Bronchial Catarrh, Spasmodic Croup, Catarrhal Laryngitis or Hay Fever. It destroys the catarrhal germs and restores health.

Sold on a positive guarantee of satisfactory results or money refunded. Complete outfit $1.15; extra bottle inhalant 60c. At druggists or by mail, if your druggist cannot supply it. Booth's Hyomei Co., Ithaca, N. Y.

ATTENTION! Sick Women

To do your duty during these trying times your health should be your first consideration. These two women tell how they found health.

Hellam, Pa.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female troubles and a displacement. I felt all run down and was very weak. I had been treated by a physician without results, so decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial, and felt better right away. I am keeping house since last April and doing all my housework, where before I was unable to do any work. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is certainly the best medicine a woman can take when in this condition. I give you permission to publish this letter."—Mrs. E. R. CRUMLING, R. No. 1, Hellam, Pa.

Lowell, Mich.—"I suffered from cramps and dragging down pains, was irregular and had female weakness and displacement. I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which gave me relief at once and restored my health. I should like to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies to all suffering women who are troubled in a similar way."—Mrs. ELISE HEIM, R. No. 6, Box 83, Lowell, Mich.

THE PERILS OF DEMOBILIZATION.

By Rev. E. H. Dutton.

One of these perils is that many of the men, whose nobler impulses have been stirred by the war, may under the relaxations of demobilization determine upon a selfish life, with false objectives. Realizing this danger, the Y. M. C. A. in the home camps has sounded in its religious program a message of warning, and the Gospel challenge in view of the wide open doors and unmeasured need, to a career of unselfish service.

Among the means employed in the campaign are life-work addresses weekly in each "Y" unit by qualified Christian leaders; stereopticon lectures showing the conditions in the lands of the allies which call for unselfish service; life-work pamphlets setting forth the Christian ideals; a comprehensive plan for recruiting for Christian callings, under a committee representing the Federal Council and the Y. M. C. A. together.

Another peril is one that puts special obligation upon the churches. The peril is that the communities into which the returning men enter will be inclined to coddle or pamper them, to encourage them in indulgence or even license, as a sort of reward for military service—thus bringing about the undoing of many. It is for the churches to warn the communities against this peril, and see to it that the returning men are met with the challenge to live at their best, hold high the fine traditions of the service, and transfer the spirit of unselfish life dedication that took them to the front to the huge tasks of social and economic construction that face us. This would go far to secure the moral results of victory and establish the new Christian civilization which, as Secretary Daniels says, is the only adequate compensation for the investment and agony of these terrible years of strife.

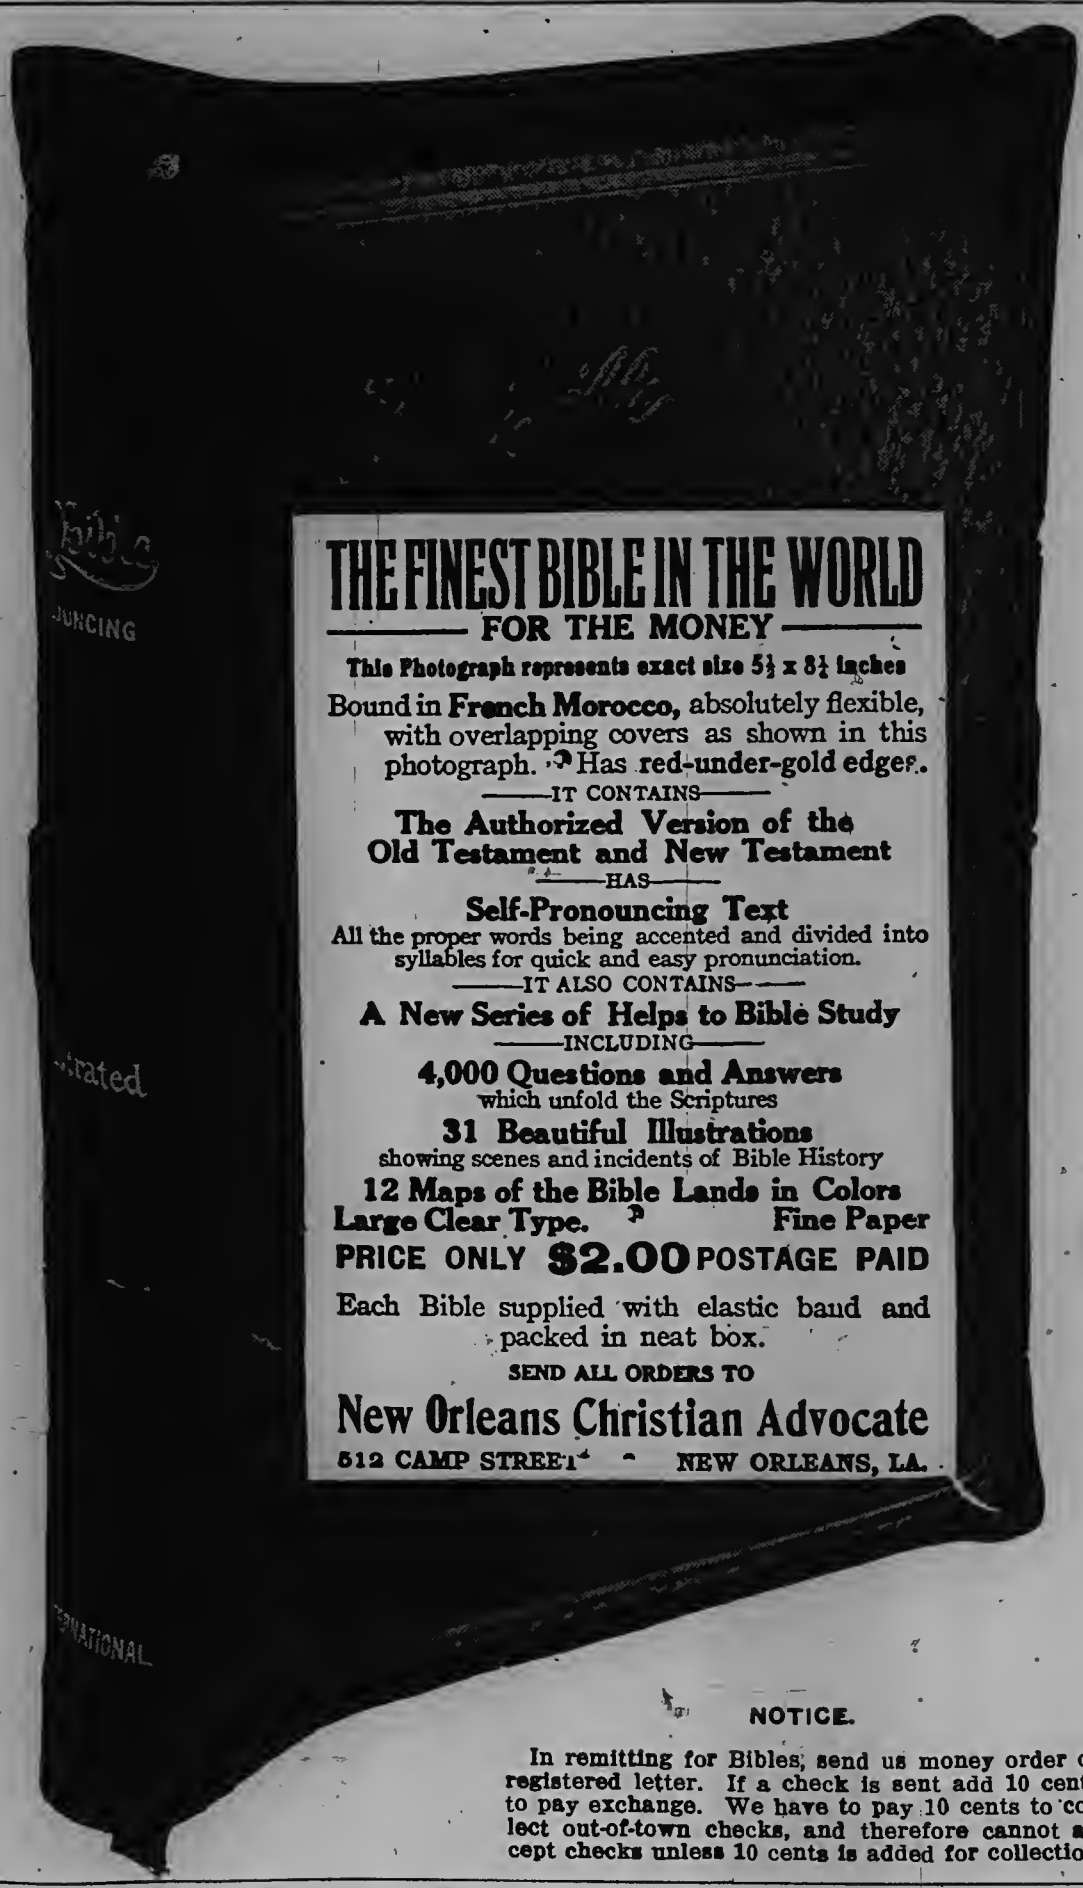
Sage Tea Darkens Hair to Any Shade



Don't Stay Gray! Here's a Simple Recipe that Anybody can Apply with a Hair Brush.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Adv.

A NEW EPIDEMIC.

With the cessation of hostilities the Red Cross is called upon to combat a new epidemic, originating this time within its own ranks. The affliction is known as "I'm-thru-enza."

The initial symptom is a sense of lassitude—a feeling of "What's the use? It's all over. Why should I work?" Steps are being taken to isolate the germ—also those who are carrying it.

The epidemic is not widespread; nevertheless an effort is being made to stem its advance.

"Cold feet" is a marked symptom. Another indication of the presence of the germ is forgetfuiness (that the boys are still over there). The victim, as a rule, cannot concentrate the mind (on knitting). The sight becomes impaired (can't see to sew). The ears become affected (can't hear the appeals of hundreds of thousands of refugees who must be clothed, fed and housed). Heart doesn't beat as it used to, and in advanced stage that organ apparently turns to stone.

A vaccine consisting of equal parts of tincture of I-won't-quit and Red Cross spirits, a dash of patriotism and a pack of pep is effective.

160 Hens—1500 Eggs

Mrs. H. M. Patton, Waverly, Mo., writes: "I fed two boxes of 'More Eggs' to my hens and broke the egg record. I got 1,500 eggs from 160 hens in exactly 21 days." You can do as well. In fact, any poultry raiser can easily double his profits by doubling the egg production of his hens. A scientific tonic has been discovered that revitalizes the flock and makes hens work all the time. The tonic is called "More Eggs." Give your hens a few cents' worth of "More Eggs," and you will be amazed and delighted with results. A dollar's worth of "More Eggs" will double this year's production of eggs, so if you wish to try this great profit maker write E. J. Reefer, poultry man, 6259 Reefer Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., who will send you a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic for $1.00 (prepaid). So confident is Mr. Reefer of the results that a million dollar bank guarantees if you are not absolutely satisfied, your dollar will be returned on request and the "More Eggs" costs you nothing. Send a dollar today or ask Mr. Reefer for his free poultry book that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

HAPPINESS THROUGH KINDNESS.

Life for some is a hard and weary journey. From the cradle to the grave many must grapple with overwhelming odds. Those of us blessed with health and vigor should occasionally think about this truth; and if we know that it lies within our power to make lighter such a person's burden, we certainly should do so and we would realize a deep happiness through our little act of kindness. Whatever efforts we make to give somebody else happiness and good cheer will come back to us in boomerang fashion a hundredfold.—Ex.

THE DAY FOREVER NEW.

By Rev. S. J. Davies.

Once more in chastened joy we lift our head
And breathe a prayer of gratitude to God,
Once more to the King of Peace, our Blessed Christ.
His natal Day on earth, we celebrate,
And all the glad earth sings with praise,
For Him, to Him, Lord and Prince forevermore.
A new, fair hope now dawns and breaks
O'er all the erstwhile saddened sons of men—
That ne'er again shall war's red scourge
Fall in murderous ruin upon the race,
Bearing in its wake famine gaunt, and sorrow
Such as never yet was known in all the Past.
Oh, Fair Christmas Joy, bring surcease soon,
And fill the hearts of all with fresher hope.
Ring out, glad bells, anew, this Christmas-tide;
Let all the hills and vales echo on and on;
Sing all the choirs, let one great shout of praise
Acclaim that Peace doth reign now
And pray it shall be without end.

Amen.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

By Rev. J. R. Countiss, Conference Secretary.

The forty-ninth session of the North Mississippi Conference was condensed into the space of thirty-six hours and held in tabloid form. Owing to prevalence of influenza in the city of Clarksdale, the citizens there asked that only an executive session be held and the Bishop and his cabinet decided to call together only those whose presence was essential to the transaction of the business of the body. About sixty were in attendance.

Bishop Kilgo held the Conference for the first time and made a most favorable impression upon all. He dispatched business rapidly without consuming time in urging others to hurry. No measure was rushed through without giving opportunity for every one to understand its merits, though there was little disposition to give extended discussion to any question brought up. Both constitutional measures received majority votes, but each lacked the requisite constitutional majority. The vote on granting laity rights to women was 19 for and 11 against; that on making a change in the creed was 23 for and 8 against.

All resolutions and measures affecting the program for the next Conference year were duly presented and passed. The new Boards were organized, the undergraduates who had completed the course of study for the year were advanced, and all the disciplinary questions answered except those involving statistics. The secretaries were instructed to enter these in the records after they have been made up from the reports of the preachers. Owing to the short notice given of the changed plan for holding the Conference, some of the pastors failed to get their reports into the hands of the secretaries during the Conference. A full list of the answers will be furnished the Advocate as soon as possible.

Luther H. Floyd, Nathaniel J. Golding, Seamon Rhea, Carl F. Oakes and Jesse F. Watson were admited on trial. S. W. Bryant, A. J. Henry, W. R. Lott and A. F. Moore were admitted into full connection, and were also ordained deacons. E. C. Driskell was ordained as a local deacon. W. D. Bennett, W. N. Dodds, A. T. McIlwain and Guy Ray were elected elders and received ordination at the hands of Bishop Kilgo.

J. W. Robertson was elected deacon, but was prevented by illness from being present at the ordination service.

J. W. Bell, James Porter and A. H. Williams were placed on the superannuate list, while A. W. Langley was assigned to active work after having been for one year on the honor roll, though he has supplied a charge while ostensibly resting. Brother Langley finds rest in work and recreation in service.

The Centenary Movement was represented by Secretaries Neill, Onderdonk and Way. The amount allotted to the Conference was $883,284.10, but the brethren voted to make it a round $900,000 and elected Rev. B. P. Jaco, Conference Missionary Secretary to direct the raising of the munificent sum. He enters upon his work with joy and zeal, and if energy and faithful service count, the enterprise will "go over the top." He is not without experience in such fields, having served two quadrennlums in the presiding eldership and one year as Commissioner for Grenada College.

Rev. T. M. Brownlee was continued as Commissioner of Grenada College and it is hoped that the necessary funds for the new building being erected at this institution will be provided as the work progresses. It is being pushed with a view to having it ready for the opening of the next session. Rev. R. H. B. Gladney was re-elected Sunday School Secretary, those having charge of that interest feeling that his success quite justifies the outlay. L. P. Wasson was elected Conference Secretary of Education.

The next Conference goes to Aberdeen, where it will be held in one of the best of the new churches in its bounds. Rev. J. J. Brooks, who rounds out fifty years of service with the fiftieth session of the Conference, was asked to preach the semi-centennial sermon, and the Secretary was instructed to prepare a special edition of the Minutes for the meeting. It is hoped to make it a valuable historical pamphlet.

The appointments appeared to please the preachers quite as well as they usually do—even better. The Bishop was reported as being entirely fair and patient in the cabinet and disposed to give the utmost consideration to the recommendations of the presiding elders. Owing to the number of men from prominent churches engaged in war work, it was inevitable that there should be some striking promotions. Though not related to the prophets, I venture the forecast that the "boys" will more than make good. Some matters are learned only in the school of experience, but the man with college and university training is usually an apt pupil, seasoned and well balanced for his age.

The Conference was a blessed season for those of us who could attend. We sadly missed the affectionate fellowship of those not present, especially when we came to the memorial service for the noble seven who would never meet with us again in the flesh, W. S. Harrison, W. C. Lester, S. M. Thames, H. C. Morehead, C. R. A. Brantley, J. C. Park and W. S. Lagrone—when the roll is called up yonder, they'll be there, though now they have fallen on sleep.

GOD IS NOT FAR.

By Ralph S. Cushman.

God is not far!
Some time, with every one of us, an evening star,
Or desert's vast expanse, or sunset's hush,
Or, it may be, a child's cry,
Or maiden's love-born blush,
Or, just as soon, impending battle's awful roar,
Though near, though far, throws wide the door
Where God is found;
And in that strange hour of holy fear
Is born that sweetest consciousness of all,
Dear God, that Thou art near!

A MATHEMATICAL MYSTERY

By A. D. Batchelor.

In one of His most significant parables Jesus propounds a mathematical mystery. He tells us that one is more than ninety-nine; that this is the way it is computed in heaven; that the inhabitants of heaven estimate one repentant sinner as outnumbering ninety and nine righteous persons. This was a perplexing problem as submitted by Jesus to his contemporaries. It has some perplexity for the world today, but it lends itself to a simple solution when submitted to clear Christian thinking.

At once it leads to the general theorem that the primary purpose of the Church is not to serve itself, but the man outside the Church. The parable points out two classes—the righteous and the lost. Now the question may be asked in all sincerity, Upon what class should the Church center its attention? Is the Church to be a pink-tea organization where social intercourse eclipses a real gospel program with its spirit of evangelism? Is it to be a club to further friendship and fellowship? Is the Church to be loaded down with organizations which consume our time and overtax our strength, and which have to do with work chiefly among ourselves? It is possible to focus the attention and work of the Church upon ourselves so that we shall asume that the Church exists for us alone. In such case we propose a problem that mystifies heaven, that is, that ninety and nine righteous persons exceed one repentant sinner.

The key to the solution of this problem may be found in a question—which has the greater need, the ninety and nine or the one repentant sinner? Jesus said it was the sick, not the well soul who needed a physician. The well man is better off without pills and powders. If the parable teaches us anything, it is that we are to be modest and humble in our claims of divine attention, and that the person who truly requires it is he who is lost. He who is "peeved" when the Church does not pay him as much attention as he thinks he is entitled to, is dull in gospel figures. If he had learned his gospel lesson well, he should see that he belongs to a common multiple, a vast searching party, in fact, which exists in the interest of the lost. And when once this is seen, the mystery of the spiritual life is solved. For all who see that one is more than ninety and nine, lose sight of themselves as the center of the Church; and see themselves only as fractions in a common Christian integer.

In undertaking the task of solving this problem the Church undertakes something that no other organization has dared attempt. It takes men without credentials. It interests itself in the man who is down and out. It invites men whom lodges and other organizations will not admit. It seeks men for its society and fellowship who are without reputation. It extends a welcome to a scarlet woman, to the degraded drunkard, to the prodigal son, and to all others who have nothing to bring except their sins and sorrows. It is the only organization in all the world which is bold and charitable enough to undertake such a thing. In this it stands alone as a unique institution. It is a door of hope to the discouraged, a refuge to the erring, a shelter for the sinner, a chance for the outcast, an opportunity for the prodigal. Other societies ask how much a man is worth, or how respectable he may be, when he knocks at the door for admission. But the Church cares not for genealogies or pedigrees or references. It concerns itself with only one thing—is there any who desire to repent? Then let him come and find salvation.

The parable of the lost sheep furnishes a forceful illustration. It recalls the attitude of society toward the shepherd. He was an outcast. Tending sheep was considered the most despised of occupations. Herodotus tells us that in Egypt they were not permitted to mingle with civil society, nor to appear in the worship of the gods, nor would the very dregs of society have matrimonial relations with them. They were also in Jesus' day under the ban of Rabbinism on account of their necessary isolation from religious ordinances; for their manner of life rendered strict legal observance unlikely if not impossible. It is not without significance, therefore, that Jesus used the parable of the shepherd in his phrasing of the mathematical mystery that one is more than ninety-nine.

This difference in the application of this parable by Matthew and Luke is noteworthy. Matthew uses it to convey a lesson in humility, to show that through self-exaltation we may stand in the way of others, and thus cause them to perish. But Luke applies the parable not only to the lowly, but also to the low, to the low-down, if you please: to the man who is lowest down. In his book entitled "The Man Farthest Down," Booker T. Washington records this significant sentiment. He says he went to Europe not to visit the museums and cathedrals, but to search out the lowest classes in order to compare their state with that of the negroes in America. He went, he says, "not to look for the best, but for the worst." Most people who travel in Europe, he adds, "wants to see what is old or what is dead—palaces, museums, ruins, graveyards. My experience is that the man who is interested in living things must seek them in the grime and dirt of every-day life." Likewise, God went in search of the "man farthest down." And He did so to show the world the fallacy of human views of life and to prove to men the truth of the mathematical mystery that one is more than ninety and nine. It has, therefore, been truly said, the difference between Christianity and other systems of religion is that in the other systems men are seeking God, while in Christianity God is seeking men. This is heaven's way of solving a world-problem. And the process of solution consists in subtracting sin and misery, adding grace and virtue, and multiplying the joy of living.—The Christian Advocate (New York).

PAUL ON MAR'S HILL.

By Rev. J. T. Sawyer, D. D.

Standing on Mar's Hill, Paul uttered these words: "For as I passed by, and beheld your devotions, I found an altar with this inscription, To the Unknown God. Whom therefore ye ignorantly worship, him declare I unto you."

At that time the population of Athens was about 150,000. Five miles from the sea, there was twenty-two miles around it. There were four hills in the city, and also the Agora, or market place, which was crowded with statues and altars. Athens was "full of idols," chief amongst which was Pallas Athene, or Minerva, the goddess of wisdom, whose temple was on the Acropolis. On every hand were statues and temples of heroes and god and demigods; and in the center was the altar of 12 gods. Every god in Olympus found a place in the Agora. The Parthenon—the Virgin's house—contained the colossal statue of Ivory and gold, the unrivaled work of Phidias. Another statue of Minerva, made from the brazen spoils of the battle of Marathon, towered in gigantic proportions above all else in Acropolis, and stood with spear and shield as the tutelary divinity of Athens and Attica. No wonder that Paul's "spirit was stirred in him, when he saw the city wholly given to idolatry!"

Such idolatry as this seems to teach that man must have a god. "The notion of a Supreme Being," says Tillotson, "is as much a part of man's nature as the portrait of Phidias in the shield of Minerva; to obliterate the one you must destroy the other." This idolatry teaches also that men by nature know not the true God, and therefore a revelation is necessary to discover to them the nature and character of the true God. The cultured Athenians felt that there was one God whom they did not know. In Athens, Paul met the philosophers who were not able to discover the true God; and the Stoics and Epicureans could deride the false, but couid not discover the true. It is written: "The world by wisdom knew not God." and "who by searching can find out God?" The Stoics were Pantheists and the Epicureans were Atheists, the one teaching that reason, and the other that pleasure, was the great end of life. Pride and sensuality were the ruling principles of those two schools of philosophy, and neither of them did, nor could they, satisfy the conscience. The few were divided with doubt, while the many, not competent to decide as to the claims of the rival schools, were led captive by superstition and idolatry. Those to whom Paul preached in Athens were utterly without God and consequently without hope.

To that population, thus divided between idolatry and philosophy,, Paul carried that Cross which "was foolishness to the Greeks." To the Epicureans, who were materialists, he preached the resurrection; to the Stoics, who revered reason, faith; and the unknown God whom they ignorantly worshiped, to the masses who crowded the temples of Minerva, Bacchus, and the rest. With great tact, Paul spoke of their being very religious and therefore the more willing to hear him who spoke of religion. He also referred to the popular poets of whom they had heard, and of whose genius they were proud. His conversions, however, were very few in Athens, which teaches us that the most convincing arguments, finished tact and splendid scholarship are of themselves not sufficient to convert the soul. It is written: "Paul may plant and Apollos may water, but God giveth the increase."

We learn from the account of Paul on Mar's Hill, and his sermon there, that the exlstence of God is proved by the universal aspirations of mankind, and that pure reason and highest culture are insufficient to meet the claims of conscience. Christianity alone reveals the one true God; and Christ crucified and "able to save unto the uttermost all who come unto Him," is to be preached the round world over wherever man is found. May the Holy Ghost in saving power be given to every preacher of the Gospel!

SKETCHES OF THE FRENCH MISSION FIELD.

Prepared by Miss Ella K. Hooper and Mrs. L. M. White, Council Workers.

IV.

What the Woman's Missionary Council is Doing.

The three-fold need of the French Field, evangelistic, educational, and financial, is being met, but in a limited and inadequate way. For the 61,000 inhabitants of the two parishes, our Church has but three regularly appointed pastors, part of the Superintendent's time, and two mission workers sent by the Council. Financial aid is being given both by the Mission Boards and by individuals, and will be given in increased amounts as the Church becomes acquainted with the conditions requiring it. The people here also contribute to the extent of their ability and enlightenment, but much more is needed than is now being received. The educational need is met, in part, by the public schools and by Sunday schools, where it is possible to maintain them; but these, as they are now, barely touch the urgent necessity for enlightenment.

The work of the preachers I shall leave for them to relate, and write more particularly of our own efforts to meet the deep, pungent needs as we find them.

The strength of the Church is in its Christian homes, and the spirit of the home is determined by the women. It is, therefore, deeply essential, in any mission field, to reach and elevate the mothers and daughters as well as the fathers and sons. It is also true that the lives of the women are much more meager, bare, and circumscribed than the lives of the men, and they are often harder to reach. This is no less true of certain portions of southern Louisiana than of China or other foreign lands, and it became our mission to supplement the work done, and being done, by the preachers with something more specifically for the women and girls.

Friendly visiting, assistance rendered in sickness or trouble, club classes, Sunday schools and missionary societies are all being used as powerful factors in enlarging and ennobling the lives of those who take such joy in them all. In order to get a more intimate touch, a home has been established in Houma, the center, called the MacDonell Home. An effort is made to make it as nearly as possible an ideal Christian home, simple, comfortable, and attractive in appearance, with Christ honored as the head. Here, as frequently as may be, our people are entertained for one or more days and others stop in for a little visit when they come to town. We thus become better acquainted, one with the other, and lessons in sanitation, in Christian living, in the preparation and service of meals, and other important features, are learned more easily and thoroughly than could otherwise be possible.

At various times, we have had in the home five different girls who lived with us and attended the public school. These girls receive careful instruction in housekeeping, cooking, and other industrial arts, as well as Bible training and the opportunity for an education. This work with the girls is the most thorough and satisfying. They learn rapidly, and, when they return to their homes, can accomplish so much more than we could ever do working from the outside.

There are many girls, members of our Church, some who have never been to school, all in need of religious and industrial training, who are eager for an education and who should be trained for the leadership that is so greatly needed in this work. We are looking forward to the enlargement of this phase of our work and to the establishment of a real school providing literary, industrial, and religious training for our girls.

THE DRIVE TO VICTORY.

By John R. Mott.
Director General of the United War Work Campaign.

The campaign is over and the result is the largest sum ever provided through voluntary offerings in the history of mankind. When the unfavorable circumstances which attended this great effort are borne in mind, the result becomes all the more remarkable. No great campaign was ever preceded by such a brief preparation. Even the scant two months left for this purpose were cut into for three weeks by the Fourth Liberty Loan, and near the threshold of the campaign itself, by a general congressional election.

More serious still was the nationwide spread of the deadly influenza epidemic, which had a death-toll of twice as many lives as America has laid down in the war. The speaking program had virtually to be abandoned.

The signing of the armistice, which thrilled and absolutely absorbed the minds and hearts of the people, claimed the initial day of the campaign with its spontaneous celebrations. In addition, certain States devoted the following day to a peace holiday. The confused or conflicting statements regarding the policy of demobilization as given out near the close of the campaign constituted another handicap, not withstanding the clear and satisfying deliverances on the subject which were made by the War Department.

In the face of all these and other very real difficulties and handicaps, the fact that the leaders and friends of the co-operating agencies have been able to carry the campaign through with such signal success and favor is nothing less than marvelous and constitutes an event truly worthy of the great days in which we are living and of the great cause for which men have been dying.

Our men are now face to face with the three gravest tests—the test of victory, the test of demobilization, and the test of readjustment. The timely generosity of the American people makes possible the meeting successfully of these trying experiences. We can prevent the period of demobilization becoming one of demoralization. We can make sure that the coming months, with their great vacant spaces, shall be months not of physical, mental and moral weakening for our men, but months of character building, of growth in useful knowledge, of increase in working efficiency, and of preparation for assuming the larger responsibilities of citizenship which await them on their return to their home communities.

To all who have so generously given of their time and effort, from the President and his associates to the humblest giver, the Campaign Committee sends thanks, not for itself but for those to whom the gifts will mean so much in these crucial months, the brave men of our Army and Navy.

ORPHANS' SUPPLY DAY.

A good friend of the Orphanage suggests that in view of the fact that we were not able to run the usual produce cars for the Orphanage this year, that Monday, the 23d inst., be Orphans' Supply Day, and that all those communities that desire to help in the way of furnishing produce or supplies for the Orphanage may do so by collecting together the donations of supplies and shipping them by local freight.

We think the suggestion a good one, and we will be glad to pay the freight on such donations where the freight is not prepaid. We would suggest that all the supplies from any one community be packed in one box, or in boxes weighing not less than 100 pounds each. By so doing the freight cost will be reduced. In getting up the supplies we would ask that only staple articles of food, or clothing, be sent. Please do not send perishables, or worn-out garments that would be of no service. Send syrup (we never get too much), sugar, lard, meal, flour, grits, rice, meat, canned goods of all kinds, corn and hay. Send all packages well marked to the Louisiana Methodist Orphanage.

If all our friends will act on this suggestion, we are very confident that our loss because of the failure to get our cars through will be largely overcome. Already Monroe and West Monroe have sent splendid donations of supplies, and we are sure that other communities will do likewise.

Thanking our good friends for their interest and help, and wishing for all a happy Christmas, I am,

Faithfully,

ROB'T W. VAUGHAN.

DECEMBER 22, A DAY OF PRAYER FOR THE PEACE CONFERENCE.

By James S. McGaw,
General Field Secretary National Reform Association.

The Christmas season this year will mean more than any the world has ever known. The joys of the occasion will be heightened by a new vision of human brotherhood and the independence of the race. The contemplation of a world freed from the cruel bondage of autocracy and brute force will give a larger view to the advent of the King of kings and a profounder concept of the song of the angels: "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace and good will to men."

While the devout of all lands adore the Child in the manger they will praise the King upon His throne who has proved himself a Prince and a Savior to the nations of the earth. It ought to be a season of special prayer for the establishment of permanent peace on the earth.

The cruel carnage of the battle front is ended, the victory won by the bravery of men and the prayers of God's people. The greater battle of Christian world reconstruction is now to be fought and must be won in the same way.

The Versailles Conference will be for some months the front line trench in the "Battle for Peace." The future of the world for weal or woe trembles in the balance. Every moment of the Conference sessions will be grave and critical. The warning uttered by David Lloyd George is exceedingly timely: "The mistakes you might make through entering on peace without preparation would be even more disastrous than the mistakes you might make through entering on war without preparation. You will give shape and direction to things. Though the world will be molten at the moment, it will cool quickly and the shape you will give it will remain. If your mould is not the right one, you cannot possibly set things right without a convulsion that would break it." "Are we to lapse into the old national rivalries, animosities and competitive armaments, or are we to initiate the reign on earth of the Prince of Peace?"

Mr. Baker, our Secretary of War, voiced the deepest conviction of all Christendom when he said: "No civilization is worth fighting for that does not have its foundations laid in Jesus Christ."

The need of continued public and private prayer is not only apparent but extremely urgent. That the moral values of the world war, purchased at appalling cost, may be conserved, that brave men may not have suffered and died in vain, it is most fitting that wherever, under the American flag, a religious service is held on December 22, the people of God unite in earnest prayer for the Peace Conference: that the Holy Spirit may guide in its plans and deliberations, that in all its sessions Jesus Christ may be made the "Master of Assemblies," that a reverent acknowledgment of Him as the Prince of Peace may have its pre-eminent place in the final compact, and that the principles of His Kingdom may be made the standard for the solution of all problems and so imbedded in all the written conclusions as to guarantee world peace for all time.

RECONSTRUCTING OUR SOCIAL FABRIC.

The world's wisest man cannot foretell what the morrow has in store for the nations, but even the ordinary man can foresee some very radical changes in the government of men and in the whole social organization. The war has done more to quicken the pace of reform and reconstruction than probably two hundred years of peace, for the war has revealed, as it never was revealed before, the menace that lies in secret diplomacy, the maintenance of ruling castes, and the enslavement of the common people, regardless of whether that enslavement was dignified by the name of patriotism or not. And the world has seen this pseudo patriotism faced by the real patriotism of free lands, and the ordinary man has risen to the occasion in such a way as to give to democracy a new wealth of meaning, and to reveal in it a strength and a power which many had formerly denied. The war has exalted democracy and glorified it and strengthened it to an extent deemed impossible before.

And in the days which lie just ahead we shall have to readjust our commercial life, our social life and our national life in accord with the revelations which the war has brought. It has been clearly manifested that the truest safeguard against Bolshevism, only too truly called the Red Terror, lies not in the intellectual and social enslavement of the masses, but in their complete intellectual and social emancipation. And it seems to be fairly well demonstrated that the more fully the common people are liberated from all forms of social injustice the more firmly founded will be our social structure. Injustice, unfairness, oppression, have a strange knack of pulling down the fortunes, the castes and the nations which build upon them, and this lesson the war is even now writing in letters of blood.

In the social reconstruction which must surely come it seems certain that every form of special privilege, whether in Church or State, will be closely scrutinized, and neither legal sanction, long-established custom, nor even ecclesiatical necessity will be able to protect it. The great battles in France and Flanders are settling very much more than the destinies of imperial houses or the boundaries of a few petty States; they are settling the future of democracy and they are making certain the gospel of the square deal for all. The common man, the "Nobody," is coming to his own, and it will be better for the world when he does. The "Somebodies" have had their day, and it has been a long one; but the "Nobody" sees his day dawning, and some hundreds of millions of him naturally rejoice.

At this juncture what shall the Church do? A few voices cry "Stand pat," or "Leave it alone," but the Church of Jesus Christ, the biggest democracy in the whole world, feels a strange thrill running through its whole being and it cannot keep quiet. For nineteen centuries the Christian Church has been the champion of the "down and outs," the pioneer of equal rights, the fearless exponent of the "square deal," and now, facing a new era, it faces it, not only without fear or doubt, but with a ringing "Hallelujah!" "Zion heard and was glad."

It is a mistake to imagine that the men who have profited by the existence of special privilege, the men of learning, the men of high position, the men of abounding wealth, stand selfishly opposed to the enfranchisement of their fellows. It is not so. There are exceptions, of course; there are men who do not care what becomes of the underdog so long as they remain top-dog; but these men are few. The majority of our learned men, the majority of our men of exalted rank, and the majority of our wealthy men are not so far dehumanized as to be lost to brotherhood, and under the banners of Christian democracy to-day we find the high and the low, the rich and the poor, fighting shoulder to shoulder. What helps one helps all, what hurts one hurts all. And this is the message of our Church to-day, as will be found in some of the resolutions of our General Conference which we published last week.—Christian Guardian (Toronto).

CHURCH STATISTICS.

By Rev. John W. Ramsey.

Rev. H. T. Young, La. Conference Evangelist, recently called in question some of the statistical claims of the Baptists, to which Dr. V. I. Masters, superintendent of publicity of the Home Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Church, demurred. The figures given by Dr. Masters represent the Baptists as having considerably the advantage of the Methodists in numerical strength. Brother Young obtains his figures from Dr. H. K. Carroll, a well known church statistician, who has made a special study of the subject, and who, for years, has been the official statistician of the Federal Council of the Churches. Dr. Masters goes to the Government Census for his information, and, therefore, to the casual reader, the more reliable source. But the question is, is it more reliable? This is the pivotal point upon which hinges the whole question of difference between Brother Young and Dr. Masters. So, then, let us consider for a moment the reliability of the two sources, for it makes all the difference in the world from which spring a man drinks.

If my memory serves me aright, the last Religious Government Census, if not the preceding one, was taken by mail. That is, the Census Bureau mailed blanks to all pastors whose addresses were obtainable by the Census officials, requesting that the blanks be filled out and returned. The reliability, then, of this method adopted by the Government depends altogether upon whether the Census officials secured the correct addresses of all pastors, whether no omissions were made by clerks in mailing out the blanks, whether each pastor returned the blank with each question thereon accurately answered, and whether the various questions of the Census blank were easy or difficult to answer. I can state that a half dozen blanks were mailed to me before I finally filled one out and returned it, and when at last I did so I am certain the figures were not exact, but only approximations. It is almost certain that many pastors did not return them at all, and it is positively certain that few, if any, of them were accurate. So, we may safely conclude that the Government Census of Religious Statistics is exceedingly unreliable.

On the other hand, Dr. Carroll has for years made a study of Church statistics and is, therefore, a specialist. Besides, as I understand it, he goes directly to the original sources for his figures. That is, he procures his comparative statistics from the official year-book of each Church, which is as accurate as such things can be made. Now, which should necessarily be the more dependable—the Government Census or the statistics of Dr. Carroll, a specialist? [illegible] I prefer the specialist who knows his business. The fact that the Government publishes a [illegible] is no guarantee of its exactness. In comparing Government statistics and rejecting those of Dr. Carroll, the burden is upon Dr. [illegible] to prove the correctness of Dr. Carroll's statistics and to substantiate the accuracy of those of the Government, and this I deem an impossible task. I shall welcome his doing either, but preferably the latter. What I want is the statistical truth—let it be established who will or the other.

The Centenary—A Big Task for Big Times

By Rev. W. W. Pinson.

It is time for great ventures. Business talks in big figures. We no longer hear of thousands—millions is the unit. The Government builds ships in whole fleets. Congress once voted a billion dollars and the country threw up its hands. Now we vote twenty-four billions and nobody voices a protest. The Y. M. C. A. used to talk in terms of thousands; they now talk in millions and get more than they ask. The Red Cross asks for a hundred million at a clip and gets more, with 47,000,000 loyal subscribers behind it. A six billion Liberty Loan goes over the top and beyond.

The Church must keep pace with the times in the spirit of daring. We have been suffering from our littleness. One has said, "The Centenary has come to save us." It is to set before us a task that challenges our strength. Our pettiness has well-nigh strangled us. Now by one audacious venture we are to break away from our outgrown shell and catch the pace of the hour. It is not a question of choice. It is one of necessity. We must meet the challenge of the big world in this big hour, or resign our place of leadership to institutions that are awake.

It is no accident that our Centenary falls at this hour. It is a sign that God, who times events, has honored Methodism with his confidence. He is entrusting us with a big share of responsibility. Hence, he has thrown open a bleeding and needy world to us at the very hour when we are standing on the summit of the century.

THE CENTENARY PRAYER SPECIAL

THE CENTENARY PRAYER SPECIAL PLAN.

Every missionary and native worker, every missionary institution and agency now in operation and those to be projected as a result of the Centenary Movement, should be Prayer Specials.

Every organized group of Methodists should carry a Prayer Special of the kind already suggested. You do not thereby limit your intercession to the one special object, but you assume special responsibility at the throne for one or more objects.

The Department of Spiritual Resources desires to bring this about. Will you help us?

If some group of which you are a member is carrying a "Prayer Special" write and tell us what it is.

If you will take a "Prayer Special" for your Sunday school class, League, mission study class or other group, and have made your selection, write us the particulars.

If you will take a "Prayer Special" for your group, but wish the assignment made by this department, write us indicating whether you prefer a home or foreign special, of what nature, and any other relevent facts. It costs you just a few minutes every day. Address Rev. S. A. Nebiett, 223 Doctors' Building, Nashville, Tenn.

"FIRST OF ALL, PRAY."

EXIT THE DAY OF SMALL THINGS.

Reports from the various annual conference meetings indicate that the day of small thinking and small endeavor is past in Southern Methodism. The whole Church is getting ready for a triumphant period of constructive progress. The Centenary is hailed everywhere with unanimous approval. Not only have the various conference allotments been cheerfully accepted, but in many instances the apportionments have been voluntarily increased. Individual "big gifts" are being continually volunteered. Everything promises the complete attainment of the $35,000,000 goal.

A New Era in Central Texas.

At the Central Texas Conference two pledges aggregating $25,000 were announced. Mr. R. M. Davenport, of Ranger, Tex., and Mr. Elisha Roper, of Staff, Texas, each pledged $2500 a year for five years. A layman proposed the organization of a THOUSAND DOLLAR CLUB of fifty, himself to be one of the number, who will give a thousand dollars each for five years, a total of $250,000.

This Conference gave half its time to the Centenary program and not only accepted its allotment of more than a million dollars but increased it by $5000 to make an even sum. Rev. J. E. Crawford, the Conference Centenary Secretary, says, "The way is open for a new era in missions in Central Texas. I am confidently expecting it to be ushered in during the Centenary."

South Georgia Will Go Over.

"Certainly South Georgia will go over the top in the Centenary Drive" was the expression heard many times on the Annual Conference floor. This spirit of confident optimism was unanimous. Enthusiasm reached high tide when the Conference not only accepted its allotment, but raised it materially, pledging a round sum of $2,000,000. Rev. George W. Mathews was appointed Missionary Secretary and will devote his whole time to the promotion of the Centenary.

A Conference Chorus of Approval.

The Western North Carolina Conference unanimously accepted its allotment and pledged $100,000 in addition. Rev. Thomas M. Courtney was appointed Centenary Secretary. The session was marked by deep religious fervor. Consecration of life and of means was the keynote of Centenary Day.

The story from the Louisiana Conference is much the same. Great interest was manifested in the Centenary. The allotment fixed by the Commission was accepted without a dissenting voice, and $43,000 additional was pledged.

Great enthusiasm marked the action of the North Arkansas Conference, which also went beyond its allotment, pledging $75,000 in addition. Rev. F. S. H. Johnson will serve as Centenary Secretary.

In the Memphis Conference, Rev. W. J. McCoy was appointed Secretary for the Centenary and the full apportionment was unanimously accepted.

A PRAYER SPECIAL

Do you know what it is? Is your Church, Sunday School, League, or Woman's Missionary Society carrying such a Special? Are you interested in the subject? If so, read this story from Brazil, and the Centenary Prayer Special Plan.

THE BRAZIL PRAYER SPECIAL—WHY AND HOW.

The Challenge from Brazil.

Three years ago Rev. W. B. Lee formed a new district, the Carangoia, in Brazil. He did not ask the Board for a number of new missionaries and a large sum of money for building chapels, parsonages and schools, though these were needed. Instead, this is what he wrote to a missionary secretary:

"I want you to ask some Church to take this new district on its heart. There are ten circuits and only five of us to do the preaching and feed the Lord's flock in the midst of a population of half a million people. Churches are taking specials all over the connection to raise sums of money. Please see if you can find a Church with courage enough to undertake this special I am asking for—a Church to help us pray down the power of the Holy Spiprit on my preachers and people."

The Challenge Accepted.

This appeal for a "Prayer Special" was published in the general organ of the Church and read by an elect lady of Memorial Church, Lynchburg, Va., who immediately decided to make that "Prayer Special." Concerning her experience she wrote a few weeks ago:

"The moment I read the appeal I thought, 'I know I have faith enough to take it as a Special for Prayer, and I will ask the ladies of the mission study class to join—we will have a prayer circle.' At the next meeting the members readily consented to pray every day for the work on that district. One of the number has prayed for nearly three years for a mighty outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon the preachers, the elder and the people. There may have been others who took up the challenge, but I do not know."

What this Prayer Special Accomplished.

The testimony of Rev. W. B. Lee, the presiding elder, is very definite on that point. In a recent letter he said among other things:

"The finances of the district are in good shape. Our goal is, 'Every member a contributor and a worker.' In one congregation where there were thirty non-contributors, the number has been this year reduced to five.

"I laid my survey for the district before the Conference and the members took a definite stand to accept the report as a working basis for the next five years. They were of the opinion that we should have a church in Cataguazes costing not less than $5000. I set down forty churches and meeting houses in my survey. There are building projects at seventeen places—money and material subscribed, and in some of these places work has actually begun."

Here are some of the concrete results of this "prayer special:"

Carangola district in Brazil, three years ago undermanned and without equipment, is now in a flourishing condition.

Great plans are being laid for the Missionary Centenary in Brazil and Carangola district is in the van.

Intercession at the home base, brought down blessings on a foreign district, enabling the native Church to make remarkable progress toward self support.

Prayer at the home base raised up workers and contributors in Brazil.

Seven church buildings are enterprised by the native Church.

Spiritual resources expended by a prayer circle here released material resources for God's kingdom down there.

More things are wrought by prayer than we dream of.

CENTENARY NEWS IN CHINESE.

Chinese Methodists will read Centenary News in their own language as the result of work being done in the offices of the Commission of the Board of Foreign Missions. Chinese preachers and students are translating into their own tongue various pieces of literature bearing on the Centenary. Some of this will be published in the vernacular edition of the China Advocate and some in leaflet form for general use. Rev. Philip S. S. Yu, with D. G. Ciu and William Hung are engaged in the work of translation.

The Home Circle

THE RAINBOW FAIRIES.

Two little clouds one summer's day
  Went flying through the sky;
They went so fast they bumped their heads,
  And both began to cry.

Old Father Sun looked out and said,
  "Oh, never mind, my dears;
I'll send the little fairy folk
  To dry your falling tears."

One fairy came in violet,
  And one in indigo;
In blue, green, yellow, orange, red—
  They made a pretty row.

They wiped the cloud tears all away,
  And then, from out the sky,
Upon a line the sunbeams made,
  They hung their gowns to dry.

THE "THANKFUL BOX."

"And may I have one, too, please, Mr. Parsons?" asked a shabby little girl of the Sabbath school superintendent.

"Certainly dear," he answered, giving her a mite-box from the pile on his desk; "are you going to start a Thanking Fund?' "

"Yes, please, sir," said the child, with a smile; and, rolling the box up carefully in her handkerchief she joined a group of smaller children and hurried happily away.

Mr. Parsons sighed as he turned to a visitor. "I always feel sorry for a child like that," he said. "She is so generously ready to give, and I don't suppose she ever has a cent of her own."

"Who is she?" asked the visitor.

"She is a little orphanage girl, and lives with the Marsdens. She has a great deal to do, as there are three or four little Marsdens. She has her board, and is sent to school most of the time; but the Marsdens are poor themselves, and I know they can't pay anything for her work. I can't think," he added, "what she will have to be thankful for."

Meanwhile Jennie trotted cheerfully home with the little Marsdens, carefully carrying the treasured mite-box.

Sitting on the back porch with the baby, she explained to Mr. and Mrs. Marsden the use of a mite-box. "It's a 'thankful box,' you see," she said. "Whenever something happens you are thankful for, you put a cent in the box; it helps to remember your blessings. Then the Sabbath before Thanksgiving the boxes are to be opened, and the money sent to the Little Girls' Home.

"What have you to be thankful for, Jennie?" asked Mrs. Marsden.

"Oh, lots of things," said Jennie, cheerfully. "Why, I've thought of hundreds; but I have not much to be thankful with. I'm thankful to be here instead of at the orphanage; and I'm thankful for school, and Sabbath school, and, oh, yes," she added, with a laugh, "I'm thankful a whole bushel for the baby," and catching the little fellow up, she hugged him until he shouted with glee.

When she left, Mr. and Mrs. Marsden talked it over together. "I wish we could do more for her," said Mrs. Marsden; "she's such a cheerful, helpful child. I do not know what I should do without her. Do you think we could afford to pay her some small amount regularly, no matter how little?"

"I'm afraid not," answered her husband. "It's such a struggle, as it is, to keep us all fed and clothed."

"I'll tell you what we can do," Mr. Marsden added, after a few minutes' thought: "she could have the windfall apples. She could easily sell them for cooking, and I might fix her up a garden bed. She doesn't have many pleasures."

So it was settled, to Jennie's great delight, that she was to have a garden, and the thrifty little woman at once decided to plant in it something that that she could sell. She had twelve cents, saved during the sppring, and with ten of them she bought two packages of seeds—radishes and lettuce. The remaining two cents went into the "thankful box" in gratitude for the garden.

At her suggestion Mr. Marsden put radishes and lettuce into one of his beds, too, and Jennie cared for them all. How they did thrive! It seemed such a little time until the radishes were ready to pull, tie in bunches, and be taken to the grocer's to be sold. Before the first of July Jennie had sold eight bunches for herself and ten for Mr. Marsden, and had eighty cents, all her own. As for the lettuce, when it became necessary to thin out the plants, it seemed such a shame to throw them away that Jennie put them into boxes and tomato cans and corners of other beds all over the garden.

Of every ten cents received from her garden, she put five into the "thankful box." She would gladly have put in all, but Mrs. Marsden reminded her of several schoolbooks she ought to have next term, so half of her earnings was saved for them.

The lettuce brought her in altogether two dollars, of which one dollar went into the mite-box; and then came the apples. The one tree was large and generous, and the windfalls were many. These Jennie carefully gathered and sold as inferior apples to the grocer. Half of what she received for this went into the box, too, although she was just as fond of candy and pretty things as any other girl of her age.

"I don't put in something every time I'm thankful," she said, when her teacher inquired how the box was getting along, "because I have so much to be thankful for, and so little to be thankful with; but whenever I get my money, I put in half, and save the rest for my books, and I guess I've quite a lot by this time."

The Sabbath before Thanksgiving came and Jennie carried the little box, grown quite heavy now, to Sabbath school. All the little Marsdens went too, full of interest in Jennie's box.

In that box, when it was opened, was $2.37, and it was the largest amount raised by any of the children.

Mr. Parsons spoke about the brave little girl who had been so thankful for her blessings that she had earned the money to be thankful with.

"Please, Mr. Parsons," said Jennie, after Sabbath school, "may I have two boxes for the Christmas offering? Mr. and Mrs. Marsden say they would like to have one, too, because they have so much to be thankful for."

"Mother says she's thankful for Jennie," piped six-year-old Willie, with a smile.

"I do not wonder," said the superintendent, selecting two of the prettiest boxes; "a little girl who sees her own blessings so plainly helps all around to see theirs."—King's Own.

TWO CHEERS FOR THE RED, WHITE, AND BLUE.

I wonder if you have heard this story. It is a true story about some children who live among the mountains in the southern part of our country.

These children have never been away from their own little neighborhoods. There are no books and papers in their homes. If there were, I'm afraid it would not be of much good, because the children couldn't read them. They haven't nice schools to attend as you have always had. It is as if they had been shut up in a pocket all their lives, and so know nothing of the world outside. Missionaries have been sent there; they have opened schools and are teaching these girls and boys to be intelligent Christians and loyal citizens of the United States.

Now for the story!

In one of these schools on Flag Day, they were singing patriotic songs. The children all like to sing; and of all the songs, they like best "Three Cheers for the Red, White, and Blue." On this particular day each child was given a flag to take home. They all waved their flags and joyfully sang their favorite song as they marched off proud and happy to their homes.

Sometime after this the teacher went to visit one of these homes. The children were very happy that she was coming, and tried to show her how well they had learned their lessons. Everything in the little one-room house was clean and orderly.

Exactly in the middle of the room were two chairs with a United States flag lying across them. The teacher was met at the door by the children, who exclaimed:

"O teacher! teacher! won't two cheers do? We ain't got three cheers."

Having always heard chairs called "cheers," they had misunderstood. They thought their song called for three chairs for the red, white, and blue! They had but two, but they had done their best, and don't you think, after all, that was beautiful? The dear old flag had the place of honor in a clean home.—Junior Missionary Friend.

CHRISTMAS.

Have we lost the real meaning of Christmas? Is it a time of joyous celebration of the pivotal event in human history? Do we stop to consider seriously the religious significance of the birth of Jesus, the Son of God, the Savior of men? Are our hearts lifted up with holy joy because of the Incarnation? Does Christ mean more to us because of the annual celebration of his Advent? Are we better Christians, more devoted, more consecrated, more spiritual-minded, after the holiday season has passed?

To the children, Christmas too often means nothing more than the annual visit of Santa Claus with the bestowal of sundry and, in many cases, useless gifts; to the young people, it is largely a time for hilarious merry-making and unrestrained social entertainment; to the business world, it is a time for making money through the sale of any and everything that may be conceived of as a gift; to the epicure, it is a time of sensual enjoyment; to the bacchanalian, it is a time of revelling and carousing; to many parents, it is a season of anxiety and worry because of the expectations of their children; to hosts of people, it is a time of undisguised perplexity because of the financial burdens imposed by the custom of Christmas giving.

We would not suggest that the eager anticipations of the children should be harshly rebuked, or that the general spirit of happiness should be condemned at Christmas-tide. But we do believe that we should redeem this great Christian holy day from its character as a time for promiscuous merry-making. We should look forward to it with religious longing, and celebrate it with spiritual fervor.

THE PRESIDENT'S TRIP ABROAD.

The President's trip abroad is significant in that it calls attention in a striking way to the achievements of modern science. A few years ago, it would have been a serious matter for the Chief Executive to leave the country. He would have necessarily been out of touch with affairs for a considerable period of time. But now, with perfected cable service and highly developed wireless telegraphy, it is merely an incidental matter. The President is in as close touch, practically, with affairs as if he were in Washington. It is true, a tradition has been overthrown—but it might as well be. "The world do move."

THE FIRST QUARTERLY CONFERENCE—QUESTION 3.

"What amount has been estimated by the board of stewards for the support of the preacher in charge (and his assistant) for the present year, and how has it been apportioned to the churches?" is a question to be asked at the first quarterly conference which brings immediately to the attention of the officials of the Church one of the most important matters with which they have to deal. We do not hesitate to say that, in our judgment, the success or failure of the year's work will be largely determined by the way this question is answered.

We do not mean to suggest that our preachers are mercenary in practice or in spirit. History does not record a more self-sacrificing and heroic service to humanity than has been rendered by itinerant Methodist preachers throughout the years. And if need be, they are as willing to-day to endure hardship as good soldiers as they have ever been.

But the need for them to do so does not exist in many cases. Most of our pastoral charges are so organized that they contain enough people in comfortable circumstances amply able adequately to support the man who ministers to them in spiritual things. One of the marvels of recent years is the tremendous increase of the financial resources of our country, especially of the South. And Methodist people generally have shared in the general prosperity.

The support of the ministry, then, is not so much a matter of ability as it is of careful consideration of the needs of the preacher and a generous appreciation of the nature of the service he renders. It is self-evident that no man can give himself with abiding enthusiasm and unperturbed devotion to altruistic service, when those to whom he ministers are so indifferent as to allow him to suffer for the ordinary comforts of life. The average preacher is a man among men to be sure, but he is still a man, and his calling does not, of itself provide him with the things he must have for his manly well-being.

The adequately paid preacher can render a service far more efficient than can be measured by the difference in dollars between a fair salary and a beggarly one. If congregations cannot be brought to look at the matter from any other than a selfish point of view, they ought to realize that the best investment they can make for their own welfare is the guarantee of a comfortable living to their preachers. Especially is it necessary to-day to consider carefully the question of the preacher's support, because the cost of living has become so great. What was enough two or three years ago, is pitifully inadequate now.

Our boards of stewards will show, by the estimates they make of the amounts necessary for the support of their preachers, not only their caliber as business men, but also the range of their vision as leaders in the work of the Church.

The times call for an advance all along the line. It is inconceivable that salaries should be reduced anywhere.

THE OLD GUARD.

We continue to receive letters in answer to our inquiry as to the oldest subscriber to the Advocate. These letters, to us, contain more than information—they contain the Christian testimony of faithful men and women. They are inspiring.

"Dear Brother Carley: At the beginning of the Civil War, I received the Advocate for about one year. Then the war came on, and I heard nothing of it. In 1866, I sent my subscription, and I have received it ever since, with the loss of only a few numbers. It still comes to cheer my lonely hours. I dearly love its sweet companionship, and anxiously look for it every Friday.

"MRS. S. D. DOVE.

"Memphis, Tenn."

"Dear Brother: I began as a subscriber to the New Orleans Christian Advocate in 1876 or 1877, I think, 41 or 42 years ago. I and my wife read it with pleasure and profit. It has been a help in many ways. I will be 75 years old next May, should I live to see it. My work as a local elder in our great Church is nearly closed. I am still in good health. I have received over 500 members into the Church on the works I have served.

"Yours in Christ,

"THOS. J. MARTIN, Sr.

"Ringgold, La."

"Dear Brother Carley: A few weeks ago, you requested the subscribers who have been taking the Advocate for a long time to report same to you. I called my father's attention to your request, and he told me to report to you that he has been taking the paper ever since he joined the Conference, which was in 1857. This makes him a continuous subscriber for 61 years. Your brother,

"H. P. LEWIS, Jr.

"Madison Station, Miss."

"Dear Brother Carley: I have been reading the Advocate for sixty years. I am seventy years of age, and do not have any recollection of the time when my father, T. J. Hopkins, became a subscriber and it began to make its weekly visits to the home of my childhood. I well remember how my mother had a custom of filing the papers from year to year: and woe be to the member of the family that disturbed that sacred file for any reason whatever. My husband, T. J. Porter, was a regular subscriber before we were married, so I found it in my new home. His obituary was published in the Advocate in 1914. I am still taking it—would feel lost without its visit every Friday.

"I was born and reared in Louisiana and lived within her borders until seven years ago, when I came to St. Louis to live with my daughter. Everything here is congenial and pleasant, but I just cannot help longing for the familiar faces and scenes in Dixie. You will not be surprised at the pull on my heartstrings in that direction when you remember that you have my two boys—S. H. in Zwolle, and P. J. in Shreveport. I can call to mind but a small per cent of the members of the Louisiana Conference that I would recognize now, when I used to know and esteem so many of them. All of the old-time, battle-scarred veterans, who loomed up like giants to me in my childhood days, such as John Pipes, Robert Parvin and many others I might mention, have long since gone to their reward. 'Who follow in their train?'

"MRS. T. J. PORTER.

"St. Louis, Mo."

KEEP ON THE MAIN TRACK.

For emergencies, and to meet special needs, a great many sidetracks have recently been constructed along the great highway of the world's progress. They are excellently constructed—many of them—and they serve their purpose admirably. But they are only sidetracks after all. No forward-looking, on-going man wants to spend all his time on them. The sidetracks do not lead to the terminal station, whither we should be bound. Take them occasionally, if need be, but get back soon on the main track.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. R. H. Harper, the new pastor of First Church, New Orleans, is now domiciled with his family at the parsonage, 5830 Prytania Street.

Florida has ratified the prohibition amendment to the National Constitution, making her the fifteenth State to take this action.

Rev. H. B. Alsup, who was appointed at the recent session of the Louisiana Conference to serve the Epworth Church, New Orleans, has reached the city, and is living at 4016 Banks Street.

Central Church, of Columbus, Miss., under the leadership of Rev. T. E. Gregory, made fine progress this year. All assessments were overpaid, and there were 55 accessions to the Church.

According to an exchange, the North Alabama Conference received no invitations for its next session. A committee was appointed to secure a place and determine the method of entertainment.

Mr. Henry Ford, of "flivver" fame, has established a weekly national newspaper, of which he will be editor and publisher. It will be the exponent of Mr. Ford's industrial and social philosophy.

Some of the Mississippi Conference "Personals" in last week's Avocate were written by the Editor, and some by Rev. H. P. Lewis, Jr. This will explain the difference in the point of view of some of them.

Rev. W. W. Holmes and family left New Orleans on Thursday of last week for their new home in Lake Charles. They will be greatly missed in New Orleans, where they have labored so long and so effectively.

The Advocate office was honored by a call from Mr. D. J. Savage, Assistant State Superintendent of Education of Mississippi, on Saturday morning of last week. The Editor regrets that he was not in the office at the time.

We learn from the Alabama Christian Advocate that Dr. H. H. McNeill, the efficient and popular dean of the Seashore Divinity School, has been appointed pastor at Marianna, Fla. His former pastorate was at Demopolis, Ala.

Rev. W. F. Henderson, Jr., who was engaged in Y. M. C. A. work during the closing months of the war, is now serving as pastor at Bonita, La. He writes that he has been given a hearty welcome, and that he is looking forward to a fine year's work.

Announcement has been made that Mrs. Ruth E. Hargrove, widow of the late Bishop R. K. Hargrove, made the Board of Missions residuary legatee of her estate, to the amount of $75,000. Her home was in Pasadena, Cal., where she died last spring.

Active members are essential to the maintenance of the American Red Cross Society. Our membership gives us a share in the great work accomplished and enrolls us as ready for any further work of mercy the world may demand of America.

Rev. J. G. Snelling, the new presiding elder of the New Orleans District, is now in the city, busily engaged in planning for the work ahead of him. He is eminently qualified to perform the duties of his exacting office. His residence is 2317 State Street.

The New Orleans Methodist Preachers' Meeting elected officers for the new Conference year at its meeting last Monday morning. Rev. J. G. Snelling was elected president. Rev. U. G. Foote, vice president, and Rev. A. I. Townsley, secretary and treasurer.

The Government has announced that returning soldiers will be given one month's pay, plus a transportation allowance of three and one-half cents a mile from points of demobilization to their home town. They will also be allowed to keep their uniforms, including overcoats.

The officials of the Louisiana Avenue Church gave their retiring pastor, Rev. A. J. Gearheard, a farewell luncheon last week. Brother Gearheard wrought well during the four years he was at Louisiana Avenue. He is an indefatigable worker and an irrepressible optimist.

The Marietta Circuit, North Mississippi Conference, of which Rev. G. B. Love is pastor, was strengthened by the addition of 30 members during the Conference year just closed. The Advocate goes into 32 homes on that charge. The payment on all assessments is in advance of last year.

Rev. A. I. Townsley, the new pastor of Felicity Church, this city, reached his new field of labor on Friday of last week. He and his family are now occupying the parsonage, 1818 Chestnut Street. Brother Townsley preached to the Felicity congregation at both services last Sunday.

A news service bureau, founded and run exclusively for women, has been organized by the division of the foreign-born women of the Y. W. C. A. It sends out copy in fifteen different languages, so that foreign-born women who do not read English will know what is going on in the country.

Rev. J. B. Fulton, of the Louisiana Conference, received a cordial welcome to his new charge, Franklinton. He and his family were met at the train and escorted to the parsonage, where a warm meal was awaiting them. Brother Fulton preached to attentive congregations Sunday morning and evening.

Rev. W. A. Mangum writes that he reached his new appointment, Bernice, La., on Tuesday of last week. He and his family received a cordial welcome from the good people of that community, who had taken care to supply the pantry with various good things to eat. He is delighted with the outlook for the year's work.

According to the Semi-Weekly Leader, of Brookhaven, Miss., Dr. I. W. Cooper, president of Whitworth College, is being urged by many friends throughout the State to become a candidate for the governorship. In our humble judgment, Mississippi might "go farther and fare worse" in her search for a chief executive.

Prof. R. D. Smart, a missionary teacher in Soochow University, now at home on furlough, has been added to Centenary Missionary force as Secretory of the Centenary celebration at Columbus, Ohio. He will have offices in Nashville, and all matters pertaining to the great Columbus celebration will pass through his hands.

Rev. Alonzo Early, the newly appointed Sunday School Field Secretary of the Louisiana Conference, has already entered upon his work. He was at Natalbany last Sunday, and is now engaged in a tour of visitation throughout the Conference. He spent last Sunday night in New Orleans, with Rev. C. C. Wier, our pastor at Algiers.

As will be seen in the appointments of the North Mississippi Conferenee, which we give on another page, Dr. R. A. Meek, formerly editor of this Advocate, is now presiding elder of the Sardis District. Dr. Meek has had experience in the presiding eldership, in which he made a notable record. He will adorn and magnify his office.

Dr. F. S. Onderdonk, a member of the Centenary team which visited the Louisiana, the Mississippi, and the North Mississippi Conferenees, passed through New Orleans last Thursday on his way to San Antonio. We had the pleasure of chatting with him for a few minutes. He is enthusiastic over the outlook for the Centenary Movement.

Rev. R. H. Bamburg, who was transferred from the Louisiana Conference, at its recent session, to the Little Rock Conference, has been appointed pastor at Sheridan, Ark. He writes that he is delightfully situated. He will continue to take the Advocate that he may keep in touch with his friends in Louisiana.

On Friday evening of last week the Epworth League and the young people of Carrollton Avenue Church, this city, gave a reception in the church parlors in honor of Rev. Jno. F. Foster, who, at the recent session of the Louisiana Conference, was reappointed as pastor of the Carrollton Avenue congregation. The occasion was a delightful one in every respect.

The Christian Advocate (Nashville), in giving the appointments of the Louisiana Conference in its issue of December 13, omitted the New Orleans District. This was due, we are sure, to one of those regrettable but apparently unavoidable oversights that occur in every printing establishment. The general organ is more easily forgiven in this case because it makes so few errors.

Rev. Claude P. Jones is beginning his third year on the Long Beach charge, Mississippi Conference, where he has greatly endeared himself to the people. He has made a somewhat unusual record in that, although he has been a member of the Conference only three years, he has completed the four years' course of study. We remember having heard, or read somewhere, "Where there is a will, there is a way."

We learn from the Vicksburg Herald of December 13, that the members of the Crawford Street Methodist Church of Vicksburg presented to Dr. and Mrs. T. B. Holloman a silver token of esteem in connection with Dr. Holloman's retirement from the pastorate of that church. The presentation was made by Mrs. Mounger Jones. Not only Methodists, but the citizens of Vicksburg generally regret to see Dr. and Mrs. Holloman leave the city.

We regret very much that we were denied the privilege of visiting the North Mississippi Conference. We hoped until the very last that we should be able to go, but a telegram from the pastor, Rev. R. O. Brown, in reply to one from us concerning the situation, informed us that it was inadvisable for us to make the trip on account of the seriousness of the epidemic of influenza. We hope, however, to be able to make a visit to that part of the Advocate territory some time during the spring or summer.

The Chamber of Commerce of Fort Worth, Tex., has issued a statement pertaining to the religious life of that city. Among other interesting items, we note the following: In percentage of members attending church and Sunday school regularly, Fort Worth leads all the cities in the South; the seating capacity of the churches of Fort Worth is, approximately, 69,000; there are ten churches in the city that cost more than $100,000 each; there are 250 ministers living in Fort Worth; religious service is conducted in eight different languages in Fort Worth. We trust that these statements are indicative of genuine piety in that flourishing city.

THANKS TO OUR FRIENDS.

We desire to express our thanks to the following friends who have sent us two or more subscriptions recently: Rev. G. B. Love, Marietta, Miss., 2; Rev. T. E. Gregory, Columbus, Miss., 2; Rev. P. H. Fontaine, Eunice, La., 2; Rev. H. R. McKee, Rose Hill, Miss., 7; Rev. B. P. Fullilove, Walnut, Miss., 7; Rev. Guy Ray, Mashulaville, Miss., 3; Rev. R. T. Nolen, Vardaman, Miss., 2; Rev. H. E. Raley, Meridian, Miss., 2; Rev. J. H. Grice, Vancleave, Miss., 2.

Isn't This Worth Thinking About?

Suppose five years ago you had $100.00 and have been saving it in some "secure" place, such as the dresser drawer? If you now wish to use it, you still have $100.00. No more—no less.

Had you placed that money in our bank you would now have $116.00 instead of just $100.00, for that's just the amount of interest your money would have earned, without the slightest worry or exertion on your part.

Help your money to grow.

WE THANK REV. J. R. COUNTISS.

We are greatly indebted to Rev. J. R. Countiss, the effielent Conferenee Secretary, for the account of the proceedings of the North Mississippi Conference which appear in this issue of the Advocate. When our previously made plans for securing a report of the proceedings fell through on account of the epidemic of influenza, he very graciously came to our rescue, though he was already heavily burdened with his official duties. We assure him he has not only our thanks, but those of our readers as well.

TWO PREACHERS WANTED.

I need two preachers as supplies for works within the Port Gibson District of the Mississippi Conference. One is needed for a country circuit with one railroad point. The people are cultured and used to good preaching. The probable salary is eight hundred dollars, and may be made some more than that with the right man on the field.

Another is needed on a circuit composed of four small railway towns, in line, with extremes about thirty miles apart. Here, too, a good preacher is needed. It can be served without a conveyance, and arrangements might be made whereby a young man in charge of it would be able to attend a high school, though he might not be able to take a full course. The probable salary, with appropriation, is six hundred dollars.

A message came from France bearing the sad news that Lieutenant PIERRE PHILLIPS, son of Colonel and Mrs. H. N. Phillips, died with pneumonia on Oct. 22, 1918. His life was given in the service of his country. Bidding his loved ones good-by, he entered freely upon his duties in the war. He was cordial and friendly and had many friends, who are grieved over his death. Our hearts go out in deep sympathy to his wife and devoted parents, whose aching hearts God alone can comfort. AUNT EMMA.

Greenwood, La.

The subject of this sketch, Brother JOHN H. ALBIN, was born Feb. 10, 1855. He was married twice. From the first union two children survive him; from the last union, a wife and five children survive him. Brother Albin was a true and faithful member of the M. E. Church, South. He was stricken with paralysis on the 19th, and died on the 21st of November, 1918. All that medical skill could do was done to save him, but to no avail. His mortal remains were laid to rest in the cemetery at Sallis, Miss., after funeral services conducted by his pastor. Weep not, dear ones; we shall see him again. Cast your burdens upon Him who doeth all things well; who said, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." His pastor,

Miss SADIE MATHEWS, of Extension, La., was born Dec. 9, 1891, and died Nov. 12, 1918, aged 26 years, 11 months and 3 days. She joined the M. E. Church, South, at Boeuf Prairie in August, 1903, and lived a consecrated Christian life uutil her death. She was a fine character and excellent Christian. She had many friends—to know her was to esteem her. She taught school several years, until failing health caused her to give up teaching. She suffered a great deal, for she was sick many months. She bore her afflictions with patience and Christian fortitude. She leaves a father, a mother, two brothers and three sisters, and a host of friends to mourn their loss. The writer performed the funeral ceremony amid a large crowd of relatives and friends. Our loss is her eternal gain. She will be missed in the home and community, but she has gone to be with God forever.

S. D. HOWARD.

Winnsboro, La.

WILEY G. GRIFFING fell asleep in the arms of Jesus on Oct. 17, 1918. He was born Oct. 2, 1882, and was reared and educated in Mississippi. He selected for his profession the practice of law, in which he made a success. He went to Oklahoma several years ago, and married Miss Eliza McLain in August, 1915. He joined the Methodist Church early in life, and lived a consecrated Christian till his death. He never let worldly affairs come between him and his God. He was a sweet-spirited boy from his childhood. He would always say, "The Lord will watch over us." It was a great shock to us when we heard of the death of our brother, he being so far away from us that we could not be at his bedside. But, oh, how sweet was the message, "Tell mother I died happy!" We all know where to meet him. He leaves a father and mother, five brothers, four sisters, and a wife, and a host of relatives and friends to mourn their loss. We mourn not as those without hope, for we expect to meet him in the far beyond. A SISTER.

Mrs. MARIE HOOD CARTER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Hood, and wife of W. Clyde Carter, died in Forest, Miss., Oct. 23, 1918. She was born in the little town of Allenton, La., July 4, 1898. At the age of 14 years, she was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. She was married to W. C. Carter on Oct. 5, 1917. It was just one year and eighteen days from the bridal altar to her translation to her home on high. Marie, as she was known to all, was a loyal and faithful member of the Church. She loved the Church, and was faithful in attendance on the services. She was devoted to the Sunday school, was always in her place on Sunday morning, and was rarely ever absent from the Wednesday evening prayer meeting. Her loyalty and devotion to her Church were beautiful, indeed. She was "joyful in hope, patient in tribulation," and was "rooted and grounded in love." While she has ascended, yet, in the life of the little one left in the tender care of her devoted mother, she lingers with them to bless the home and give comfort to the sorrowing hearts. Blessings upon them in this sad hour!

JAS. G. GALLOWAY.

Mrs. CLARA THOMPSON HACKET.

The highest encomium that the Master pronounced in all his ministry was in the terse sentence, "she hath done what she could," and one of the most touching scenes in all history is the record of widows weeping as they exhibited the garments so generously made by their benefactress. So it may be written of her whose name appears above. Of a sympathetic nature, she sought to relieve the suffering, and it became the rule of her life to let no day pass without some deed, though it might be small, of kindness to her fellows. For many years she was among the leaders in the work of Crawford Street Church, and in her latter years she has given much of her time to the charities of her city and State. As a leader, she was enthusiastic and capable. In all the walks of life she will be missed. It may truly be written of her, "She did what she could," and her works remain after her.

T. B. HOLLOMAN.

WILLIAM D. GRISHAM was born in Adams County, Mississippi, on December 29, 1845. Here he lived until a few years ago, when he went to Louisiana to make his home with his daughter and his son-in-law. He was married on March 8, 1882, to Miss Minnie Magill, who preceded him to a better world fifteen years ago. Of this union, nine children were born, of whom seven are still living. He died at the home of his daughter on Friday, October 11, 1918, after a sudden attack of heart-failure. We laid him to rest the next day in the churchyard at Pine Ridge amid a group of sorrowing friends and relatives. It was not my privilege to know him personally, but I have before me the records of the Washington Circuit, which show that he was a member of the Locust Grove and Washington churches for many years, and an official most of the time. The records show that he was ever faithful in attendance upon the meetings where his duty called him, and that he was a lover of the Church and of the Christ. What more can be said of any man than that he was faithful in the greatest Cause the world has known? He loved his Bible and he loved the Advocate, and his life measured up to their teaching. He left behind him the evidence of readiness to meet his Maker. Such is not death but the passing to a higher and better life. J. B. CAIN.

WAR SAVINGS STAMPS YIELD OVER 4.55% INTEREST IF BOUGHT DURING DECEMBER.

By Dr. P. H. Saunders,
State Director for Louisiana.

War Savings Stamps purchased at $4.23 during December will pay the investor over 4.55% interest, which is the highest rate of interest received on any security yet issued by our Government, making them the most attractive investment to the public today. They mature in four years, on January 1, 1923, and give both the large, as well as the small investor, an opportunity, not only to help their Government, but to invest their money in safety on an unusually attractive basis.

THE MEMPHIS HOSPITAL

YES, the Memphis, Mississippi, North Mississippi and North Arkansas Conferences own and are operating a well equipped hospital in Memphis known as the Methodist Hospital, Lucy Brinkley Annex, with fifty beds devoted exclusively to surgical and maternity cases for women and children. Special terms will be made to the wife or child of a Methodist preacher.

Whatever delays there may have been or may be in the beginning and completion of the new hospital building have been and will be due to the exigencies of the war and our banking facilities and not to the ownership of the Lucy Brinkley Annex. We call upon everyone to send in all past due subscriptions and to talk and work and pray for new ones. We need all the help possible.

PUBLIC IS WARNED Against Taking Substitutes for Nuxated Iron

Physicians Below Say That Ordinary Metallic Iron Preparations Cannot Possibly Give The Same

STRENGTH, POWER AND ENDURANCE

As Organic Iron—Nuxated Iron

United States Judge Atkinson Gives Opinion

Careful investigation by physicians among druggists and patients has revealed the fact that there are thousands of people taking iron who do not distinguish between organic iron and metallic iron, and that such persons often fail to obtain the vital energy, strength and endurance which they seek, simply because they have taken the wrong form of iron.

Judge G. W. Atkinson.

United States Judge G. W. Atkinson, of the Court of Claims, Washington, D. C., says: "It is without hesitation that I recommend Nuxated Iron to persons who in the stress of physical or mental labors have permitted the system to become debilitated, the body exhausted or the nerves run down. It has restored my appetite and my vitality. I feel that I have dropped off the burden of months of toil in the few weeks that I have been following the very simple directions for the use of Nuxated Iron."

Therefore, physicians mentioned below, advise those who feel the need of a strength and blood builder to go to their family doctors and obtain a prescription calling for organic iron—Nuxated Iron—and present this to their druggist so that there may be no question about obtaining the proper article. But if they do not wish to go to the trouble of getting a prescription for Nuxated Iron then be sure to look on the label and see that the words, NUXATED IRON are printed thereon—not Nux and Iron nor any other form of Iron, but Nuxated Iron.

The remarkable results produced by Nuxated Iron and its widespread sale (it being estimated that over three million people annually are today using it), has led to the offering of numerous substitutes, and these physicians say that health officials and doctors everywhere should caution the public against accepting substitutes in medicines and they especially warn against accepting substitutes for Nuxated Iron, which, instead of being organic iron may be nothing more than a metallic iron compound which may in some cases produce more harm than good. The widespread publication of the above information, has been suggested by Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital; Dr. Ferdinand King, New York Physician and Medical Author and others, so that the public may be informed on this subject and protected from the use of metallic iron under the delusion that it is Nuxated Iron or at least something as good as Nuxated Iron.

It is surprising how many people suffer from iron deficiency and do not know it. If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength and see how much you have gained.

Manufacturers' Note—Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

THANKSGIVING.

By Mrs. J. T. Willis.

November 28, 1918, was the most wonderful Thanksgiving Day in the history of the world; not only was it a day of thanksgiving for the people of the United States, but for every race and nation. There is so much to be thankful for in these days of "new beginnings" that it seems as though we can hardly keep pace with it all. The ending of the terrible war, and the fact that the boys will finally come home would be enough in itself to set life to a song of praise. The "something" for which men have been willing to give their lives has been achieved. Every one is our neighbor, and the good of one is the good of all. The world has fought for a principle, and right has conquered over might. And so on this Thanksgiving Day it is not only the duty of every patriotic person, but everybody the world over, to kneel to the great God of all nations and give thanks from the depths of their hearts.

But what of the homes where there is a vacant chair? Can there be the same spirit of thanksgiving there? There is not a boy whose soul went out into the great universal heart of all, whether it went from the field of battle or from the training camp at home, who did not give up his life for the same principle of right and universal brotherhood.

When the boys come home, marching triumphantly through the streets, there will be a great invisible army marching with them. The air will be filled with the rejoicing of angelic hosts. There is not a true patriotic boy who gave up his life who would not do it over again if by so doing he could help to bring to pass that which has been accomplished through the sacrifice of the past years of war. Those who have "passed on" have lived their life in its fulness. They have "fought a good fight." They have done that which they could not have done had they lived for centuries. Those of us whose homes are empty to-day can still rejoice and give thanks, because the boys would want us to, could they speak to us to-day. And this, the twenty-eighth day of November, 1918, will be long remembered as a day of world thanksgiving, in which every man, woman and little child will have a part.

The war is over as far as the fighting is concerned, but our part in it is not over. The impulse is to drop the burden which has grown so heavy on our shoulders. We do not always stop to realize that we were fighting not alone for personal liberty, but for the principle of brotherhood, and we are just in the very beginning of the working out of this thing for which life itself has been given. And we must stand back of our boys, as we have always done, with our money, our food and our willing hands, and ask the great God of all nations to help us.

Wonderful Egg Producer.

Any poultry raiser can easily double his profits by doubling the egg production of his hens. A scientific tonic has been discovered that revitalizes the flock and makes hens work all the time. The tonic is called "More Eggs." Give your hens a few cents' worth of "More Eggs" and you will be amazed and delighted with results. A dollar's worth of "More Eggs" will double this year's production of eggs, so if you wish to try this great profit maker, write E. J. Reefer, Poultry Expert, 9259 Reefer Building, Kansas City, Mo., who will send you a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic for $1 (prepaid). So confident is Mr. Reefer of the results that a million-dollar bank guarantees if you are not absolutely satisfied your dollar will be returned on request and the "More Eggs" costs you nothing. Send a dollar to-day or ask Mr. Reefer for his free poultry book that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry. —Adv.

CHRIST IN THE WORLD.

Christ is in the world. He is about us, within us, going through all things, moving onward in all. Leaven does not make a noise when it works, and yet it works. And so the gospel works, the progress goes on, a grand mighty progress, and there is really no retrocession. No river runs to the sea more certainly than the great salvation for man runs to conquest and a kingdom. —H. Bushnell.

Convalescence after pneumonia, typhoid fever and the grip, is sometimes merely apparent, not real. To make it real and rapid, there is no other tonic so highly to be recommended as Hood's Sarsaparilla. Thousands so testify. Take Hood's.—Adv.

MORAL AIMS COMMITTEE REPORTS ON WAR WORK.

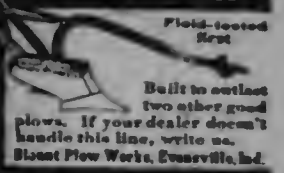
The recent departure from the United States of the Bishop of Oxford and the Rev. Arthur T. Guttery ended, except for a few scattered meetings, the fall campaign of the National Committee on the Churches and the Moral Aims of the War. The Committee reports, however, that the close of hostilities and the approach of the period of reconstruction will quicken rather than diminish its activities. In particular, work will be continued to create public opinion favorable to a League of Nations. Plans are under consideration for the formation of groups in church circles throughout the country to study problems arising from a closer union of nations brought about by the peace treaty.

The Committee has held during the fall 127 meetings with a total attendance of 110,000. Of these meetings, fifty-five were conferences attended by clergymen and a few leading laymen. The attendance at the conferences totaled 9000. Twenty-seven speakers participated in this campaign. The influenza epidemic forced the abandonment of nearly 200 meetings already set up in different parts of the country, with speakers assigned and local committees appointed.

629,458 Pieces of Literature.

Literature distributed at these fall meetings aggregated 168,400 pieces, and the whole number of pamphlets and leaflets distributed by the committee since its organization early in the year is 629,458.

From the time of their arrival in this country, early in September, the Bishop of Oxford and Dr. Guttery each traveled more than 11,000 miles and spoke in nearly every large city east of the Mississippi. Dr. Guttery also spent several days in Toronto, Canada. Two days before he sailed for Liverpool, on November 19, Dr. Guttery received the degree of D.D. from Wesleyan University at Middleton, Connecticut.



Both men received numberless testimonials to the value of their work in cementing cordial relations between the United States and Great Britain and in giving the people a better appreciation of the high moral aims which animated both countries during the long struggle. "Our ideals are one," said Dr. Guttery at a farewell luncheon on the day before his departure. "I shall be glad to emphasize this when I get back to England."

Bishop Gore seldom spoke without dwelling on the importance of the League of Nations as an issue of both war and peace. In his first address in America he announced that he had come as an apostle of the League of Nations movement, and to this mission he strictly adhered during his stay.

At a recent meeting, the National Committee gave formal expression of its thanks to the British Bureau of Information which has co-operated with it both in bringing prominent Englishmen to America and in sending back to Great Britain news of their success. In fact, the work of the Committee attracted such favorable attention abroad that, had not the war ended when it did, there was a prospect that the help of the Committee would be asked in arranging a similar speaking campaign among the churches of Great Britain.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES

I begin my second year as Field Secretary with a great deal more fear and trembling than my first, for I am just beginning to see the magnitude of the work.

You can never know how much I appreciate the many expression of kindness from you. The many invitations to visit your works and give you time thrilled my heart.

The Board has put on a forward movement and has a program that I think is worthy of your hearty support. When our arrangements are more definite, I will write fully in regard to them.

I am depending on you to pray for me. God bless each of you the coming year. Your brother in Him,

JOHN C. CHAMBERS.

Shubuta, Miss.

CAN YOU BEAT IT?

The Sunday school was already well organized. There were several adult classes well attended by the men and the women who were active in the church. Many were undoubtedly satisfied with the prosperous condition of the school, but the pastor and the superintendent felt keenly the need of doing something that would bring the strong men of the community into the Sunday school, andd, if possible, into the life of the church. The possibilities of the men's Bible class appealed to them as meeting this opportunity.

Their first step in carrying out their purpose was to find a suitable teacher. They put the matter up to a very busy Christian lawyer, asking him if he would be willing to conduct a forum Bible class for men in connection with the Sunday school if he could be assured that at least fifty men would pledge themselves to attend. After seeing the hearing of such service upon the welfare of the church and community the judge consented.

The next step was to secure the men for such a class. A list of one hundred prospective members was prepared. A return postal card was prepared and sent to these one hundred men. Each man was asked if he would be willing to join such a class, to be conducted by Judge ———, provided at least fifty men pledged themselves to attend. If so, would he please accept an invitation to a "get-together dinner" at the church on a given date, at which time the organization would be effected. This invitation, of course, was supplemented by some personal work. Eighty out of the one hundred accepted the invitation to dinner. The night appointed for the occasion was one of the stormiest of the winter and only fifty-five came. The storm had tested the earnestness of these men and had not found them wanting.

The program was planned with care. The social features were wholesome; the brief addresses set forth the object to be attained by such an organization in the community; the enthusiasm was full of promise. The committee having the matter in charge had considered with great care the men most suitable for the leadership of the class. It was a daring act of faith that led to the selection of a public-spirited man not connected with the church, but noted for his interest in community welfare, as president. Would he accept? There were grave doubts. He would not have accepted but for two things. He was impressed by the possibility that such a group of men, studying social problems, would be able to effect needed reforms in the life of the community. He was also influenced by the fact that a man of such large responsibilities as the judge should consent to meet this group each Sunday to lead the discussion. He decided that he was being called to a man's job. In his speech of acceptance he incidentally gave a significant name to the class. He said: "Men, we have been called 'strays.' I suggest that we strike out the 't' and call ourselves the 'stays.'"

The pastor of that church bears witness to the fact that the men are making good the steadfastness implied in the name.—Selected.

RED CROSS ROLL CALL.

The great civilian and industrial army at home is ready for its inspection. The review will be held during the week of December 16 to 23d inclusive, when the Christmas Roll Call of the American Red Cross will give every worker in every industrial plant an opportunity to come into the ranks, and show that he or she is behind the men who have been serving the colors, that the gratitude of the Americans who are working to "keep the home fires burning" is with the boys who went across and whose work has been so well and so cheerfully done.

Each person is requested to sign the roll but once. Your signature and the payment of a dollar makes you a member. The Red Cross roll call is a drive for members, not funds.

Membership in the American Red Cross means being a partner to the boys who have gone overseas, means comforts, hospitals, care, food. It means reclamation of devastated lands, rebuilding of homes, help for those who have been crippled by the war.

Last year, during the membership drive, co-operation of the employees in the great industrial plants meant much to the success of the canvass, and this year, when nothing short of universal membership will be satisfactory, it is hoped that the response will be accordingly great.—Red Cross Bulletin.

"BEST MEDICINE FOR WOMEN"

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did For Ohio Woman.

Portsmouth, Ohio.—"I suffered from irregularities, pains in my side and was so weak at times I could hardly get around to do my work, and as I had four in my family and three boarders it made it very hard for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me. I took it and it has restored my health. It is certainly the best medicine for woman's ailments I ever saw.' -Mrs. SARA SHAW, R. No. 1, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Mrs. Shaw proved the merit of this medicine and wrote this letter in order that other suffering women may find relief as she did.

Women who are suffering as she was should not drag along from day to day without giving this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial. For special advice in regard to such ailments write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of its forty years experience is at your service.

Energy
THE WORK OF THE KIDNEYS is to filter and cast out waste products and poisons from the blood stream. When the kidneys are overworked, weak or diseased, the waste matter remains in the system and causes pains in side or back, rheumatism, lumbago, stiffness of joints, sore muscles and other symptoms.
When a person's kidneys are out of order, there is lack of energy, force, vigor, zeal and general effectiveness. Kidneys and bladder must properly function for anyone to enjoy good health.

UNTIL THE BOYS COME HOME.

By Dr. J. S. Chadwick.

The ending of the world war came so unexpectedly that the people of America did not have time to adjust themselves to changed conditions. Perhaps the general effect is that in our thinking we have practically dismissed the war problems, and our chief concern for the boys in camps and overseas is seemingly expressed in the question so often asked: "When will they come home?"

Let us not forget that for many of these men of the Army and Navy the home-coming will be long delayed. And in larger measure do they need such help as the people at home can give if they come back to us such men as we would have them be—true to the best ideals of American life. Dr. John R. Mott well says of the present situation:

"Our men are now face to face with the three gravest tests; the test of victory, the test of demobilization, and the test of readjustment. The timely generosity of the American people makes possible the meeting successfully of these trying experiences. We can prevent the period of demobilization becoming one of demoralization. We can make sure that the coming months, with their great vacant spaces, shall be months not of physical, mental and moral weakening for our men, but months of character building, of growth in useful knowledge, of increase in working efficiency, and of preparation for assuming the larger responsibilities of citizenship which await them on their return to their home communities."

The Army and Navy Y. M. C. A., together with other welfare agencies, proposes to stand by these men of ours in camps and overseas to the end of their service. And that organization has a bigger job than during the days of war; its program calls for more workers and a more extensive plan of service than during the past eighteen months. It will co-operate with the Government and the military authorities in the great educational work to be carried on in Europe and in the home camps. These men must be sent back to their homes with better equipment for life's tasks than was theirs when they entered the military service, hence the extensive educational program which calls for the active co-operation of the Y. M. C. A. They must be kept physically "fit" and in that feature of the program, as heretofore, the Y. M. C. A. is given a large place. They will need help in the fight against the evil which will make stronger appeal to them than during the days when they were at the front or were expecting to be called for such service. To give them such help is one of the chief tasks of the Y. M. C. A. This, after all, is the big feature of the "Y" program and is a more difficult task now than in the past.

This remarkable egg producer means big poultry profits for you. Don't delay. Send a dollar to-day to E. J. Reefer, 3259 Reefer Bld., Kansas City Mo., for a package of "More Eggs." Or better yet, send him $2.25, and he will send you three packages of "More Eggs" tonic prepaid. This is a season's full supply. A Million Dollar Bank guarantees that if you are not absolutely satisfied your money will be returned on request without question. So send either a dollar, or $2.25 to-day for this wonderful egg producer. Or write Mr. Reefer for his FREE Poultry Book that tells the experience of a man who is helping a great many people make money with their poultry, and who, himself, has a made a fortune out of the poultry business.—Adv.

NATIONAL W. C. T. U. PLANS.

A conference of the general officers of the National W. C. T. U. was held at National W. C. T. U. Headquarters, Evanston, Illinois, October 30 to November 1 inclusive.

A new feature of war work to be undertaken by the National W. C. T. U. is the placing of a "hospital mother" in the Government reconstruction hospital at Fort Sheridan. The commanding officer, Lieut. Col. Proxmire, is in hearty sympathy with the project. This "hospital mother" will be a member of the W. C. T. U. and will have official recognition from the Government. This work will be under the direct supervision of Mrs. Richmond Pearson Hobson, superintendent of the National W. C. T. U. department of Soldiers and Sailors. The "hospital mother" will cheer and comfort the discouraged boys in the wards, write letters for the disabled, and in every way possible co-operate with the commanding officer and the medical staff for the welfare of the soldiers. The W. C. T. U. will do its share in supplying magazines, books, victrolas, jellies, fruit, games, entertainments, etc.

Another undertaking of the National W. C. T. U. will be the providing of "Cheer Books" for the blind, to be sent to the Red Cross Hospital for the blind in Baltimore. This work will largely be carried on by the young people and children who will make scrapbooks of clippings, jokes, stories, etc., to be complied and printed in Braille type.

Call for Day of Prayer—Jan. 9, 1919.

Believing that the strength and success of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union from the beginning has been due to our dependence upon God, and thanking Him for the wonderful progress of the temperance reform, we hereby call upon the local organizations of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union to observe Thursday, January 9, 1919, as a day of special prayer. We suggest that whether the meetings be large or small the spirit of the gathering be devotional and that much time be spent in earnest, united supplication:

a. For the members of the State Legislatures that they may vote for the adoption of the resolution for ratification of the Federal Prohibition Amendment.

b. For God's blessing on the patriotic service of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

c. For our brave fighters in camp, at the front, or in the hospital, and for relatives and friends in homes where service stars have been changed to hallowed gold—that by the power of God they may be sustained and comforted.

d. For the Woman's Christian Temperance Union that God will continue to guide our great organization in its widening work and in its new and vitally important national and international program of service; and that Christian women everywhere may hear the call of the World's Woman's Christian Temperance Union to work unitedly for the coming of Christ's Kingdom, that this land and other lands may be freed from the curse of the legalized liquor traffic.

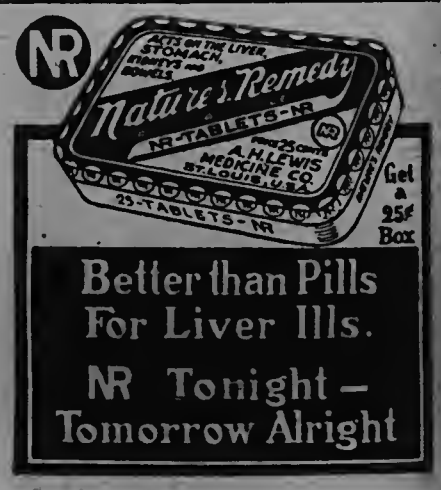
HOW SHIVAR MINERAL WATER RELIEVES RHEUMATISM.

According to the standard medical books, Rheumatism is not a germ disease but is the result of imperfect nutrition. The food is either imperfectly digested or imperfectly assimilated. Poisons accumulate and these irritate and inflame the delicate linings of the joints, the heart and other organs. To relieve Rheumatism it is therefore necessary to stop the formation of these poisons and get rid of those already formed.



The celebrated Shivar Mineral Water acts on the stomach and kidneys. It corrects the digestion and washes out the poisons through the kidneys. This is the opinion of physicians who prescribe it. If you suffer from rheumatism, dyspepsia, indigestion, disease of the kidneys, bladder or liver, uric acid poisoning, or any curable conditions due to impure blood, read the following letter, then sign it, enclose the amount and mail it. Only two out of a hundred on the average report no benefit.

Shivar Spring.
Box 17B, Shelton, S. C.
Gentlemen:

I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instruction contained in booklet you will send, and if it fails to benefit my case you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return promptly.

"IT PUTS THE "PEP"

Into Peptiron,—The Combination of Pepsin, Nux, Iron, Celery.

This is what makes Peptiron of wonderful therapeutic value, and so successful after influenza, the grip and in blood and nerve troubles, anemia, paleness, nervous weakness and the exhausting worry and anxiety over the world war.

It is a real iron blood and nerve tonic, especially beneficial in the weakness following the influenza and grip, to worn-out, brain-fagged men, delicate women, school-tired girls, and to fast-growing boys, invalids and convaleseents, the aged and infirm. It actually puts iron, a natural strengthener, into the blood, and restores the wasted red corpuscles. Your druggist knows its great merit.

NEWS FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Miss Dunstan's Resignation.

For personal reasons, Miss Louise Dunstan has resigned as Corresponding Secretary. She has served in this capacity since the union of the Woman's Home Mission Society and the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society. The first two years of union, she was the secretary of the Home Department. The organization has suffered a great loss. She is so efficient, so well informed, so ready and willing to respond to any call. It is with deep regret that we see her sever her official connection.

The New Corresponding Secretary.

Upon the earnest solicitation of many friends, Mrs. T. M. Clark, of Tupelo, has consented to take the office of Corresponding Secretary. She needs no introduction to the members of the Missionary Society of North Mississippi, as she served in this same office as the Corresponding Secretary of the Foreign Department during the first two years of union, and, previous to that, she had held the office in the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society. We are glad to have her again as an officer.

The Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting will be held in the First Methodist Church, Columbus, Miss., March 26-29, 1918. It gives us much pleasure to make this announcement. Let us unite in petitions for God's guidance in the planning of the program and in all other praparations for this meeting.

Buy a New Year-Book for 1919.

THE ADULT YEAR-BOOK for 1919 is planned in keeping with the Centenary. Each member of the auxiliary should have one. Price five cents each, fifty cents a dozen.

THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S YEAR-BOOK is very attractive in design and coloring. Price three cents each, thirty-five cents a dozen.

THE CHILDREN'S YEAR-BOOK has a charming Japanese cover which will be the delight of every child. The entire book is attractive and helpful.

Send all orders to Mrs. W. B. Lipscomb, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn.

The 1919 Literature.

You will be pleased with the new literature for the coming year. "Information for Leaders" is a monthly booklet for adults which is to take the place of the regular leaflets. It will contain information and striking facts on the topics and also outlines for talks under the heading, "Talking Points."

The adult leaders of the Children's auxiliaries will find the new quarterly supplement to the children's year-book helpful in constructing the Junior Missionary programs and will find much valuable material for their own personal use, material that will not already be old to the children.

Send all orders to Mrs. W. B. Lipscomb, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

Miss Belle Bennett and Mrs. R. W. McDonell, in company with Mrs. A. P. Holt, Corresponding Secretary of the Louisiana Conference, made a trip to the French Mission Field about Houma, this week. They also visited the work in New Orleans.

Superintendent of Social Service.

The new Conference superintendent of this department. Mrs. W. W. Holmes, has moved to Lake Charles, to which charge the Rev. W. W. Holmes was assigned at the recent session of the Louisiana Conference. Mrs. Holmes is so well known and loved by the women of Louisiana that her acceptance of this office will be received with pleasure.

FOOT TROUBLES

No Need of Them, Says Brooklyn Man, Who Has Evidently Solved a Big Problem.

According to the testimony of hundreds of people living in the southland and elsewhere, E. P. Simon of 1589 Broadway, Brooklyn, N. Y., has successfully developed a system of shoe building having for its prime object the conquering of foot and shoe troubles. It appears that Mr. Simon's establishment has become national headquarters for people whose feet require his remarkable comfort shoe, known as the EzWear, but obtainable only of the inventor. Mr. Simon's new catalogue shows several hundred shoes that combine comfort with style at amazingly low prices and is now ready for free distribution.—Adv.

I SECOND THE MOTION.

I have just read Sister Coburn's article and want to second the motion. We always had a "cleaning up week," and I am so glad we often had a Woman's Missionary Society (God bless them) to get the "house" ready—sometimes a parsonage, sometimes a rented house. But after Miss L. B. Helm started our H. M. S., our homes improved, and the sisters are so willing to help, and we thank them for it.

For forty years we moved, but I am glad we never found one like those Brother Fontaine and Brother Lowrey have found; and I am so glad that we always left them in better condition than we found them. It is not always the preacher's wife who is at fault, for I know at Lake Providence we had sickness and could not help the situation. Let's hope, in their cases, it was attributable to sickness—not carelessness.

I thank God that he permitted me to be a preacher's wife. I know I could not "be a living example"; I know I am "just a plain human being," and do not believe in "laity rights." My, my! I found enough to do with one parsonage, one preacher, and the dear children, Woman's Missionary Society, Sunday school, etc., without voting!

Now that I am old and superannuated, I look back and thank God for all the dear friends, the good parsonage homes, the good physicians (God bless them!)—oh, too many blessings to count!

We are hoping, praying and looking for our grandson, Tom, to come home from France. My dear husband is a little stronger, we hope. We were with you in spirit during Conference, and thank God we were permitted to attend Conference sessions so often in the past. We will be at the roll call up yonder. We enjoy reading the Advocate, and pray God to bless our brethren.

We ask your prayers, that if it be God's will, my dear husband may live to welcome our boy home. We thank the Conference for our liberal check.

Yours in Christian love,
Sister T. S. RANDLE.

WHAT "OLD GLORY" MEANS.

When you hang out the colors, spare a minute to think of it—of the places it has been, of the things it means. It has given new hope to the proud and to the poor everywhere in this world. It is the symbol and the achievement of the two noblest human attributes—strength and compassion. It springs from the enduring good that is in the heart of humanity. It stands for the liberation of all men. And it can never fail, it can never be humbled, because that motive lies deep in every human consciousness as permanent, as sure, as inevitable, as tears or laughter or hope or faith in God.—Philadelphia Evening Public Ledger.

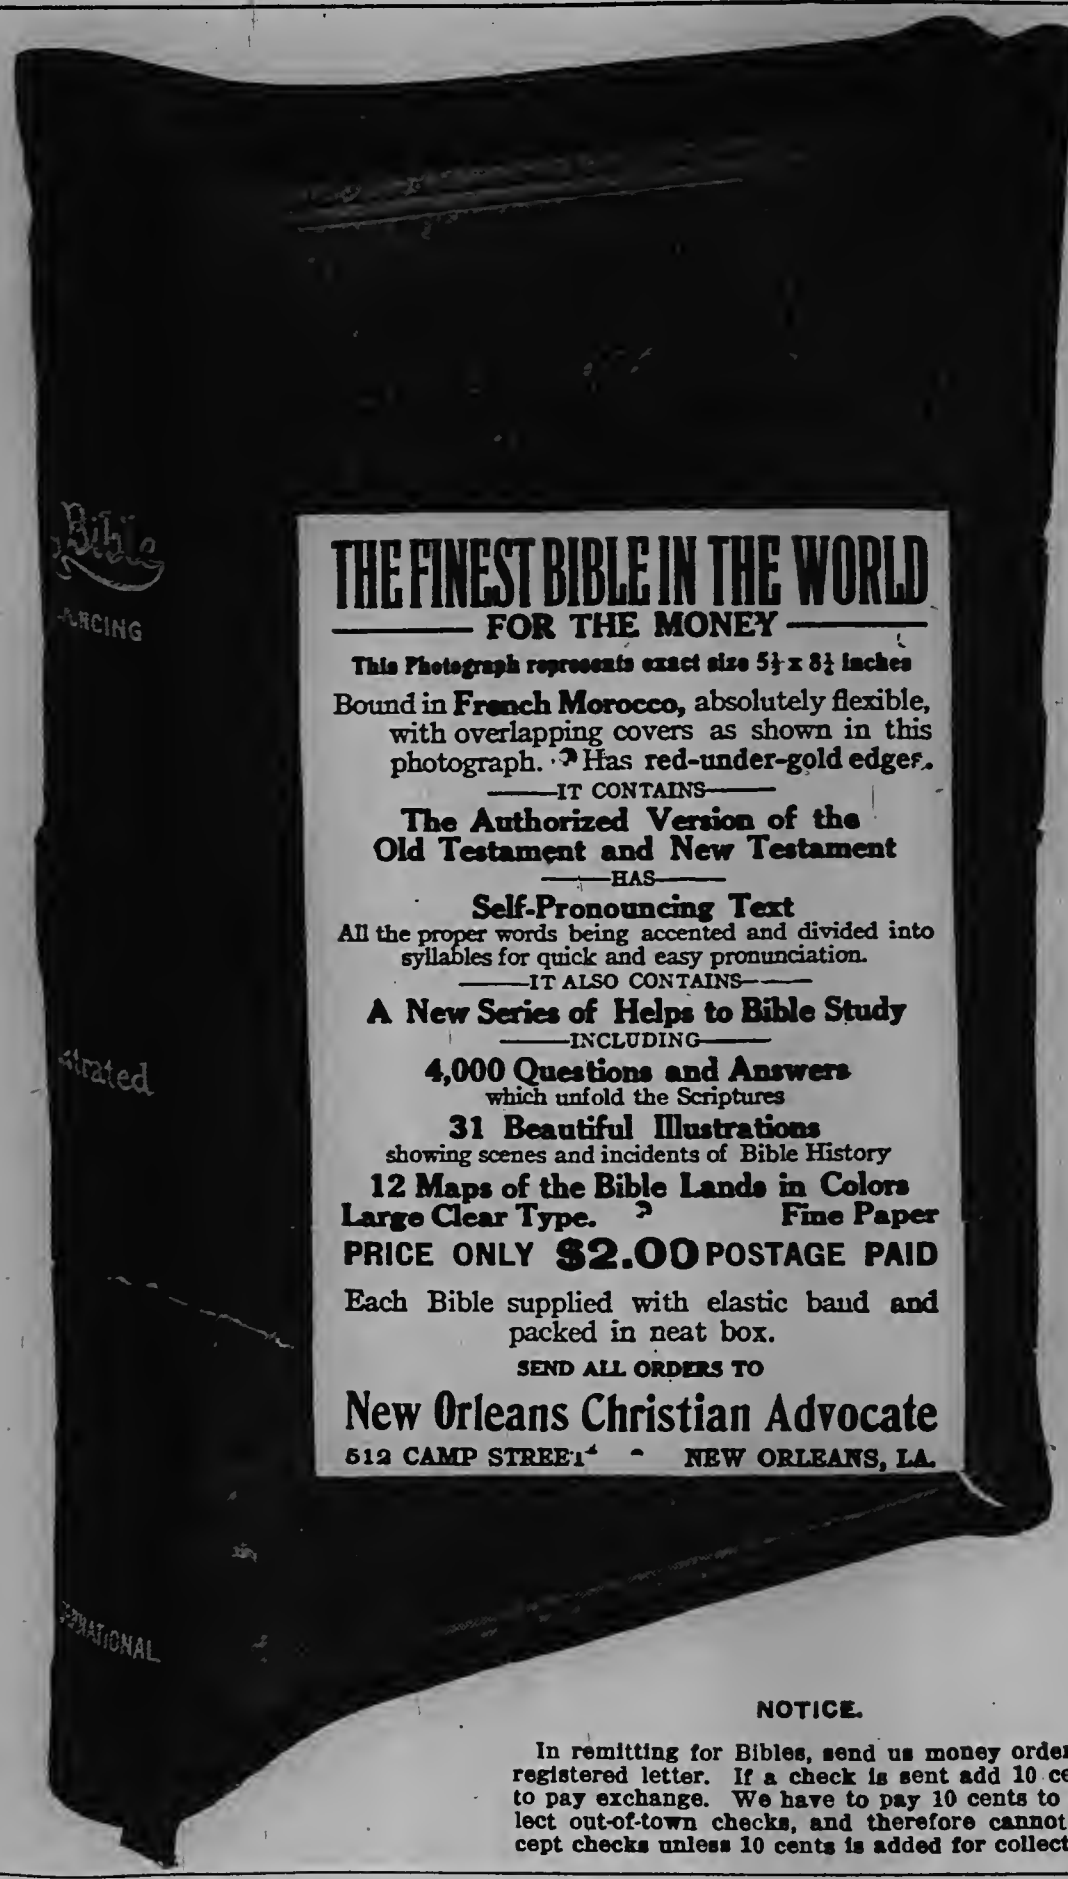
A MESSAGE TO THE CHURCH PEOPLE.

By Dr. John S. Chadwick, Department Director, Religious Work Publicity.

Perhaps no campaign ever before was carried to a successful completion in the face of such difficulties as hindered the "drive" for $170,500,000 for the seven welfare agencies combined in the United War Work Campaign. As we look back to-day, we realize that to have won success under such conditions is little short of a marvelous achievement.



The campaign began with the close of the Liberty Loan drive, the people of America having subscribed the largest amount ever pledged to the support of the Government. It is true that this money was not a gift to the United States Treasury, but the subscriptions represented real sacrifices on the part of millions of American citizens. Then there were complications growing out of the Camp Pastor question and the combination of seven welfare agencies in one financial appeal. Then came the "flu" which not only placed a ban on public meetings but brought about distressing conditions in well nigh every community. And with the beginning of the "drive" for funds came the announcement that the war was at an end. For two days the people of the nation practically suspended business. There were peace celebrations in every community, and "campaigns" and other such questions were not in their thoughts. In the face of all these adverse conditions the people of America gave the full amount of this largest sum ever asked for welfare work, and oversubscribed the total by twenty per cent!

The Southeastern Department made a great record in the campaign, its percentage being 140.7. The percentages of the States of the Department were: Mississippi, 166; North Carolina, 164; Alabama, 162; Tennessee, 140.5; Georgia, 136; South Carolina, 125; Florida, 107. Of the seven States six went above the average for the nation and none failed to report an oversubscription. Only the Southern Department made a better record in the percentage of oversubscription. We of the Southeastern Department indorse most heartily the following statement by the Director General of the Campaign, Mr. John R. Mott: "To all who have so generously given of their time and effort, from the President and his associates to the humblest giver, the Campaign Committee sends thanks, not for itself, but for those to whom the gifts will mean so much in these next crucial months—the brave men of our Army and Navy."

As we "take stock" with the close of the campaign there are some things that we do well to consider. The people of the United States were ready to back up their expressions of appreciation of the sacrifices of the men of the Army and Navy with money—this, after all, being the severest test. They are really interested in the moral and religious welfare of the men; they prove it by their giving. They believe in the welfare agencies that are serving the men of the Army and Navy; no campaign machinery, however perfect, could have brought this money out of the pockets of the people had they nor believed that these organizations were doing a work worth while. And, lastly, the success of the campaign justified the President's faith that the great body of the American people would respond to an appeal that pushed aside the barriers of creed and race.

In return for this expression of the faith of the American people, these seven welfare agencies propose to keep faith with the people who gave the money for the continuation of their work. Speaking especially for the Army and Navy Y. M. C. A., I will say that we propose to stand by these men of the Army and Navy to the end. And we realize that this means we are yet to give our best service if we come to the full measure of our duty. We are calling for other workers—several thousands of them—and we propose to give to the American soldiers and sailors the best workers we can secure. We call to the men at home, those who are succeeding in the work that now claims them, to come to the help of the men overseas and in camps at home. And we believe that it will appeal to the best workers at home when we say that it is a call to service that demands real sacrifices.

160 Hens—1500 Eggs

Mrs. H. M. Patton, Waverly, Mo., writes: "I fed two boxes of 'More Eggs' to my hens and broke the egg record. I got 1,500 eggs from 160 hens in exactly 21 days." You can do as well. In fact, any poultry raiser can easily double his profits by doubling the egg production of his hens. A scientific tonic has been discovered that revitalizes the flock and makes hens work all the time. The tonic is called "More Eggs." Give your hens a few cents' worth of "More Eggs," and you will be amazed and delighted with results. A dollar's worth of "More Eggs" will double this year's production of eggs, so if you wish to try this great profit maker write E. J. Reefer, poultry man, 6259 Reefer Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., who will send you a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic for $1.00 (prepaid). So confident is Mr. Reefer of the results that a million dollar bank guarantees if you are not absolutely satisfied, your dollar will be returned on request and the "More Eggs" costs you nothing. Send a dollar today or ask Mr. Reefer for his free poultry book that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF, HAIR STOPS FALLING.

Save your Hair! Get a small bottle of Danderine right now—Also stops itching scalp.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine to-night—now—any time— will surely save your hair.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store. You surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Save your hair! Try it!—Adv.

Editorial

THE OLD YEAR AND THE NEW.

Never, since the angels sang the song of the Advent, has there been such a season on earth as is rejoicing the hearts of men to-day. The bitterest struggle in the history of mankind has been succeeded by a calm that promises to usher in a period of peace that will be for all time to come. It is not too much to believe that the gospel of Christ has at last become regnant in the thoughts of men, and that after nineteen hundred years the prophecy of "on earth peace among men" is to be literally fulfilled.

At this Christmastide, then, the conventional greetings, "Merry Christmas," "Happy Christmas," "Joyous Christmas," have a new meaning. They imply not merely the expression of personal good wishes and felicitations, but the surging up from the heart of those holy emotions that spring from fulness of faith and hope and love. We rejoice that we have lived to see this day.

The year that is dying will carry with it to its grave, let us hope, all the fears and anxieties and doubts and troublesome cares that have oppressed us during its long and weary months. It brought to all of us some of these things, and to many it brought sorrow beyond words to express. Those silent graves in France contain not only the bodies of heroes fallen in fight, but also the hearts of the fathers and mothers of those boys, who look now upon this world with a strange awe, and upon the next with a strange longing. Sorrow may not be forgotten, but in mysterious ways it turns us to the future with brighter hope and stronger faith. In spite of its sorrows, perhaps because of them, we bid the old year an affectionate farewell.

We turn to the new year with a girding up of our loins for the tasks that lie before us. Those tasks are many, but they need not bewilder us. Through all the devious ways of time, runs the clear path of duty. The tasks that fall to our lot will be found along this path—and they will be neither too numerous nor too great for us to perform. It is when we wander away from the path of duty, or refuse to follow it, that we lose the power to do what we ought to do.

The new year opens with bright promise. The delegates to the Peace Conference are assembling with great seriousness of mind and loftiness of purpose; the minds of men everywhere are turned to high things; more than ever before, the clear principles of truth and justice and righteousness are being held up before men. It will be a good year—we welcome it as beginning a new era in the history of mankind, an era of peace and goodwill among men, which will culminate, we devoutly hope, in the full establishment of the Kingdom of God on earth.

"The thought of our immortality should be more awake, alive, stimulating in our minds, more than latent, not merely in the conviction of our understanding, but ardently ever in our heart. We should make it often the subject of our cheerful, thankful meditation."

PROMOTION—THE LAW OF INDIRECTNESS.

It is perfectly natural for a man to want promotion—even for a preacher to want it. And there is nothing necessarily blame-worthy or irreligious about it. The hope of reward, of recognition for duty faithfully and efficiently performed, is characteristic of every normal human being. Christ recognized the principle when he said, "Thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things."

But deliberately to go about seeking promotion, is altogether another matter. Wire-pulling and manipulation are looked upon with disfavor everywhere, and when they end in disappointment and discomfiture, nobody grieves overmuch; in fact, there is often silent joy. That is because the law of promotion has been violated. The law of promotion is like the law of happiness—it works indirectly. Nobody can say, "Go to, now, I will be happy," and immediately enter into the desired state of mind and heart. If a man would be happy, he must do his full duty; and then happiness will follow as an indirect result, but an inevitable one. So it is with promotion; the best way to secure it is to do the work in hand as well as it can be done, and let wire-pulling and manipulation alone. Promotion will come in due season.

Haec fabula docet, as the ancients would say, a good many things.

THE TITHE AGAIN.

We long to see the time come when Church members will practice tithing as a matter of course. It is generally recognized by those who identify themselves with any organization that they are expected to contribute to the financial support of that organization. In most cases there is a definite understanding and agreement as to the amount that is to be contributed regularly in the way of fees and dues. The organizations themselves are able to estimate very accurately their financial resources, and the members of those organizations know exactly what is expected of them.

The system followed in the Methodist Church is altogether different. It is true that the membership vow includes a promise to "support the institutions of the Church," and the tacit understanding is that that support is to be in proportion to ability. But in practice, a great many members of the Church fail to make any contribution at all, and a great many more make what must be considered, comparatively, only nominal contributions. As a consequence, very few local churches are able to make their budgets with anything like the certainty that obtains in secular organizations that the necessary funds will be forthcoming. So true is this, that very often the budget covers only the minimum requirements of a very restricted program, and there is a general understanding that painstaking effort will be required to raise that minimum.

If it could come to be generally understood that membership in the Church involves very definite financial obligations that are based upon the principle of stewardship, and that a tithe is as little as can be expected to meet those obligations, there would be no difficulty in providing, on a generous scale, for the normal needs of the Church, and there would be an enlargement of heart on the part of the givers themselves that would make it infinitely easier to provide for special and unusual needs.

One of the practical difficulties in establishing the tithing system is to get the individual Church member to commit himself definitely and unreservedly to it. Perhaps some of us say, "I am already giving a tithe—and more. Why should I trouble myself to keep an exact account of my financial dealings with the Lord?" If we know positively that we are paying the tithe, there is no special need of keeping a tithing account. But we venture to say that in a great many cases, the actual amount of our contributions will be found to fall far below the tithe of our income, no matter how sure we are that we have been giving at least that sum, unless we have kept an accurate account of our various offerings. When it comes to giving money, a great many of us are likely to exhibit the weakness of the fisherman—a tendency to overestimate. We speak rather confidently on this point because of a little self-examination.

Again, there is a hesitancy in laying aside what seems to be a considerable part of our income for the work of the Lord, when we begin to count up the amount that seems to be absolutely necessary to meet our personal obligations. We are prone to admit the validity of the tithing system as a general proposition, but to feel that ours is an exceptional and unusual case where it does not apply. There is the ever-present fear that we cannot "make ends meet" if we set aside one-tenth of our incomes to be used only for religious and charitable purposes. The sufficient answer to this objection is the testimony of those who have done exactly that thing. They have responded to the call of duty, in spite of apparent obstacles, only to find that those obstacles have been merely apparent—not real. In some way or other the personal obligations have been met as easily as before—more easily, in fact.

The fundamental principle seems to us to be this: All we have belongs to the Lord—we are simply his stewards; but the Lord needs a tenth of what we have to carry on his work in the world—a work that blesses us individually, and all other men; if we give him the tenth, he is willing for us to use the remainder for our own legitimate needs, knowing that as faithful stewards we will hold nothing back if he should call; he will not demand of us a proportion of our incomes that will be unjust—as the Lord of righteousness, he could not do that; and as we respond gladly, he blesses us abundantly.

When the membership of the Church begins to practice tithing generally, a new era, financially and spiritually, will have set in.

During the first ten months of 1918, the Young Women's Christian Association, at headquarters in New York, served 350,575 people. This is a larger number than the census of 1914 gives as the population of the District of Columbia; more than the population of Maine; nearly one-half the population of St. Louis; and twice that of Richmond.

THE GREAT COMPANION.

I can not stand alone, O Christ of God,
Since thou didst die for me;
In joy or sorrow, hope or pain or grief,
I lean on thee.

Hands touch my hand, and heart beats by my heart,
Through all Time's gain and loss;
And Love's flame pulses through each quickened thought,
Around thy Cross.

Thou gavest me two hands to help and climb,
One heart to be thine own,
Light of all best, that shall be, or has been,
I dare not stand alone.

—Major Lauchlan MacLean Watt, in British Weekly.

THE NEW YEAR.

By Wm. C. Allen.

Whoso trusteth in Jehovah, happy is he.
—Proverbs 16, 20.

The passage of the speeding year,
And fortune with her changing cheer,
Are ills on lika hand confest;
We will not mourn for that, my dear,
But to be blythe we'll count it best.
—Wm. Dunbar, 1460.

The dawn of another year finds many of us successful, strong, patient, buoyant, confident. If we wisely take account of our religious and material assets, we may discover that some of our spiritual stock, which is so exceedingly fundamental, has been increasing in value. Have we better control of our tempers?—that is a great gain. Has God's chastening hand separated us from worldliness and led us toward His purity and strength? Have we parted with temporal riches and received in lieu of them heavenly treasures? If so, as the old year passes out, our hearts will throb with gratitude and praise.

Some of my readers may be dwelling in the shadow. The cold steel has entered into their souls. To them unsought has come confusion, fretfulness, illness, bereavement or disappointment. Our own willfulness or mistakes are not always responsible for adverse conditions. The divine love is closely superintending the order of our lives when outward or inward difficulties entangle us—we continue to be the children of the King. At such seasons we must look up. God desires, with the cycle of every year, that all our experiences shall develop closer and holier communion with Himself. He is good—He is God! He can not fail!

But the past twelve months have not marked failure—we even learn by our errors. God never ceases to educate His people. The most thoughtless of us have within ourselves a little sanctuary into which we can retire and in secret tell our Father all our needs day by day. We take our health or diseases, our gains or losses, our laughter or tears, our successes or failures straight to His loving heart. How rich in blessing the coming year may prove if we walk with Jesus by our side—what possibilities will there be of spiritual crusades on His behalf!

Let those of us who rejoice in the surpassing bounty of our Father be humbled as we recollect that all worldly prosperity comes from His generous hand. Let those of us who lift tear-stained faces to heaven remember that the wonderful streams of His love never cease to flow. The future is safe in His keeping. He is moulding the detail of our lives so that we may be prepared to enter the gates of the Beautiful City when He calls. Beyond earth's fearsome shadows there reigns the perfect day.

"I feel the earth move sunward,
I join the great march onward,
And take, by faith, while living,
My freehold of thanksgiving!"

So, with high hope and courage, we pass the wide-flung portal of the coming year.

IS YOUR BOY SAVED?

By Rev. R. R. Nicholson.

Many years ago there lived in New Ontario an ungodly family. They had cleared a considerable portion of their farm and were fairly prosperous. They had a comfortable pioneer home. They lived about three miles from the little mission church, but they never attended service. In fact, they had no use for a church, or for a missionary either. Whenever the missionary would approach their home, they would flee out of the back door into the woods. However, I succeeded in surprising them on one occasion, and appeared at the door before the mother could escape. She appeared as uncomfortable in my presence as a fluttering bird in the hand, but I took advantage of the opportunity to preach the gospel of Jesus Christ.

There were several daughters in the family, but only one son. The father was accustomed to take his son with him whenever he went to town, ten miles distant. He was a hard drinking man, and he would place his little boy, when only four years of age, upon the bar of the saloon, give him beer to drink in a glass, and call in pride to the men standing around, "See my little Harry! He can drink his beer like a man!" Is it any wonder that his boy acquired an appetite for liquor at a very early age?

Harry grew up to be a rough, swearing, openhearted, industrious young man, who was the pride of his mother. He seldom visited the town, but when he did so he drank hard, and returned home intoxicated and helpless. His chief ambition was to pay off the mortgage on the farm. Early and late he toiled. At last, by the time he was of age, he had accumulated enough money to cover the indebtedness.

On his twenty-first birthday Harry, his father and a neighbor drove to town to pay off the mortgage and to celebrate the happy occasion. They transacted their business, and then went from saloon to saloon, drinking and carousing. Evening rapidly came on, and it was necessary to start for home. The young man was loath to go, and they had to force him out of the saloon. He fell helpless on his face, but his father and friend lifted him up and threw him into the back of the wagon, where he lay in a drunken stupor. The father and neighbor climbed into the seat, drunken but happy. They cracked the whip and started for home. They had had a glorious day!

It was the month of April. On the hills, where their home was situated, the snow was still deep, but near the town it had melted away, and therefore it was necessary to use the wagon. They had ten miles to drive, but it was a fine moonlight night. Laughing, chatting, shouting and singing, they pursued their way. When they had gone about three miles they turned to speak to Harry, lying quietly in the rear of the wagon. But the words froze upon their lips; their blood was chilled with horror! Harry was there, but his face was ghastly in the moonlight; his mouth was open; his jaw was fallen, and his glassy eyes were staring at the stars; but they saw not, for Harry was dead! The doctor said it was a case of acute alcoholism.

The family sent for the missionary. Yes, they had some use for the Church and the missionary now. When I reached the home the mother was prostrated with grief, and as I entered she screamed over and over again, "Oh, if I only knew that my boy were saved! Oh, if I only knew that my boy were saved!"

Once that woman had been a Christian. Many years before in old Ontario she had loved the Lord, but upon coming to a new land she had lost her religion and wandered from God. I could not speak any words of real comfort, for her boy had lived without God and had died the death of a drunkard. I merely prayed and murmured some general truths about the love and mercy of God. I shall never forget the heartrending cries of that mother—cries of mingled fear, anguish, remorse and despair. Well did she know that her boy did not have a fair chance in life because he had a wicked father and an unfaithful mother.

Oh, fathers and mothers, is your boy saved? Is he saved not only for heaven, but for a life of Christian usefulness and service? Is he saved to his highest efficiency here upon earth? What are you doing for the salvation of your boy?—The Christian Guardian.

THE PROBLEM OF OUR CHURCH IN ITS MINISTRY TO METHODIST MEN IN CAMP.

By Rev. George Stanley Frazer.

At the recent meeting of the Executive Committee of the War Work Commission of our Church, the Committee agreed on certain work as suggestive of the policy of the Commission. Chief emphasis was placed on:

"1. The establishment of church headquarters in towns, cities, and communities adjacent to camps, and the maintenance at these of the highest order of intensive work on behalf of soldiers on leave.

"2. The assignment of assistant pastors to rural, as well as town and city, churches adjacent to camps where such arrangement can be established in harmony and for the real welfare of our men."

The action of the Executive Committee in these expressions seems to have met with generous approval from many sources, and apparently the only practical plan lies in some provision in the towns and cities near the camps whereby the men will be attracted and brought under the influence of the Church. One has only to walk down the main street in any camp town to see signs denoting places of recreation and amusement for the soldiers: "Officers' Club," "Enlisted Men's Club," and the like, affording conspicuous illustrations. Stand for five minutes near these places and see how the men are attracted to these "Clubs" of various kinds.

The Church may profit by the realization of the "clubbable" instinct in men—soldier or civilian. Some months ago there appeared in the columns of the Christian Advocate (Nashville) an article outlining the work and plans of the Methodist Men's Club, and one of the activities suggested for Club work was the establishment of Club headquarters in camp towns under supervision of the Club or Clubs in the one or more churches of the city, such Club headquarters being used to attract the Methodist men in uniform and to bring them under the influence of the local church or churches. While the Methodist Men's Club has been engaged in its extension work only a comparatively short time, the organization has already been established in many churches, large and small, throughout the connection, and is now represented in some of the camp cities. Since the Club may be organized in any church in the connection, a chapter may be placed in any or all of the churches in camp cities. This naturally would enlist the interest and activities of the Methodist laymen of the city, and joint Club rooms or headquarters could be established in the business section or in some central location. The proper way to indicate such headquarters would be by the sign of the Club emblem, which is the blue triangle with the letters, "MMC" in gold, and the words "The Methodist Men's Club" suspended above the emblem. Under the supervision of the representative of the Church's war work and the local Club or Clubs, wholesome recreation or entertainment could be provided in these Methodist centers in a manner that would appeal to the man in uniform. It would be of value to have every man who enters register his name and address in a book for the purpose, and the soldier in turn might be issued a card entitling him to the privileges of the Club. A convenient writing room, a reading room, games, etc., would be an added attraction. Such headquarters would not only make a strong appeal to the soldier, but it would stimulate the Methodist laymen of the city, and would definitely enlist them in religious work among the soldiers and would offer an opportunity to invite the men to regular church services, or to special services planned for their benefit.

One of our camp pastors had something of this idea in mind in a recent letter to the writer, in which he says: "In my work among the soldiers I have been organizing the Methodist men in some of the regiments into regimental brotherhoods. My plan is to have each one of the churches adopt a regimental brotherhood, and help in a social and religious way with my work among the men. It has been a great help to me in meeting them, and it has been a help religiously to the men." Another camp pastor writes: "I should like to see the Club organized in our Methodist churches here. If a Club room could be located in a convenient part of the city, I could have my regular town headquarters there, and could more effectively deal with our Methodist boys." A Methodist chaplain writing recently in the Christian Advocate (Nashville) says: "When the men return they will seek the warmth of their denominational home fires. Therefore the Methodist Men's Club is one of the most timely movements of the Church to-day. It has both the social feature which appeals to the need of fellowship, and the compactness which gives it solidarity. It is a wise preparation for the blessed days of peace. Intense social life men must have; they will find it or make it, for better or for worse. If the Church meets this need she will hold the men. It would seem that the Methodist Men's Club has come to the kingdom for such a time as this."

One of the features of the work of every Club is the election of the Methodist men from the local Church in the country's service to honorary membership for the duration of the war. As a rule, these men receive regularly each month a letter from some member of the home Club reminding them of the interest of the home church. With many of these letters being received regularly by the men in the camps, a point of contact with Club headquarters in camp towns will have already been established. While the Club was organized primarily for the promotion of loyalty, fellowship, and service among Methodist men, and for the enlistment of our great army of Methodist laymen in more definite and aggressive service in the spread of Christ's kingdom, the very nature of its organization adapts it wonderfully well to the needs and conditions brought about by recent events. We cannot be unmindful of the great advantages enjoyed by the Catholic Church in America through the agency of the Knights of Columbus. Southern Methodism has the opportunity for a special ministry to her men both now and after the war through the Methodist Men's Club. The organization of the Club in the churches in camp cities and the establishment of Club headquarters for the needs of the soldier will result not only in bringing the soldier under the influence of the Church and thus binding him closer to the Church, but it will enlist the energies of our laymen in a broader field of Christian service.

TEN YEARS OF EVANGELICAL AND ROMANIST GROWTH.

By Victor I. Masters,
Superintendent of Publicity.

The Census Department at Washington has recently issued the preliminary statistics of the religious census for 1916. The last religious census before was in 1906. The study of the figures recently issued is unusually instructive and interesting.

I offer this study of the figures mainly to show how much camouflage there is in many of the boastful claims now being put forth by the Roman Catholic hierarchy. The following table shows the relative increase, and the apparent relative strength, of the different bodies. The figures are from the Government bulletin. The use and combinations made of them are my own.

Baptists .....from	5,662,000 to	7,263,000	28.0*
Methodists ...from	5,749,000 to	7,165,000	24.8
Disciples .....from	982,000 to	1,231,000	25.0
Lutherans ....from	2,112,000 to	2,463,000	12.0
Episcopalians from	886,000 to	1,098,000	24.0
Presbyterians from	1,830,000 to	2,257,000	23.3
Congregationalists....from	700,000 to	790,000	12.8
Romanists ....from	14,210,000 to	15,742,000	10.8

* The Baptists have a right to be gratified at their healthful growth. But it is not probable that they have really grown any more rapidly than the Methodists between the census periods. The larger percentage here shown of growth is adequately explained by the increased success in getting the statistics of churches, especially Negro churches, which in former efforts escaped from the reckoning.—V. I. M.

Authorities claim from two to three adherents for every member of one of the evangelical denominations. For my present purpose I will take the smaller number. For every actual communicant we will estimate two additional adherents. That this claim is within the bounds any reader may estimate for himself by comparing the membership of the local churches about him with the whole number in the families represented, plus other persons who are adherents to but not members of these local bodies.

Keeping in mind that the Romanists claim as members every member of a Catholic family whom the priest has baptized, that he sprinkles everyone he can get at, and that good Catholics are as anxious as he that this "saving" ordinance shall be performed, we see that it is utterly unfair to compare the Romanists with the evangelical bodies on the basis of claimed membership. Yet this is what is being done in this country, which is evangelical in faith. Catholic membership and population are one. Evangelical membership is one-third of the evangelical population.

That the reader may have a straight look at the situation, I will now set it down in tabular form:

	Members	Other Adherents.	Approximate Population
Baptists	7,236,000	14,572,000	22,000,000
Methodists	7,165,000	14,330,000	22,000,000
Presbyterians ..	2,257,000	4,514,000	7,000,000
Lutherans	2,463,000	4,926,000	8,000,000
Disciples	1,231,000	2,462,000	4,000,000
Episcopalians ..	1,098,000	2,196,000	3,000,000
Other Bodies ...	4,849,000	9,698,000	15,000,000
Total besides Romanists			81,000,000
Catholics	15,700,000	000,000	15,700,000

Omitting 1,000,000 from the approximate population credited to evangelicals, because the bodies grouped together include some comparatively small bodies which are not evangelical, we have perhaps 80,000,000 evangelicals, while there are only 15,700,000 Romanists.

How, then, do the priests figure it out that they have forty per cent of the soldiers in the armies of the country? The direct and adequate answer is that they do not so figure it. They claim it, but they must know that it is untrue. It is absolutely clear that the ratio of Catholic soldiers to evangelicals is approximately one to six. How could it be otherwise? It took the assurance of Romanism to make that claim.

We have come to a dangerous pass in America, when these priestly adherents to and sponsors for a foreign hierarchy, which arrogantly claims sovereignty over its members in civil as well as in spiritual matters, can so browbeat and frighten the newspaper press of this free country that they can use their columns freely to flaunt before the public eye the most absurd, ridiculous claims. These papers get and must get the large majority of their support from people whose religious faith is misrepresented, and whose sense of justice is outraged by the insolent and untrue emanations of Rome.

The palpably misleading and boastful claims of the Roman hierarchy to its relative membership in America seem to have been adopted by our Government in the allotment of chaplains, while the six times more numerous evangelicals are allowed two-thirds. Rome's proportionate population would give her one chaplain in six. She got one in three.

With the few notable exceptions, the American secular press except country weeklies, is blind, deaf and dumb to the most palpable outrages against common justice, if Rome is the instigator. The simple truth is that the available evidence indicates that the priests have nearly all the daily papers muzzled. This speaks well for Rome's political acumen, but is unspeakably vicious as a matter of principle or policy in this American Republic. Not even in the South, where the papists are hardly more than two per cent of the population, can evangelical religion get a square deal in most of these papers. It is a shame.

I hope many of our evangelical church people will secure the new religious census, or at least the preliminary statistics. These statistics are now available, and they are free. The larger publication is not yet out. There are many facts of interest in the preliminary figures, which I shall not undertake to develop here. There is, however, one other fact bearing on Romanism, to which I would like to call attention.

The Roman Catholics claim membership increased, in the ten years covered, 1,531,000 or 10.8 per cent. In the same period, the eight larger evangelical bodies made a combined increase of 24.1 per cent. In other words, the evangelical bodies are growing more than twice as fast as the Romanists. The hold of the hierarchy on the press enables them to get themselves advertised much. But the danger of Romanism is not in its members. It is in its claim and practice that it has a right to manipulate politics in the interest of a foreign autocratic sovereign.

Rome has in effect exaggerated its members three-fold, but the low percentage in its growth lets light in on the real situation in America. The significance of the rate of its growth doubles in meaning when we remember that of the 8,000,000 immigrants who came into America during the ten years, more than 4,000,000 were nominally Catholic. Therefore, while the evangelicals grew 24.1 per cent, with an almost negligible increment from immigration, Romanists made an increase of only slightly more than one-third of the number of immigrants who claimed to belong to this faith. If they really had power to grow in America, they should have made double their total increase from American sources alone.

This indicates strikingly that Roman Catholicism cannot flourish in this Republic as an indigenous religion. This is well. It does not deserve to flourish, for it has cursed every country in which it has come into dominance, and is even now making itself despicable in America to every patriotic citizen who has his eyes open.

There is little danger in Catholicism, so far as its ability is concerned to win the people in an atmosphere of free and unhindered [illegible]. But it is dangerous in that it is [illegible] unscrupulous; because with it the end justifies the means, if the end is the exaltation of the hierarchy; because it is in politics and [illegible] a foreign potentate, who claims spiritual as well as civil sovereignty. We do not censure the Catholic having a spiritual [illegible] that is what he wants, but as he aspires to be mischievous and selfish political [illegible] led by his priests, to acknowledge the spiritual lord, who claims the right to [illegible] governments and nations.

Thank God, Romanism is having a rough time trying to grow in America [illegible] claims. May evangelical religious bodies grow in power and grace, leading America forward in the freedom which is in Christ. We are not giving our sons to bleed and die in Europe with the idea of allowing the freedom of America's soul and political life to be ensnared by the servants of a spiritual autocracy which claims also political sovereignty. We are not scotching the writhing snake of Hun autocracy in Europe with the idea of giving our nation up to be "dominantly Catholic" after the war.

Let Rome see to it. When this war is over there is going to be a close scrutiny of influences in America which are not one hundred per cent loyal and American. Often as the autocrat of the Tiber has, through his servants, insolently sought to break down Americanism without receiving effective rebuke, he will face and ought to face a new and aroused American patriotism after this war is over, and not all the sublety and astute diplomacy of the Vatican will be able to save him from the demand to accept American principles or else get out of America.—Baptist Home Mission Rooms, Atlanta, Ga.

A NEW OUTLOOK FOR THE NEAR EAST.

So much has been said in past years about famine in Turkey that the impression has been made that the country is non-productive. This is a great mistake. These periodical conditions of distress are due to the reprehensible policy of the Government and the antiquated methds of agriculture. With proper methods of cultivation and fresh seed for sowing and planting, Asia Minor, Anatolia, Armenia, Cilicia and the Caucasus will quickly become one of the most prolific food producing areas of the world.

Wheat, barley, rice, millet, vegetables of all kinds and fruits of every variety known to the temperate zone, are produced in large quantities even with the primitive methods of cultivation. The country is also a producer of cotton.

With modern improvement in farming there is no reason why this country should not, within a year, produce more food than will be necessary for the population, even after the vast number of Armenian and Greek refugees have been repatriated. The cotton possibilities are almost limitless.

The relief commission is taking to Turkey farm implements and trained agriculturists and improved seeds, with the assurance that within a year after the exiles return to the soil they will need no help from without. Over 400,000 orphans will require assistance to live until they too can become self-supporting.

Under a good government there is no reason why Turkey and Armenia should not quickly become one of the garden spots of the Near East, producing not only foodstuffs for Europe, but minerals for the world.

One of the chief objects of the relief commission of the American Committee is to get the refugees back upon the soil and make it possible for them to develop its resources and to become in the quickest and the shortest time possible wholly self-supporting. In the meantime, food supplies, clothing and medical care will be absolutely essential to sustain life. The orphans must be looked after for years, but the adult population can soon be brought to a condition of self-support. —Bulletin, American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief.

THE COLUMBUS CELEBRATION.

By R. D. Smart, Secretary.

The Methodist Missionary Celebration, or Exposition, to be held in Columbus, Ohio, June 20-July 7, 1919, is an integral part of the whole Centenary program. In fact, it was, in a form, somewhat different from that now contemplated, the first part of the proposal to assume definite form.

The first thought was to have three large meetings, one in the North, one in the Middle West, probably at St. Louis, and one in the South. This, however, was later given up, and two meetings substituted. The first of these, composed of a thousand leaders from the Canadian, the Northern, and the Southern Methodist Churches, was held in Junaluska during the summer of 1918, and was for the purpose of bringing to these leading men in a more vivid way the different phases of the Centenary Movement. The second is the Columbus Celebration, where it is proposed to hold the grandest "Methodist Camp Meeting" the world has ever known. Two special causes have combined to hold this meeting in the background heretofore. First, for some time there existed a certain degree of doubt as to whether or not war conditions would favor the holding of such a large gathering as this proposed to be, and, second, the stupendousness of a $35,000,000 program and the timeliness and wisdom of the campaign for Intercession and Stewardship have tended to overshadow the celebration. But preparations have gone forward nevertheless, and no small amount of work has been done and interest aroused.

It would seem well at this time, because of questions which have come in and of interest which has been shown, to give the following facts concerning the celebration:

1. Time. June 20-July 7, 1919.

2. Place. Columbus, Ohio.

The question has doubtless arisen in the minds of many as to why Columbus was chosen for the place of this celebration. The chief and outstanding reason was that the Ohio State Fair Grounds, situated at Columbus, afforded by far the finest grounds and buildings that could be found for this celebration. Other places nearer the dividing line between the North and the South were visited, but the facilities at Columbus were so far superior to those afforded anywhere else that there could be no two opinions as to where the celebration should be held.

3. Grounds and Buildings. On the grounds are situated a coliseum which will seat 10,000, in which the pageants are to be held; seven large buildings in which the exhibits from twenty-odd different countries are to be placed (those buildings measure about 200x100 feet); sheds under which arrangements are to be made for 50,000 people to sit at the table at one time; other sheds under which 25,000 automobiles can be parked; a grand stand for the outdoor pageants, which will seat 100,000.

4. Organization. Dr. S. Earle Taylor has been selected as Director-General of the Centenary, and he, together with Dr. Beauchamp, form the Executive Committee.

There are three committees with special duties:

Committee No. 1, on Decoration and Exhibits, composed of Dr. J. F. Goucher, Chairman; L. A. Warner, W. G. Cram, C. C. Miles, C. F. Reisner, and G. B. Winton.

Committee No. 2, on Program in the seven buildings representing the different countries, composed of John R. Pepper, Chairman; R. A. Ward, E. H. Rawlings, R. E. Diffendorfer, and Miss Mabel Howell.

Committee No. 3, on Pageants, composed of Prof. L. A. Warner, Chairman; R. A. Ward, C. G. Hounshell, R. E. Diffendorfer, and Dr. Belle Bennett.

Besides these Committees, Mr. H. B. Dickson, whose office is in Columbus at 74 East Gay Street, has charge of the Publicity Department, and is ready to send literature to all who are interested. He has already catalogued the names of 70,000 Methodist owners of automobiles within a reasonable motoring distance of Columbus, and to these he is ready to send road maps which will help them in getting to the celebration. Besides this, Mr. Dickson will have charge of the local plans.

5. Program. Official programs have not been issued as yet, but in a general way it may be said that in connection with the exhibits from the several countries there will be episodes carried out by natives of those countries which will give life to the exhibits. Besides these, there will be two pageants every day, one in the afternoon and the other in the evening. One of these will represent Foreign Mission work, the other Home Mission work. The present thought is to have them alternate—the Home Mission pageant one day and the Foreign Mission pageant in the evening of one day, and the Foreign Mission pageant in the afternoon and the Home Mission pageant in the evening of the next day. Then, on the two Saturday nights there will be two grand outdoor pageants held in front of the grand stand, which will seat 100,000. One feature of these pageants will be stereopticon views thrown on a sheet 75 feet square. This is calling for a new invention, because with the present methods used in throwing stereopticon views a light sufficient to throw a view on a screen 75 feet square would be so intense as to melt the ordinary plates. This invention is about completed now. This is mentioned to give some idea of the scale on which preparations are being made. Speakers of recognized ability will deliver addresses from time to time during the celebration. There will probably be several such each day. More detailed information with regard to the program will be given out later.

It is hoped that all will keep in mind that this is the one and only phase of the Centenary Movement in which all of Methodism can unite. In raising the Centenary askings and in enrolling members in the leagues of Intercession and Stewardship, the different Boards are necessarily limited to their own constituency, but at Columbus the Church, North and South, will get together for the greatest meeting Methodism has ever known and the greatest religious exposition the world has ever seen.

The work connected with the Columbus Celebration has grown to such proportions that it has been necessary to set aside one man to give his whole time to this enterprise. R. D. Smart, of the China Mission, has been appointed to this work, with office at 325 Doctors' Building, Nashville, Tenn. Besides this, Dr. G. B. Winton, whose work for Latin America necessitates his being in New York this winter, is to represent the Southern Methodist Church in all matters connected with the Centenary. The bulk of the designing and art work of the celebration is to be done in New York because of the superior facilities afforded by that city, and we are truly fortunate in having Dr. Winton there to represent us.

FAREWELL TO W. W. HOLMES.

By Ulyses Grant Foote.

(Read at the farewell luncheon to Rev. and Mrs. W. W. Holmes at the Monteleone Hotel, New Orleans).

Take him for all he hath a polse,
That's true to standards of our needs;
Sweet Wisdom's will he puts in deeds
Without the herald's blaring noise.
He braves the winds to sow God's seeds;
And stays the wound where sorrow bleeds;
His creed has hands his time employs.

'Tis worth a world to hold the hearts
Of men whose deeds a man has weighed;
Good brothership, it is, that stays
The cords of love when friends depart
From friends, ere other friends are made.
God keep him well always and days.

Our comradeship God understands.
Our lives and ways are in his hands;
Our tasks alike meet Truth's demands.

FROM BROTHER BREITHAUPT.

Dear Brother Carley: Due to the secular press reports that I was retiring from the ministry and was to devote my whole time to secular work, I find that a great many of my friends and brethren in the work have an entirely mistaken idea of just what I am doing this year and why I am not still engaged in the work as Sunday School Field Secretary.

First, I was only at home thirty-nine days last year. The work on the mission field, together with other health conditions while there and since leaving there, has made it necessary that I be at home with my family, but, of course, it did not necessitate my discontinuing work as a minister nor make it necessary for me to devote my entire time to making a living.

Sunday, a week ago, I taught a Bible class; preached in Pineville at 11 a. m.; attended church conference at 6:30 p. m., and preached again at 7:30 p. m. Monday evening I was in a meeting in the interest of a Christmas program, after which I had a meeting of a Wesley Bible Class. Wednesday evening, I conducted a prayer meeting. Thursday evening, I conducted a prayer meeting. Friday evening, I conducted a Boy Scouts meeting. Sunday I preached twice; taught, and held another church conference. I am acting as treasurer for the Louisiana Conference Sunday School Board, Assistant Scoutmaster in Alexandria, and will be pastor of the flock in Pineville, all the year, I presume.

At present all four of our children are in bed with the "flu," and the record for this week will not be quite as good as for last, but I am sure that our friends will see from the foregoing that my business is somewhat of a side line.

I am, with all good wishes to you and the Advocate, Fraternally yours,

C. V. BREITHAUPT.

RESOLUTIONS ON THE DEATH OF DR. JOHN MARVIN BURTON.

The Committee appointed by the Faculty of Millsaps College to draw and submit to the Faculty suitable resolutions on the death of Dr. J. M. Burton, Professor in Millsaps College, who recently died in France, beg leave to submit the following resolutions:

Whereas it has pleased Almighty God, in his infinite love and wisdom, to call our beloved colleague, Dr. John Marvin Burton, from his earthly labors to his heavenly reward, therefore, be it resolved:

1. That we bow in humble submission to this manifestation of the will of God, knowing that He with whom we have to do is too wise to err, and too good to be unkind.

2. That in the departure of Dr. John Marvin Burton this Faculty has lost a colleague wise in council, devoted in duty, ever watchful of the highest interests of the College, and an exponent of the loftiest ideals of scholarship and character. The students of the College have lost an instructor of the highest and most accurate scholarship, a skilful and devoted teacher, and a friend who held their welfare ever near to his heart. The College has gained the precious heritage of his noble example in life and in death, and has added a star to her renown in the memory of this man who died for his country and for humanity.

3. That his country has lost a citizen who loved and stood for all that is best in her, and willingly laid down his life that the ideals for which she went to war might prevail throughout the world.

4. That the sympathy of this Faculty shall be expressed to his bereaved family, and that a copy of these resolutions shall be spread upon the minutes of this Faculty.

Committee: A. A. Kern, J. Reese Lin, D. M. Key.

A BOY'S RIGHTS.

We find it easy to enlarge upon a boy's duties; we find it easy, altogether too easy, to tell a boy his faults; we find it easy to lay down the law to this embodiment of imperfectly-controlled life and vigor; but we do not usually have much to say about the rights which inhere in that same piece of animated nature. In the home, in the school, in the church, we find that only too often the boy is looked upon almost as the devil in disguise, and not so very much disguised at that, and we cover the boy's little world with placards, Don't! Don't! Don't! until the boy wonders what kind of a world it is into which he has come, and concludes, not very wrongly, that it certainly was never meant for boys. It may be that we insist that we love boys, and that all we do is out of love for them even when they fail to see it. But the boy has an instinctive knowledge of shams, and he knows well when we are lying, even when we don't know it ourselves.

The truth is we haven't time to waste on boys. We have time galore for prayer-meetings and committee meetings; time for regenerating the slums and evangelizing the heathen ten thousand miles away; time for gossip and time for fashion; time for mental improvement and time for recreation; we can go to the seaside, the mountains, the forest; we can fish and hunt, play bowls and golf, make money and spend it; these all take time, and they take so much time that we haven't time for our own boys, and so they are not brought up, but just grow up.

What a great revival it would be if the promise were fulfilled and the hearts of the fathers turned towards their children and the hearts of the children turned towards their fathers! If this were to come to pass, we would not hear so much cry for an evangelist to come along and convert us all over again. We venture to say that the pulpit has no more important note to strike than this very one, the note that nature, intelligence, patriotism and religion alike keep sounding so insistently, and often so vainly, the note that insists upon the value of the boys and girls. Our boys are worth more than our banks, our factories, our fisheries, our mines and our farms all rolled into one. Our boys are too good to be lost, too valuable to be neglected, too useful to be wasted, and altogether too lovable to be forgotten. What are we doing with them?

We find a lot of good people who insist upon trying to make the boys happy, but it is in their own way and not in the boys' way. A boy may not know very much, but he knows what he likes and what he doesn't like, and the man who tries to make boys think that cod-liver oil is ice cream will have to guess again. You may "put one over" once on a boy, but you don't usually do it twice. The truth is we have, most of us, a good deal of nonsense in our heads upon this point, and the fact that it is religious nonsense does not make it any the less nonsense. We have an idea that a boy's religion must be just like a man's, and so we try to feed him on the same religious pabulum. The boy does not like the food, but we are too foolish to recognize the fact until he disappears and we see him no more. We have failed to hold the boy, and we have failed, not because the boy was a bad boy, but because we have not been wise enough to understand his needs.

Boys like men. Boys like life. Boys like motion. To be dull is to be damned by the boy soul. How many of our sermons, and prayers, and religious gatherings are really adapted to boy life? If we expect the boys of to-day to go to heaven by way of the old theology, the old experiences and the old methods, we had better remember that these utterly failed to reach boys even in their palmiest days. In those days boys drifted; surely we ought to be wiser. Jesus Christ is emphatically a boy's man, and His life is full of just such movement and dramatic incident and charm as boys delight in, and the boys' attachment to Jesus Christ will be none the less real and none the weaker because it is less formal than ours. Thank God, the Church is waking up to the value and possibilities of boy life, but our eyes need yet to be opened a good deal wider. Preacher, what are you doing for the boys of your church? They need sympathy, kindness, help over youth's rough places. They are not getting much help. Where do you stand? What are you doing?—Christian Guardian.

REV. W. S. LAGRONE—AN APPRECIATION.

(Written by Dr. R. A. Meek, and read at the late session of the North Mississippi Conference at Clarksdale.)

When on November 20, 1918, at Drew, Miss., Rev. W. S. Lagrone closed his eyes in death, "a burning and a shining light" in the Church Militant went out, and as the sad news that he had passed away was spread abroad, there were sad hearts and tear-wet eyes all over North Mississippi. Since its organization in 1870, this Conference (the North Mississippi) has been blessed with the lives and labors of some as worthy itinerants as perhaps ever wrought in any section of world-wide Methodism, but none of these moved upon a higher plane, or toiled more unselfishly or unremittingly, or left behind a more inspiring record than this spiritual son of Wesley, who was the latest to go from us during this Conference year, so filled with bereavements. There may have been some among us who were more widely known to the Church and the world at large; but—

"A whiter soul, a fairer mind,
A life with purer course and aim,
A gentler eye, a voice more kind,
We may not look on earth to find.
The love that lingers o'er his name
Is more than fame."

William Sylvester Lagrone, son of Rev. G. M. and Mrs. M. E. Lagrone, was born in Perry County, Alabama, on January 27, 1846. His father was a Methodist local preacher of more than ordinary force; so he came of godly parentage and was the product of a Christian home. From his youth he was clean in thought and conduct. It is said that he never tasted an intoxicating beverage or used an oath in his life. He was converted in August, 1865; was licensed to preach in 1871, and was admitted on trial into the traveling connection by the North Mississippi Conference in 1872. In 1874 he was admitted into full connection and was ordained deacon by Bishop Doggett. He received elder's orders in 1876, at the hands of Bishop George F. Pierce.

The following appointments were served by Brother Lagrone: Bellefontaine Circuit, 1873-74; Attala Circuit, 1875-78; Liberty Circuit, 1879-80; French Camps Circuit, 1881; Winona Circuit, 1882-85; Grenada Circuit, 1886; Valden Circuit, 1887-89; Corinth District, 1890-93; Aberdeen District, 1894; Senatobia Station, 1895-96; West Point Station, 1897-98; Wood Street, Water Valley, 1899; Sardis District, 1900-01; Durant District, 1902-05; Cleveland Station, 1906-07; Conference Missionary Secretary and Evangelist, 1908-09; Greenville Station, 1910-13; Clarksdale Station, 1914-15; Drew Station, 1916-18. The deceased was also a member of the General Conference which met in Birmingham, Ala., in 1906.

In 1869, Brother Lagrone was happily married to Miss Frances Hall, of Alabama, who shared his fortunes in the itinerancy until 1905, when she died at Cleveland, Miss. Of this union, ten childdren were born: Mr. W. F. Lagrone, a prominent business man of West Point, Miss.; Mrs. W. W. Lake, of Aberdeen; Mrs. E. S. Byers, of Water Valley, deceased; Marvin Lagrone, who died at Grenada; Kenneth Andrew Lagrone, whose life ended at Senatobia; Mrs. James Henderson, of Charleston, Miss.; Mrs. P. C. Wall, of Drew, and Miss Beulah Lagrone, Mr. C. E. Lagrone, and Miss Laura Lagrone, of New Orleans, La.

The career of Brother Lagrone as a Methodist itinerant extended over a period of forty-five years, during which time he was continuously on the effective list. When he hearkened to the Master's call and took up his life-work, viewed from the standpoint of the schoolmen, he was very meagerly equipped for it, his educational instruction having carried him through only the eighth or ninth grade of the common schools of that day; but he knew the value of books and knowledge, rightly used, and resolved to make the most of his opportunities. So he managed, amid the arduous and pressing duties of his first years in the ministry, to set aside brief seasons for study, and he clung tenaciously to the hours thus marked off for self-improvement, using a pine torch for a light, if nothing better could be had. He always insisted upon the necessity of some quiet place, where, without interruption, he could pray, meditate, read, think, and store his mind with useful information, and in his later pastorates, if there was no such place, he was quick to provide it. As a result of his diligent and systematic study, he never ceased to grow intellectually. The late Rev. J. W. Honnoll remarked to me, just before Brother Lagrone was assigned to the Greenville Station in the fall of 1909, that he had improved in his pulpit efforts in the preceding ten years more than any other man of his acquaintance. It could be said of him, what can be said of very few men, that he was a better preacher at sixty-five than he was at forty-five or fifty. He became one of the best furnished ministers in his Conference, and in general efficiency he was surpassed by none among us, if indeed he had an equal.

Nature was generous in her gifts to this beloved servant of Christ, He had a magnificent physique, being tall, erect, and well proportioned. His face was frank, benevolent, and winsome; his eyes were bright and wonderfully expressive; his voice was clear, resonant, and musical, and his enunciation could not have been more perfect. He had in a remarkable degree that indefinable thing that we term a commanding presence. And his mental qualities were likewise of an uncommon order. He had a clear perception of the truth, sound reasoning faculties, an excellent memory, and a large amount of practical sense. He was somewhat impulsive at times, and this led some to speak of him as lacking in poise and judgment; but he made few mistakes, and his work was usually planned and executed with striking wisdom and skill.

I have never known a man whose credentials as an ambassador of Christ were more outstanding than those of Brother Lagrone. In the first place, he was a man of faith, prayer, and a holy life. He had, and exhibited, the mind of our Lord to such an extent that none who knew him could doubt that he lived in daily fellowship with him; yet there was about him no affectation, no cant, no parading of his piety. He had, furthermore, a consuming passion for souls. To rescue the perishing and to set up in its completeness the Kingdom of God in human hearts, was the dominant purpose of his life. This passion flamed forth in his pulpit messages and manifested itself in all his private ministrations. And as a still clearer attestation of his call to the ministry, the Holy Spirit worked through him. Where he wrought, souls were born anew, and those of the household of faith grew richer in the things of the Spirit. Higher than any endorsement that any ecclesiasticism can give, more to be prized than the loftiest honors of any Church, are these certifications of approval and of his presence as a co-worker from God himself. Without them, the most conspicuous ministry is but "as sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal," but with them, the lowliest toiler is lifted to a dignity that earth cannot bestow.

The Late Rev. W. S. Lagrone.

And what a worker was our glorified friend! His energy was Pauline. He dared not waste the precious time in which he was expected to do the Master's work. When on hard circuits and on districts, how heroically he strove to set forward the cause of righteousness! He moved with a pace that but few could keep, and the noble pioneers of American Methodism were not more enthusiastic and aggressively active than was he. Had he lived in their time, he would not have been an unworthy companion of Jesse Lee and Freeborn Garrettson. He was the finest example of the pastor-evangelist that ever came under my observation, and where he led the hosts of Zion, revival fires never failed to burn. There were no overlooked and neglected sheep in the pastorates of which he was the shepherd. Probably he led as many persons to Christ as any other preacher who ever labored in the regular work in the North Mississippi Conference. He was a great commoner, and understood the masses; but he carried in his bosom no prejudice against any class, and he sought to excite none in the breasts of others. His presiding elder, Rev. L. M. Lipscomb, did not speak too strongly when he wrote as follows: "His name was a household word among thousands, and his presence an inspiration to all that was truest, worthiest, and best among men. His convictions were deep, emphatic, and fundamental; his manner, gracious, charming, and genial as the sunshine; his bearing, dignified, but simple and winsome; his humor, keen, kindly, and contagious. His character had the solidity of granite; his life, the charm of sunlit heights; his personality, the attractiveness and glamor of romance. The history of Methodism in North Mississippi can never be written without giving him a large and conspicuous place in its annals."

Brother Lagrone made no pretension to being a great preacher, in the common acceptation of that term; but he was an able and effective expositor of the Word. The fervor of the orator was his, and his audiences listened with rapt attention as he presented the great themes of the Gospel simply, practically, and appealingly. His message took hold not only of the plain people of the farm, the shop, and the store, but also of scholarly professional men, who frequently were heard to express appreciation of his discourses. In his later years, there was probably no church in Southern Methodism in which his pulpit work would not have been profitable and acceptable.

As a gladiator in the great world-arena where the forces of light and darkness so fiercely contend, Brother Lagrone sounded out loud and clear a challenge to the enemies of his Lord, and, though not a harsh or rash man, he would not enter into a truce with any kind of evil. It has been well said of him: "There was nothing he feared but wrong, and he despised cowardice, weakness, and compromise. His spirit, courage and dash would have made him a noted man and leader in the martial ranks of any army or age." The first county in Mississippi to vote out the licensed saloon in a local option election was Montgomery County, and to Rev. W. S. Lagrone, then serving the Winona Circuit, this victory was acknowledged to be more largely due than to any other human agency.

He loved the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, with a deep and abiding affection; and, though he was broadminded and interested in the work of all Christian denominations, he did not feel that its mission had been fulfilled and that the time had come for it to cease to be. He was a connectional Methodist, and kept up with the general workings of the Church; and all the institutions, educational and benevolent, with which his Conference was connected were largely indebted to him for his loyal and helpful support. His worth was recognized by such leaders as Bishop Galloway and Bishop Murrah, who trusted him and held him in high esteem.

Though past his threescore years and ten, so gently had time dealt with Brother Lagrone that he scarcely had any of the infirmities of advanced years. His step was still elastic and firm, and, both mentally and physically, he seemed yet strong and vigorous. One did not think of him as being old. The illness which took him away was of brief duration. For about ten days he suffered with a form of rheumatism which was not thought to be dangerous. But on Wednesday, Nov. 20, he was seized with an attack of acute indigestion, involving his heart, and almost before those about him could realize that his life was menaced he had passed from among them. But was it not fitting that this modern Elijah, without wasting illness or ere he had become worn and feeble, should be thus caught up into the skies? True, when so suddenly taken, he could send no farewell message to his brethren and friends, but none was needed. His shining record of service, stretching over nearly a half-century, speaks to us more eloquently than any words human lips could have framed.

"Why mourn for him? For him
The welcome angel came
Ere yet his eye was dim,
Or bent his stalwart frame;
His weapon still was bright,
His shield was lifted high
To slay the wrong, to save the right—
What happier hour to die?"

The interment of his body took place at Winona, Miss. Referring to his obsequies in a statement in the New Orleans Christian Advocate, Rev. L. M. Lipscomb said: "We buried him beside the ashes of his beloved companion, who had preceded him to the heavenly world by twelve years. Amid the sobs of his own family and many dear, warm friends, we laid him to rest to await the resurrection of the Great Day. The other ministers present and assisting me in the service were Rev. V. C. Curtis, Rev. W. N. Duncan, Rev. W. S. Shipman, Rev. R. A. Tucker, Rev. L. P. Wasson, and Rev. John Ritchey."

Friend and fellow-laborer, farewell! Thou art gone, but thou shalt not be forgotten. Fondly we shall cherish thy memory; we shall strive to emulate thy virtues, and we hope finally to become fit to be thy companions in the eternal home of the pure and good.

THE STORY OF IN-DOOR SUN.

Once on a time, in far Japan,
There lived a busy little man,
So merry and so full of fun
That people called him In-door Sun.

Now, In-door Sun made mirrors fine,
Like those in your house and in mine,
And in these looking-glasses bright,
His own face saw from morn till night.

It made him feel so very sad
To see his face look cross and bad,
That he began to take great care
To keep a sweet smile always there.

And soon he found that those he knew,
All seemed to like him better, too;
For, like the mirrors, every one
Began to smile at In-door Sun!

Now, try this just one day and see
How bright and smiling you can be;
You'll find both happiness and fun
In playing you're an "in-door sun!"

AT BEDTIME JUNCTION.

"Change cars for Dreamland!"

Boy roused up a little. He moved his hand and it touched the arm of the low rocker. He felt for his picture book. It was gone. He thought that it had dropped on the floor. Still he did not open his eyes.

"Passengers for Dreamland, change cars!"

Boy knew the voice. He wanted to answer. He tried to lift his head, but it was so heavy that he could not move it. His lips parted, and after a while he said: "What-t?"

"This is the place where we change cars," said the voice; "it is Bedtime Junction. We reach here at seven fifty-nine. The gentleman called Mr. Charles Albert has taken the Dreamland car. I came back after you, and we must go at once."

Boy felt himself lifted by strong arms. The next thing he knew he was laid in a soft bed, and a soft hand was drawing a white sheet over him, while a soft voice said: "This is the Dreamland car. You do not change again till morning. I will let you know. I look after all the passengers. I am the conductor."

Boy's eyes opened wide. "You're mamma," he said.

Mamma kissed Boy's plump, pink cheeks. His eyes closed again, and the Dreamland car moved on, carrying Boy with a through ticket in his night-cap.—Youth's Companion.

THE LITTLE WHEEL.

"Tick-tock, tick-tock," away the old clock worked just as hard as it could, and all at once, what do you think happened? It stopped!

Grandmother said: "My, the clock has stopped. That will never do."

So she wound it, and wound it, but it would not run even a little bit. Then she shook it really hard, but not a tick would it make. She got tired of worrying with such a contrary old clock so she put it back on the mantel and left it.

Now what do you suppose made it stop running? Well, I will tell you. A tiny wheel inside said to himself:

"Pshaw, what is the use in just turning all the time? I'm tired." Now it happened that one of the springs heard the little wheel complaining and it said:

"Shame on you, Little Wheel, to think of stopping your work. Don't you know all of us will have to stop too?"

"Oh, well I don't care. I'm tired," said Little Wheel.

Just then a big wheel spoke up and said:

"Look here, Little Wheel, what makes you so lazy? We don't want to stop work."

"Can't help it," said Little Wheel. "I'm going to stop now."

About that time a little screw called up to the little wheel and said:

"I'm heap smaller than you, Little Wheel, and I'm not tired. Move on."

Then a pinion nudged Little Wheel in the back, and that gave him such a shock he had to run a few minutes longer. Then he grew very angry and said:

"Just for spite I'm going to take a nap."

So sure enough, he lay right down and begun to snore. That was when the clock really stopped.

Well, about this time the Face was wondering what had happened, and the Minute Hand yelled up to the Hour Hand to know what the trouble was.

"Can't tell you," said the Hour Hand, "I just know that I can't move."

"How terrible," said the Minute Hand, "when every one who comes into the room looks at us the first thing and blames us for not working."

Finally a wee voice in the back of the clock called to the hands and said:

"Little Wheel has gotten contrary and gone to sleep."

This made the Hands very angry and they told all the Wheels, Screws, Springs and Pinions to make as much noise as they could, and wake up Little Wheel. They danced, yelled and poked Little Wheel in the ribs, and after pulling him around a little they managed to get his eyes open. He pretended to be awfully sick, but they all knew that Little Wheel was "playin' possum." So they continued to poke him and tickle him, and one big wheel actually sat on his head. Still Little Wheel would not promise to do any work.

Well, the next day the Wheels, Screws, Springs, Pinions and Hands were in a fever of excitement, for Grandfather had put the clock in his automobile and the next thing these funny little things knew they were speeding down town.

"Little Wheel is running now whether he wants to or not," laughed one of the Springs.

The auto stopped in front of a big jewelry store and Grandfather left the clock with a stern-looking man and told him to fix it.

This man took the clock all to pieces, and I'll tell you, Little Wheel was scared almost to death. When the man looked at all the springs and things he said:

"Oh, yes. The trouble is with this Little Wheel. I'll just give it a big dose of oil."

Little Wheel made an awful face and the other Wheels and Springs giggled and some of them crooked their fingers at Little Wheel when the man had his back turned.

After the man gave Little Wheel the dose of oil he put the clock back together and you should have seen how Little Wheel did work. And when Grandfather took the clock home and put in on the mantel Little Wheel said:

"How good it is to be at home again, and ugh, how bad that oil tasted!"—The Christian Intelligencer.

"SOW A THOUGHT."

That which one stores up in one's mind, that which one continually thinks about, affects one's entire being—body, soul and spirit—either for good or for ill.

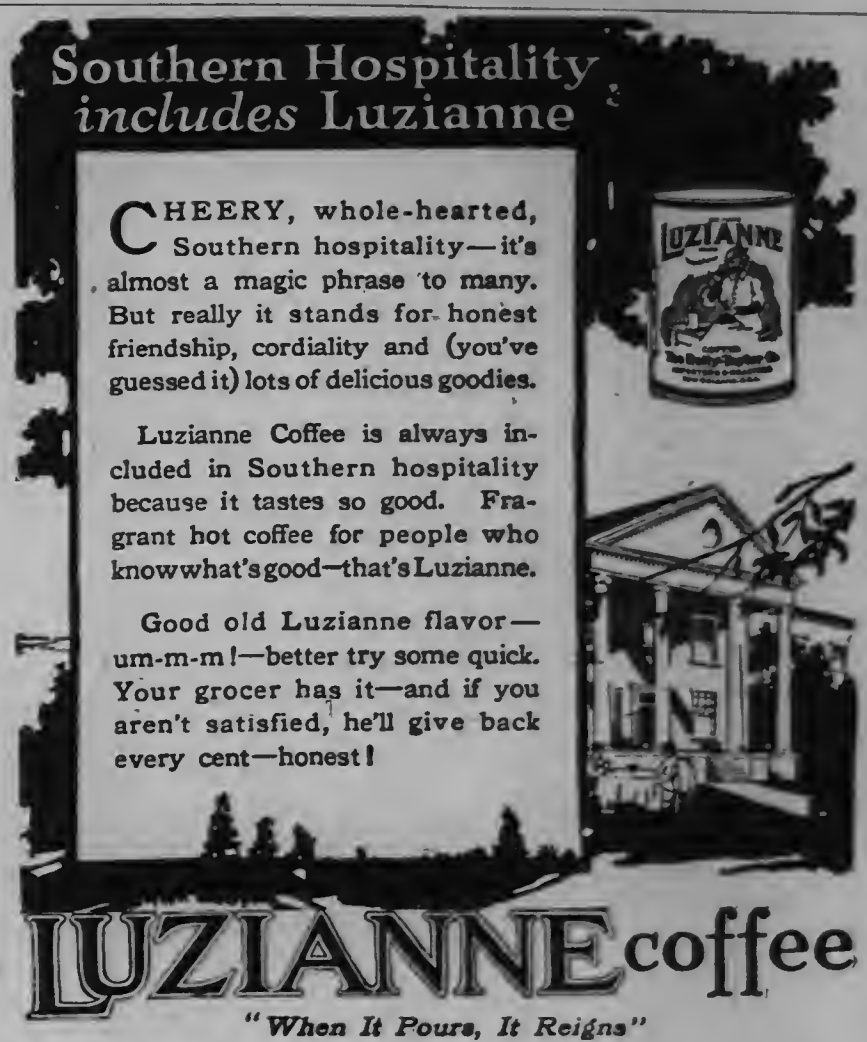
If one fills his mind with the Word of God, believing it with all his heart, great blessing will be the result. There is life and power in the Word.

The importance of saying portions of Holy Writ over and over in one's mind in the time of temptation, in the time of trial, in the time of sickness, can not be overestimated.

The Word is the sword of the Spirit, and we can wield it against the enemy by persistenly holding selected portions in our minds and hearts.

In time of temptation use Gal. 2:20: "I am crucified with Christ."

In time of trial use Psalm 91:1: "He that dwelleth in the secret place of the most high shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty."



In time of sickness use Matt. 7:17: "'Himself took our infirmities and bare our sicknesses."

Satan can not stand the thrusts from the sword of the Spirit; and when we vigorously and intelligently use this wonderful weapon, victory will be ours.—Exchange.

THE CHRISTIAN'S NEEDS.

The Christian needs the saving power of hope. He needs the conviction that Christ's grace within him is omnipotent; that the life in Jesus will not be a failure; that the Christian's victory, if he holds steadfast, is a matter of certainty. What he needs is to be sealed with the Holy Spirit of promise, which is an earnest of our inheritance into the redemption of God's own possession, unto the praise of His glory.—G. D. Boardman.

DIRECTIONS.

All checks and money orders should be made payable to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications pertaining to subscriptions and other business matters should be addressed to the Manager, or to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications intended for the Editor should be directed to him at 512 Camp Street. Correspondents will observe the following rules: 1. Write on only one side of the paper. 2. If you have a typewriter, by all means use it; otherwise, use a good quality of black ink. 3. Leave a space of at least two inches at the top of the first page; leave a margin of at least an inch on the left-hand side of the page; do not crowd the words and the lines together. 4. Take special pains to write proper names correctly and legibly. 5. Use letter paper if you can get it—not note paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after three or four weeks, notify us, and we will make it right.

THE PASTOR AND THE CENTENARY MOVEMENT.

The Methodist preacher has more things to look after than any other man we know of. In addition to the tasks that arise out of his assignment to a particular church, there are many duties laid upon him through his membership in a great connectional system. Those who are especially charged with carrying out various parts of our complex program because of their special fitness and training for that particular work, look to him as their efficient and ever ready helper. Special days are appointed to be observed, direct appeals are made, voluminous literature is sent him—all with the idea, apparently, that he must, of necessity, be as intensely interested in all these things as are those whose special interest they are.

The case cannot very well be otherwise, for, after all has been said and done, it remains true that the pastors of Methodism are the secret of the success or failure of any or all of our great movements. If they enter intelligently, heartily and enthusiastically into any movement, that movement will succeed. If they look upon it with continued indifference, its fate is sealed. Our observation has been that the great majority of our preachers are ready to support whole-heartedly every worthy cause.

All of us need to realize that the fullest success of our great Centenary Missionary Movement is dependent upon the cheerful co-operation of the preachers. We, as preachers, need to realize that the responsibility for success or failure rests squarely upon our shoulders. If we as a whole look on with indifference, or shirk our plain duty, this greatest program our Church has ever undertaken will not be carried out as it should be.

We believe that the preachers of Louisiana and Mississippi realize the part they have to play in the Centenary Movement, and that they will be found faithful in every particular. It is a movement big enough to challenge the faith of the strongest among us; its application to the work of the Church as a whole is wide enough to inspire our most earnest efforts; its beneficent results for the world at large are evident enough to arouse us to a high degree of enthusiasm in our support. Let us keep ourselves thoroughly informed as to the plans and methods and meaning of the Movement, that we may worthily lead our people in this great cause.

THE CIGARETTE PROPAGANDA.

We are not fanatical on the subject of tobacco, and we don't fall into hysterics when we see men smoking cigarettes. But we think it is exceedingly unfortunate that the cigarette manufacturers seem to have been able, on account of the war, to enlist the Government and various welfare organizations in their efforts to extend the sale of their product. If their activities had been restricted merely to supplying the needs of the men who had already contracted the cigarette habit, it would not have been so bad; but apparently it has been made enticingly easy for non-smokers to acquire the seductive habit. Of course the sale of cigarettes will be largely increased after the boys come home. This may be good business—but it doesn't appeal to us very strongly from the standpoint of morals.

THE OLD GUARD.

We hope these letters are as interesting to our readers as they are to us—and we believe they are. We wish we could shake hands with all these old-time readers of the Advocate and bid them Godspeed on their journey to the Promised Land.

"Dear Brother Carley: I was converted on the ninth day of September, about 4 p. m., 1871. I joined the Methodist Church that night. A protracted meeting had been going on all that week, conducted by our sainted brother, G. W. Brown, at West, Miss. Early in the year 1872, I subscribed for the New Orleans Christian Advocate, and I have continued to be a subscriber to the present time. I have served as steward, Sunday school superintendent and recording secretary most of the time. I am 76 years old, and expect to continue the balance of the time allotted me to read the Advocate. "W. D. BROCK.

"West, Miss."

"Dear Brother: The first paper I ever remember taking out of the post office was the New Orleans Christian Advocate addressed to Daniel McLean, about the year 1855 or '56. It has been coming to my home ever since, except during the war, and once since—about two years. I could not get along without the Advocate.

"Yours truly,

"J. W. McLEAN.

"Darlington, La."

"Dear Brother Carley: I have been reading the New Orleans Christian Advocate almost continuously for forty-eight years. It has been a source of inspiration to me that is beyond computation. I cannot see how any Methodist family can get along without it. May God bless you in your work. "J. T. M. HANCOCK.

"Ruston, La."

"Dear Brother Carley: I have been a subscriber to the Advocate about 51 years. I served three years in the Civil War, was married in 1866, and subscribed for the Advocate in 1868. It has been a weekly visitor to my home ever since, and it has been a great blessing to me. I still look forward to its arrival every week with joy and pleasure. "B. S. ALFORD.

"McComb City, Miss."

"Dear Brother Carley: I subscribed for the Advocate in 1876, and have been taking it ever since. I enjoy reading it very much. I love my Church and my paper. I was born in 1831, and have been a member of the Church since 1844. I remember seeing several preachers on their way to the first Louisiana Conference, in 1847. They stopped at the home of an aunt of mine, where I was staying, and stayed several days, as it was raining. Brother Powell was their pilot, as the country was new to them. You will see from the above that I have been a subscriber for 42 years.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. P. S. Carpenter, formerly of St. Francisville, La., writes that he has reached his new field at labor at Springfield, La., and that he has been given a most cordial reception.

Rev. W. D. Kleinschmidt, of Louisiana Avenue Church, this city, reached his field of labor soon after Conference, and is living with his family at the parsonage, 1110 Louisiana Avenue.

Rev. Ben P. Jaco, Missionary Centenary Secretary, North Mississippi Conference, is now comfortably located at Winona, Miss., and reports that he will go at once into the Centenary work.

Rev. C. A. Battle, of First Church, Baton Rouge, La., and Rev. C. E. Fike, of Rayne, La., enjoy the distinction among the preachers of the Louisiana Conference of being the first to be returned for the fifth year to their charges.

Rev. Paul H. Grice writes that he and his family received a very cordial welcome to their new appointment, Saucier, Miss. The good ladies had prepared a sumptuous dinner for them. The outlook is bright for a good year on that charge.

Press reports announce the death of Rev. A. D. Betts, at Greensboro, N. C., on Dec. 18, at the age of 86. Dr. Betts was known as the "Father of North Carolina Methodism." He is survived by five children, two of whom are preachers.

We regret to learn that Rev. John W. Chisholm, of Silver Creek, Miss., who was assigned to the Brandon charge at the recent session of the Mississippi Conference, has been sick with influenza. We are glad to be able to report, however, that his condition is improving.

Rev. C. A. Northington makes the following report for the New Albany circuit, North Mississippi Conference: Accessions to the Church, 53; Bibles sold, $100 worth; new Disciplines sold, 100; signers to Intercessary Prayer cards, 150; all assessments paid in full.

Rev. Olin Ray, who closed a two years' pastorate on the Tunica charge, North Mississippi Conference, at the recent session of that Conference, reported that during his pastorate he had received sixty members into the Church, razed a considerable debt, and had more than met all assessments.

Brother F. H. Murphy has removed his home from Value, Miss., to Eliendale, Tenn., but he will continue to keep in touch with his friends in Mississippi through the Advocate. He is especially interested in the news of the North Mississippi Conference, since his son-in-law is a member of that body.

Rev. K. W. Dodson, our pastor at Minden, La., in a letter dated Dec. 20, writes: "One of our most prominent laymen, J. M. Miller, for many years chairman of the Board of Stewards, died suddenly last Sunday night. I am gaining my strength slowly, after being in bed 35 days with influenza. The church work starts off well."

Rev. J. G. Sneiling, the new presiding elder of the New Orleans District, began his official service by preaching at the Algiers Methodist Church on Sunday evening, Dec. 15, and holding the first quarterly conference on Monday evening. His residence is 2317 State Street, and his telephone number is Walnut 1752-L.

Rev. R. S. Walton, who, at the recent session of the Louisiana Conference, was appointed to Winnfield, La., has reached his new field, and has made a splendid beginning of the year's work. He received four into the Church on Sunday, December 15, three of them on profession of faith. He has engaged Rev. Dan E. Kelley, Mississippi Conference Evangelist, to assist him in a meeting at Winnfield, beginning January 1.

Dr. Wm. T. Ellis, who is well known in religious circles, as well as in the newspaper world, has been engaged by the New York Herald to make an independent study of social, political and religious conditions in the near East. His investigations as a trained and independent student of Eastern affairs will be of special value to that great host of persons whose primary interest in the near East is because of its religious associations.

We learn with great sorrow that Mrs. S. J. Wells, the mother of Rev. J. A. Wells, of Oak Ridge, Miss., passed away on December 15. She had passed her seventy-first birthday. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. W. M. Commander, of the North Mississippi Conference, who will, in due time, furnish an obituary. We extend our sincere sympathies to Brother Wells and all the members of the bereaved family.

Good citizens are asked by the State Councils of Defense to keep their eyes open for members to help the local Council in the important work of readjustment from a state of war to a state of peace. The problem is not a cold-blooded economic problem of "taking up labor." It is a problem of giving our defenders an immediate opportunity to find a place in which they can be independent, contented and productive citizens.

The Moody Bible Institute, of Chicago, has announced a great conference on World Evangelism and Vital Christianity after the war, to be held February 3-7, 1919. Religious leaders from all parts of the country will attend, and it is expected that a concerted movement of world-wide scope will be launched. The emphasis will be on evangelism, testimony and service, Bible study, prayer, missions, church efficiency, personal work, and the devotional life.

Rayne Memorial Church, of this city, has made a Christmas offering of $8000 to pay off the debt on the parsonage. This debt has existed for ten years, and had become a source of annoyance and a handicap to the church's progress. The pastor, Dr. U. G. Foote, suggested to the congregation that the money to meet this obligation be laid on the altar as a Christmas offering, and under the capable management of Mr. T. J. Ferguson, with the pastor's assistance, the subscription was closed Sunday night. The pastor is raising an additional $1000 to put the building in good repair.

Rev. R. W. Vaughan, the efficient Statistical Secretary of the Louisiana Conference, dropped into the office last Thursday to make a slight correction in the statistical tables of the Minutes, which will be printed by the Publisher of the Advocate. Incidentally, Brother Vaughan stated that even a slight change involved a considerable amount of work. A change of one item in the financial report involves twelve alterations in the table as a whole. The brethren can very readily see that, from the Statistical Secretary's point of view, it is very important that they have their reports made out correctly.

The argument of Director General McAdoo for the extension of the period of Federal control of railroads to five years is, to our mind, forcefully put. Its essence is in the following quotation from his letter to Hon. T. W. Sims, chairman of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee of the House: "This extension would take the railroad question out of politics for a reasonable period. It would give composure to railroad officers and employees. It would admit of the preparation and carrying out of a comprehensive program of improvements of the railroads and their terminal facilities which would immensely increase the efficiency of the transportation machine. It would put back of the railroads the credit of the United States during the five-year period so that the financing of these improvements could be successfully carried out. It would offer the necessary opportunity under proper conditions to test the value of unified control, and the experience thus gained would of itself indicate the permanent solution of the railroad problem."

TO THE PRESIDING ELDERS AND PASTORS OF THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Dear Brethren: Letters of inquiry with reference to the new plan of collecting for the benevolences suggests the following statement:

There are hut two collections, the Connectional, and the Conference or local fund. In the Connectional is included the amount for Bishops, which has been collected heretofore hy the presiding elders. All funds are to be sent to W. D. Davis, Conference Treasurer, Brookhaven, Miss., and the pastor designates whether the money sent is for the Connectional or Conference fund. If no designation is given, the treasurer will divide on the per cent basis.

It is further requested that the collections be taken, and amounts sent promptly to the treasurer, as the law requires that he remit to the treasurer of the several hoards monthly.

Fraternally,
M. L. BURTON,
For Commission.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO MEMBERS OF THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

Dear Brother Carley: Please state in the Advocate that Brother S. H. Meyer is acting as Treasurer of the Board of Missions at my request, and that I have requested his election in my place by the Executive Committee.

ARMENIAN AND SYRIAN RELIEF OFFERINGS TO BE SENT TO DR. CHAPPELL.

All Christmas offerings of our Sunday schools for Armenian and Syrian Relief should be forwarded with the name of the school and Conference to Dr. E. B. Chappell, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn. If this is done, the school may report to its Conference the amount as a "missionary special." If this is not done, no guarantee can be given that the school and our Church will receive proper credit for the work done. Of all appeals occasioned hy the war, none has a more compelling force than this one, especially at this season when multitudes of children are perishing for want of hread. A drive will he made from January 12 to 19 for $30,000,000 for the 4,000,000 refugees. President Wilson has issued a special proclamation putting this claim upon the heart and conscience of the American people.

If any school has not made its offering, let it do so, make it as large as possible, and forward to Nashville.

E. B. CHAPPELL,
Sunday School Secretary.

"I WAS HUNGRY."

There are few more suggestive sayings of Christ than those hrief hut pithy ones in which He identified Himself with needy humanity to such an extent that He declared that when humanity hungers, when it is sick or in prison He himself is sick and in prison, and when we relieve the human need we are ministering to Christ, and when we forget it we are forgetting Him. To show that this is not mere rhetoric He declares that upon this very fact of our treatment of needy humanity will depend our future bliss or woe. The man who ignores human need is not a candidate for glory even if he has been most gloriously converted and has given a lifetime of service to the Church.

When we think this over in connection with the Church life of the day we are apt to be startled and ask if the Lord really meant what He said, for in this passage there is nothing about conversion, nothing about faith, hut merely what some call "good works." And yet our Lord did not belittle either conversion or faith; He simply showed what they really meant to human life. The conversion that simply pitchforks a man into the seventh heaven of spiritual delight, where for forty years he proceeds to "sit and sing himself away to everlasting bliss" is not the work of God; and the faith which merely assures the man of his own salvation and leaves his heart unresponsive to the cry of the hungry and the oppressed is not the faith which "bringeth salvation." Christianity which can be measured by church loyalty or ecclesiastical enthusiasm is not the scriptural type.

Conversion means more than uniting with the Church. Christianity means more than changing our environment. Rightly understood, conversion means the passing of more or less comprehensive egoism and the incoming of a genuine and progressive altruism. The very first impulse of a newly-converted man is to help his neighhor, and it is this impulse, wisely directed, which insures the growth of the kingdom of God. There has been a tendency to restrict this impulse to churchly channels and to maintain that its chief manifestation should be the desire to save the soul of a neighhor, and in the restriction we have defeated the very ohject of the impulse, and we have nullified the Master's plans by improving on them. George Sunday tells of a prominent employer of labor who was converted and who decided at once to hold a prayer-meeting of his employees, but in the preliminary announcement he declared that there would be at once an increase of fifteen per cent in wages. It is probably unnecessary to say that this did more to convince those employees of the genuineness of their employer's conversion than would a hundred prayer-meetings.

Christ wants us to see Him in our working men and women; He wants us to see Him in the children who need play grounds and education; He wants us to hear His cry in every voice of oppressed or hard-bested humanity. For us Christ isn't in heaven, He is on earth; He isn't in the church, He is in the life of man; He isn't in our worship so much, but in our humanity or inhumanity in the shop, the street and the home. And in the cry of the world's unrest we may hear the voice of our Lord, and if we desire to help Him we must help men.—The Christian Guardian.

"Kind looks, kind words, kind acts and warm handshakes—these are secondary means of grace when men are in trouble, and are fighting their unseen battles."

Isn't This Worth Thinking About?

Suppose five years ago you had $100.00 and have been saving it in some "secure" place, such as the dresser drawer? If you now wish to use it, you still have $100.00. No more—no less.

Had you placed that money in our bank you would now have $116.00 instead of just $100.00, for that's just the amount of interest your money would have earned, without the slightest worry or exertion on your part.

It has been officially announced that Corporal JAMES D. RED, of the 34th Inf., Co. "D," A. E. F., was killed in action, on November 3, 1918. He volunteered, May 14, 1917. He spent 14 months in the Mexican Border service, and was awarded the Mexican service badge for distinguished service. He was sent overseas in August last, a part of the 7th Army Division. He was classed as a sharpshooter and machine gun operator. He was a fine specimen of young manhood, and a noble character. Our grief knows no bounds! Heart-broken hardly expressed our stricken condition. My life was centered in his life and I feel to-night as if my fondest hope has been wiped out by a fate more cruel than the grave. He was all I had left of my first family. He was so noble and brave! O God, help us to endure all things! Pray for me.

WALTER LONSFORD SIVELY, of Memphis, Tenn., formerly of Olive Branch, Miss., died on October 11, 1918, after a short illness from pneumonia. He was born at Lewisburg, Miss., on February 7, 1892, and his age was 26 years, seven months, at the time of his death. His father moved to Olive Branch when he was quite small. He was a member of the Methodist Church; a zealous worker in the Epworth League and Sabbath school. At an early age, he went to the Delta to work and made a good record as a business young man. Failing health brought him home—then after a lingering sickness and serious operation, he abandoned his delta work, taking a place in the Hernando post office. From Hernando he went to Memphis, where he secured a position which he filled creditably to the time of his death. He was called to the colors in the summer, but after going to Camp Gordon, failed to pass the physical examination. He then returned to Memphis and took his former position. His employer expressed great gratification at being able to again secure his services. His death has brought gloom and sorrow to the community in which he was reared, and to his large circle of friends.

We deeply sympathize with his bereaved father, aged grandmother, and other relatives. Their sorrow is in a measure ours, for his genial nature and frank and manly habits made for him many friends wherever he was known. The question often arises in our minds—Why are earth's fairest flowers the first to wither? Why the rarest song-bird soonest to cease its song? Why do brightest visions hope displays grow dim with the flying years, and home's blest circle yield its loved to relentless death? We know not why our idols fall. We know not why Thought folds her wings powerless to pierce the veil. We know not why; but this we know—God ruleth well. "God loveth whom He chasteneth." Oh, weary, sad-hearted father and aged grandmother, let every murmuring thought be hushed and sink into His will. "God loveth whom He chasteneth." Let this thought be a beacon light to guide you through this dark sorrow.

By thy hand this boon was given;
Thou hast taken but thine own;
Lord of earth and God of heaven:
Evermore—Thy will be done.

The subject of this sketch, Mr. GEORGE W. WEEMS, was born in Scott County, Mississippi, on February 2, 1851. He was married to Miss Mary E. Vinzandt on December 17, 1876. To this union were born six daughters. On October 30, 1918, he was called to the home above. Brother Weems was a brother to the late Rev. J. M. Weems, of our Conference. Brother Weems leaves his wife and six daughters, two brothers and three sisters, and a host of loved ones and friends. Brother Weems embraced religion in early life and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at Carr's Church on the Homewood charge. In later years, he was licensed to exhort, and was an exhorter at the time of his death. Brother Weems loved his Church, and I found him to be a great friend to his pastor, and very helpful. He was able in prayer, and he was always ready to do his part. Brother Weems will be missed not only by his wife and children and other loved ones, but will be missed by the preachers that have known him well, and who have been his pastors. "I heard a voice from heaven saying unto me, write, 'Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord.'"

LESLIE CARL HUNT was born June 17, 1896, and died Oct. 20, 1918. Between the above dates was lived a life so full of promise that its going falls like a shadow on our hearts, and leaves a vacancy that time can hardly fill. His boyhood was spent on his father's farm near Deerford, La., where, surrounded with plenty, he was only denied the enervating luxuries of life, and pursued a boyhood life best suited to the development of the character and talents which he possessed. He enjoyed to the full the sports of field and stream, shooting, swimming or fishing in season. He learned faithfully and well the lessons of his life: to follow the plow or take his row with the hoe. At the same time, in ideal surroundings he was developing those characteristics for which he was known and loved in after life. Having finished at the Deerford High School, he matriculated at Louisiana State University and entered upon a course of training for his life-work. Here his unusual talents were soon made manifest. With marked ability, he pursued a course of electrical engineering. By disposition he was amiable and lovable, so that he was a general favorite. He was a born optimist. Nothing dampened his spirits or daunted him. He cheerfully accepted disappointment, and soon his ready humor would come to the rescue. When our country went to war with Germany, he at once responded. He was sent to the Officers' Training Camp at Fort Root, but was found physically deficient. He tried the various branches of service, only to be met with the same answer. He was offered a position on the faculty of L. S. U. after his graduation, but his answer was that he would not sell himself to the University while there was a possibility of his being of service to his country. When the Students' Army Training Corps was opened, he entered. He was at once made instructor and showed signal ability. When this great epidemic dropped its blighting curtain over our land, bringing sorrow and death, many of our brightest and best were taken. He also fell. All that medical skill could do was done, but complications set in and it was impossible to save him. His father was with him when he died. He realized that death was near, and, like a soldier, was not afraid. Looking into his father's face, his last words were, "Papa, I am not afraid to die." He leaves a father, mother, one brother and three sisters, with a host of friends and relatives to mourn their loss. But, thank God, we mourn not as those who mourn without hope. Having joined the Church in early boyhood, he lived within its pales and was obedient to its teachings. His was a life whose strength and purity were based on the fundamentals of the Gospel. To his sorrowing loved ones we commend the grace and consolation of God's Spirit. We pray God's richest benedictions upon them.

The life of Miss MAMIE BUCKLEY, of Winona, Miss., cannot be written in a few words, or even in words at all. Her life lives in a more durable form than words. The gracious and sterling qualities that characterize her life shone clear and distinct in all her daily life. She was a woman of fine mind—a student who possessed a wide and thorough knowledge of things. Her cultured mind and heart made hers an interesting and attractive personality. Her character was as solid as granite that yielded to a high polish. She was a woman of large sympathies. I recall nothing that pertains to educational, church or community affairs that she was not intensely interested in. Her church activities were many and efficient. Her life was full of deeds of service for her fellow-men. Winona and Moore Memorial Church have a rich heritage in her faithful and gifted life. Her religious life was an inspiration. She gave her all to her Lord, whom she loved with a great love. Her Christian experience was clear, decisive and radiant. Through all these years she walked as a friend with her Great Friend, and to-day she is in her Father's house. As her pastor for four years, I write these simple words out of a heartfelt appreciation of a life which shall always be an inspiration to me. O. W. BRADLEY.

THE MEMPHIS HOSPITAL

YES, the Memphis, Mississippi, North Mississippi and North Arkansas Conferences own and are operating a well equipped hospital in Memphis known as the Methodist Hospital, Lucy Brinkley Annex, with fifty beds devoted exclusively to surgical and maternity cases for women and children. Special terms will be made to the wife or child of a Methodist preacher.

Whatever delays there may have been or may be in the beginning and completion of the new hospital building have been and will be due to the exigencies of the war and our banking facilities and not to the ownership of the Lucy Brinkley Annex. We call upon everyone to send in all past due subscriptions and to talk and work and pray for new ones. We need all the help possible.

We have lost two people at Cochrane, Ala., as a consequence of the influenza, Mr. FRED HANSON, and a small boy of the Heritage family.

Brother Hanson was born in Norway, and spent most of his life in Tennessee. He came to Cochrane, Ala., about ten years ago, and purchased property. He was a good church man and a worthy citizen. His two sons, who were married in Kentucky and in Tennessee, and now handle plantation business at Cochrane, indicate by their manly bearing and devotion to duty that their father was true to them, and trained them for the high purposes which he strove to exemplify in his life.

The small boy, BELVIN, of the Heritage home, was "of the kingdom of heaven," and by his going creates another strong incentive for the entire family to be found faithful, and to live not simply for time, but for eternity also. A. H. WILLIAMS.

Cochrane, Ala., Dec. 2, 1918.

JOSEPH JAMES WILSON, son of Dr. J. J. and Mrs. Lucy Wilson, was born at Coldwater, Miss., March 26, 1886. He was educated at Clarksville, Tenn., studying his profession at Louisville and Tulane. He was a physician by inheritance and by natural bent. Always in love with his profession, he never ceased to strive for the attainment of greater efficiency in its practice. The idealness of his nature led him to look at medicine otherwise than as a means of getting money. He loved the practice much for the opportunity for using his mind, but more as a means of doing good. At 12 years of age he entered the Methodist Church. About Oct. 1 he was stricken with the disease then epidemic, but continued to practice, and visited his patients for several days while he was a very sick man. Despite the efforts of his family, friends and brother physician, on Oct. 16th, 1918, he passed into the other life, muttering in his delirium the keynote word of his life, "self-sacrifice, self-sacrifice." Living and dying in the place of his birth, known of all and loved of all, his splendid young life came to its end with universal sorrow. The day following his death, word came that he had been accepted as a surgeon for war service. He was happily married to Miss Jimmie Wilson. But into the sorrow of his broken home and the grief of wife and mother and brother and sister, I cannot enter.

N. G. AUGUSTUS.

Coldwater, Miss.

Into our lives blossomed the perfect friendship of MRS. J. C. HERBERT, and her life, like a beautiful rose, shed its sweetness about us. But the chilling frosts of disease touched her, and she "was not." Yet the fragrance of her memory, like the breath of roses, will ever abide with us.

To write of the life of such an one seems but sacrilege—yet we who knew her and loved her come now to bear tribute to her genuine worth. Never has it been our privilege to know a truer woman in every sense. As a wife, her loyal devotion and pride in him to whom she had plighted her troth was wonderful to see. As a mother, her careful Christian training of her children and her thoughtful tenderness for them will go with them and bless them throughout their lives. As a friend—who can measure the depth of a friendship such as hers? As a Christian worker, her like is rarely seen. Never did she shirk a duty, never did she fail to respond to the many calls made upon her, and so willingly and so freely did she give of her means that we who are left to carry on the work may well learn of her.

As a missionary society, we are indeed bereft, and as members and friends, we bow in our grief and look for our comfort and consolation unto "Him who doeth all things well." We sorrow not as those without a hope, for we know that she is at rest, forever with the Lord.

Signed by: Mrs. R. K. Wier, Mrs. J. S. Wallace, Mrs. J. S. Moore, Committee from the Woman's Missionary Society of Starkville, Miss.

Died, at Earl, Ark., Nov. 29, 1918, Mrs. MODESS BASKIN BROWN, aged 31 years and 25 days. She was laid to rest at Wesley to await the resurrection morn. The many friends present attest the fact that she was much loved. She leaves to mourn her departure her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. H. Baskin; a devoted husband, Mr. Curt Brown, and four boys. Since early childhood she was noted for her lovable, sweet character, being a perfect joy to her parents, and winning friends everywhere. Early in life she professed faith in Christ and joined the M. E. Church, South, at Houlka, and since has lived a consistent life, being secretary of the Ladies' Missionary Society for some time. On July 16, 1903, she was happily married to Mr. Curt Brown, of Houlka. What a dutiful wife and mother she was! The writer deems it a blessing to have had her as our nearest neighbor for about six months. She was true to her God, to her home, and to her friends. Her mother, father, husband and children have but to be true to the Lord to meet her again where there is no sadness, disappointments and heartaches, but where God rules supreme. To all relatives and friends we extend sympathy, and with them we expect to meet Sister Brown beyond the skies. Her friend and pastor,

O. P. ARMOUR.

Houka, Miss., Dec. 5, 1918.

Once again the Grim Reaper has visited our community and claimed for its own, the beloved companion of Mr. Charlie Fore. She was stricken with influenza, which developed into pneumonia, and was ill only a few days. She is not dead but sleepeth, and in the Great Day we shall know her again. She left to mourn her departure a devoted husband, two bright, sweet little girls, a mother, sister and brothers. Her remains were carried back to her old home at Watson, Miss., and interred in Emery cemetery on October 6, 1918, the funeral services being conducted by her pastor, Rev. H. H. Wallace. It is true that she has gone from us, but our minds and hearts are satisfied as to her reward; it is the treasure of everlasting joy.

ROBBIE LUCILLE WOODS.

Holly Springs, Miss.

The subject of this sketch, GEORGE B. REGAN, closed his eyes in eternal sleep on Friday, November 29, 1918, at Newelton, La., where he held a responsible position. He was the fourth son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Regan, of Rocky Springs, Miss. George was in the prime of his life, lacking a short time of being 34 years of age. He was a quiet, dignified young man, who commanded the respect of all who knew him. He bore an excellent reputation and was a member of the Methodist Church at Rocky Springs. The deceased leaves to mourn his untimely going away, a loving and devoted mother, a father, two sisters, eight brothers, and a host of relatives. His remains were brought to Port Gibson and buried Sunday morning, Nov. 30, 1918, where a host of his loved ones await the resurrection morn, Dr. W. H. Featherstun conducting the funeral services. AUNT M.

Utica, Miss.

Our little town was made sad in November, when the news flashed over the wires from Wichita, Kansas, that Miss FRANCIS BAKER, a daughter of Brother and Sister T. N. Baker, had passed away. She had gone to Kansas some time ago to be educated as a trained nurse, a work that she felt called to follow. She had commenced work, moving along nicely, making herself popular with her instructors and patients with whom she had to deal. But unfortunately she was taken with influenza, then pneumonia, which caused her to pass away. The writer knew Miss Francis from early childhood, having been associated with her in Sunday school and church work most of this time. In this way I learned to appreciate her many good qualities. She was teacher of a large class of young people, who hated to give her up. We have in our Sunday school room a neat desk presented by Miss Francis in behalf of her class. This will be more fully appreciated now, as it will stand as a monument to some of her good work. She always greeted her friends with a smile that seemed so natural with her. Fifty dollars, I am told, was raised and dispatched to Wichita by her many friends in Vinton for floral offerings for the casket. The florist remarked that he never saw so much respect shown the dead from such a distance. Miss Francis was quite young, in the prime of life, and why she was taken does not yet appear to us. But we shall know by and by. May God's richest blessings rest upon the loved ones left behind; and it is my prayer that we all may live so we can meet this dear, sweet girl beyond this world of care, where Jesus says he will wipe all tears from our eyes.

Wonderful Egg Producer.

Any poultry raiser can easily double his profits by doubling the egg production of his hens. A scientific tonic has been discovered that revitalizes the flock and makes hens work all the time. The tonic is called "More Eggs." Give your hens a few cents' worth of "More Eggs" and you will be amazed and delighted with results. A dollar's worth of "More Eggs" will double this year's production of eggs, so if you wish to try this great profit maker, write E. J. Reefer, Poultry Expert, 9259 Reefer Building, Kansas City, Mo., who will send you a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic for $1 (prepaid). So confident is Mr. Reefer of the results that a million-dollar bank guarantees if you are not absolutely satisfied your dollar will be returned on request and the "More Eggs" costs you nothing. Send a dollar to-day or ask Mr. Reefer for his free poultry book that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry. —Adv.

KILLS CATARRH GERMS

Famous Hyomei—Mr. Booth's Wonderful Discovery.

Some years ago, the noted Richard T. Booth, founder of the blue ribbon movement and temperance orator and leader of international fame who induced over a million men to sign the pledge, developed a very serious catarrhal trouble. Seeking to regain health, he went to inland Australia where he breathed day and night the antiseptic balsams as given off by the Eucalyptus forests.

This experience led Mr. Booth to the discovery of the most wonderful catarrhal treatment known to medical science—Hyomei, which is formed from the purest oil of Eucalyptus combined with other healing and antiseptic ingredients. Hyomei is a germ killing vapor, absolutely harmless but wonderfully effective in the treatment of Catarrh and colds of the head, Catarrhal Coughs Bronchial Catarrh, Spasmodic Croup, Catarrhal Laryngitis or Hay Fever.

The treatment is simple but most scientific. You breathe Hyomei. It is pronounced the only method of treatment that sends by direct inhalation to the most remote part of the air passages, a balsamic air that destroys germs and bacilli of bronchial catarrh in the breathing organs, soothes and allays irritation and enriches and purifies the blood. WHAT WOULD JOHN WESLEY DO?

One of the most pleasing speakers at the great Memphis meeting was the Rev. Dr. R. P. Mackay, of the Canadian Presbyterian Church.

"I have wondered what John Wesley would do if he were to come back to earth," said Dr. Mackay. "I think he would first of all call a thanksgiving service because of the development of Methodism. Think of the millions now in the world and the multitudes who are wearing the white robes beyond!

Then I think he would call a day of humiliation because he would probably say, 'Methodism has grown so large and wealthy, but what has she been doing? When there are so many demands coming upon her, from Mexico, from Japan, from China and the rest of the world, what have the Methodists been doing?' I think he would not be satisfied.

"Then I am sure he would congratulate you upon this Centenary proposition. You are asking now with a sense of your responsibilities. You are beginning to look out upon the world. He would encourage you, I am sure, but I think he would say that everything depends upon the manhood beneath the Program, whether or not it is charged with the Spirit, mighty in Scripture and emptied of self.

"You are great in influence, great in numbers, and great in resources, but all this means greater responsibilities."

"THE TIDE THAT LIFTS EVERY BOAT."

IN THE CONFERENCES.

The Texas Conference accepted its allotment with enthusiasm. J. D. Morgan was appointed Centenary Secretary; H. D. Knickerbocker, chairman of the Big Gifts Committee, and J. W. Mills chairman of the Centenary Commission. Rev. E. R. Barcus and his church at Tyler, Texas, assumed the support of a Mexican pastor in Texas.

Centenary Day was an important feature of the recent session of the Virginia Annual Conference. As the World Program was presented the people pledged themselves anew to the great principles of the Christian religion upon which the movement is founded. Not only did they cheerfully accept their financial allotment, but the body led in the response to membership in the "Methodist Million and the Fellowship of Intercession." T. N. Potts was appointed Centenary Secretary.

* * *

The Little Rock Conference met at Hot Springs. When the question of accepting the Centenary allotment was put before the body it was unanimously voted to accept the sum assigned—$816,000. As interest in the undertaking deepened a recommendation was made that the amount be raised to an even million. The motion passed enthusiastically. R. W. McKay was made Centenary Secretary; W. C. Davidson chairman of the Centenary Commission, and D. B. Nevins chairman of the Big Gifts Committee. During the session the announcement was made that the widow of a Methodist preacher had sent in a gift of $20. Being in poor health she feared that she might not live until the time of the Big Drive and wanted to make sure of having a part in the movement.

The Florida Conference manifested a deep interest in the Centenary, joyfully accepting each part of the World Program with an earnestness of purpose that was most gratifying. It was especially noteworthy that the laymen, if possible, surpassed the pastors in their zeal for the Centenary. Dr. Ira S. Patterson will lead the Florida forces to a realization of their financial goal.

The Centenary program as presented by Team No. 2 at the one hundred and fifth session of the Mississippi Conference created such inspiration and enthusiasm for winning the world to Christ that when the motion was made to increase the allotment to $100,000 the Conference cheered and applauded. Dr. David Carlisle Hull, of Meridian, Miss., said to be the most popular man in the State, will serve as Centenary Secretary. Dr. Hull resigned a most important and lucrative position to do what he considered a larger work. His appointment assures the success of the movement within the bounds of the "Ole Miss" Conference.

The North Mississippi Conference held an executive session of two days. Rev. J. L. Neill, F. S. Onderdonk, and J. M. Way, one of the best known Sunday school workers in the State, put on the Centenary program and in a limited time aroused the body to a high pitch of enthusiasm. The allotment was substantially increased. Rev. B. P. Jaco, one of the strongest men in the Conference, was appointed Centenary Secretary.

An incident of Centenary Day in the Mississippi Conference that showed the presence and workings of the Spirit was manifest when Mrs. J. W. Downs told of two young ladies who were ready for immediate service in mission fields, but, on account of debts incurred while acquiring their training, would not be able to go unless —. She had hardly completed her statement before C. W. Cochran, a layman from Meridian, sprang to his feet and claimed the privilege of assuming the debts of $300 and $400 respectively.

When, at the close of the Centenary Program in the Louisiana Conference, Mr. W. S. Holmes made a motion to increase the allotment, the people cheered as though at a baseball game. The whole membership voted—men, women and children.

* * *

There were more than five times as many laymen in attendance at the recent session of the Mississippi Conference as ever before in its history. Fully two hundred came especially to attend the services of Centenary Day.

WHAT A SPECIAL DID FOR FRANKTOWN AND JOHNSON'S.

By the Pastor, Rev. J. W. Gee.

The Franktown and Johnson's charge, Eastern Shore District, Virginia Conference, is composed of two large country churches and one small chapel, with a total membership of about six hundred. Its special for missions had its beginning in 1912 in the pastorate of Rev. John O. Moss. Rev. R. H. Bennett, then Conference Secretary of Missions, delivered a strong address at the Franktown church, and the pastor, assisted by the lay leader, took an offering which amounted to $600. They went to the Johnson church in the afternoon, where Dr. Bennett spoke again, and the offering was $400. The result of the day's work was a glad surprise to all concerned.

Rev. V. R. Turner, of the Virginia Conference, was then preparing to go to Korea, and was assigned to this charge as its special representative in mission work. He is still being supported by the charge after seven years, and we are all proud of the fact and rejoice in the good reports of his effective work. For four years the assessment for foreign missions was used to help make up the thousand dollar special, but the last two years the special has been paid in addition to the assessment. We are hoping this year to make the special $1400, the present salary of Brother Turner.

You ask what effect this special has had on the Church's giving for other purposes? The change wrought has been marvelous. In 1910, two years before the special was undertaken, the charge gave for missions, through all channels, including church extension, the sum of $871. In 1912, the first year of the special, it gave for missions $1855. In 1917, the sixth year of the special, it gave for missions $2741!

In 1911 the charge gave for the Conference orphanage $116, and in 1917 $568 for the same purpose, the third largest contribution in the Conference. The salary of the pastor has been advanced from $1000 in 1912 to $1800 in 1918. The total raised for all purposes advanced from $4396 in 1912 to $9092 in 1917. Every interest of the church has been helped. Our people have not only grown in liberality, but in all the Christian graces. They welcome the brother who comes with a worthy cause and send him away rejoicing.

The example of this charge has been a great incentive to the forward movement of the Eastern Shore District. There are other charges on the district equally as strong, and they have been told repeatedly, "If Franktown and Johnson's can do it, you can." Now they are saying, "If Franktown and Johnson's can do it, we can and we will." May the good work go on!

SOUR, ACID STOMACHS, GASES OR INDIGESTION

Relieve acid in stomach, relieving dyspepsia, heartburn and distress at once.

Time it! In five minutes all stomach distress, due to acidity, will go. No indigestion, heartburn, sourness or belching of gas or eructations of undigested food, no dizziness, bloating, foul breath or headache.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in regulating upset stomachs. It is the surest, quickest stomach sweetener in the whole world, and besides it is harmless. Put an end to stomach distress at once by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder caused by fermentation due to excessive acids in stomach.—Adv.

Try Making Your Own Cough Remedy

You can save about $2, and have a better remedy than the ready-made kind. Easily done.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, as desired. The result is a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

A Godsend to Rheumatics.

Here it is. Those awful pains of rheumatism so common during the cold, rainy weather are completely forgotten, and the rheumatism is expelled from your system by the very simple treatment of taking Renwar Salts, which neutralizes the uric acid in the blood. The cause of rheumatism is uric acid in the blood, and Renwar attacks the very cause of this malady and expells the uric acid from the system. Renwar is entirely dependable. It does not in any way injure the stomach or affect the heart. It is prescribed by the best physicians, and your money is refunded if Renwar fails to relieve you of your rheumatism. Give Renwar a trial and you will never regret it. Mr. Benagh, of the Nashville Railway and Light Company, says: "Within two or three days after using Renwar my rheumatism disappeared." Price 50c. THE HOUSE OF GOD.

Copyrighted, 1918, by H. A. Boaz.

There is an old story of some sailors who were cast away upon an island. They wandered back into its forests, beset by apprehension; for they feared that it might be inhabited by savages. Finally they came to a hill-top from which the huts of a town came into view. From the midst of them sprang the spire of a church. The sailors laid all caution aside and ran to the town in joy. The spire told them that they were safe.

Consciously or unconsciously, the same feeling comes to all of us with the sight of a church. It is the outward evidence of an organization for good. It is the assembling point of unselfish effort; the fostering shelter of the things that work for righteousness—of the emotion and impulse that lift men and women above the brutes.

Individual effort, at best, is weak. Men must combine and organize if they are to accomplish great tasks. It takes associations and organizations of men to build civilization.

Christ founded his ministry upon association and organization. He called apostles about him and taught them. Later they went about founding congregations — associations of reverent men and women who erected a common meeting-place; who organized themselves there for religious work; who met there for fresh inspiration and encouragement.

These early Christians were exhorted not to forsake the assembling of themselves together. It was from the contagious enthusiasm of the congregation that the leaven of righteousness rose and spread. It was by organized and disciplined effort, the elders feeding the flock of God, taking the oversight thereof; the younger submitting themselves to the elder, that the early triumphs of the church were won.

After them, in all generations, it was through the assembly, the organization, that the gospel was proclaimed, exemplified and embraced. The Christian Church has ever been a co-ordination of local organizations, each assembling in an edifice dedicated to the service of Almighty God.

A review of history or a survey of the things around us will show how important that consecrated assembling place, the church edifice, has ever been. Give to the good people of a community a rallying point, a sanctuary, where pious emotions enter freely and worldliness halts at the door, and they will gather and multiply. Deny them such an assembling spot, and the mammon of unrighteousness will choke their growth as the thorns choked the wheat of the sower.

The erection of church edifices is the special task of the Board of Church Extension of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

Comparatively young as it is, it has a record.

It has donated to churches and parsonages $3,640,357.20.

It has loaned to churches and parsonages $2,140,399.74.

It has aided 9,939 churches; and 2,730 parsonages have enjoyed its help.

It has to-day a Loan Fund Capital of $1,106,326.44, invested, almost entirely, in the churches and parsonages that it has helped to erect or to improve.

So much for its past. But what of its future?

To-day there are 1,600 pastors without homes and 2,420 congregations without houses of worship in Southern Methodism. Sixteen hundred men who have dedicated their lives to God pay rent for the strangers' roofs that shelter them. Two thousand four hundred and twenty congregations meet within the uninspiring walls of town halls, lodge rooms and schoolhouses, to work and pray for better things.

The Board of Church Extension is doing all that its resources will permit; yet it had to refuse requests for $88,028.66 from 115 worthy congregations at its last meeting; nor was it able to supply $116,400 more that fifty-three other congregations would have borrowed if the money had been available. The Annual Conference Boards probably had to decline at least as much more. Can we be satisfied while the work of the Kingdom lags for the lack of these vital funds?

Few of these brethren of ours seek gifts. They ask instead the temporary help that the elder brother extends to youth—a loan that they will repay, dollar for dollar with interest, when they have had a chance to work and grow.

There must be but one answer to that appeal from Southern Methodism. The last General Conference has said that $1,140,000 must be added to the Loan Fund of its Board of Church Extension. Southern Methodists must provide that needed sum. You, who read these lines, must supply your part of it.

Perhaps you have not thought just how and when you may supply your part. Perhaps you are able to write a check for a Memorial Loan Fund, as you lay this paper aside. That is the best way of all; but there are other ways for men whose surplus cash is limited. It is our purpose to tell you of some of them in succeeding articles. Or, if you are impatient to begin this good work before the articles come, a letter of inquiry will bring you the information you want, by an early mail.

"MORE EGGS" PAID THE PASTOR.

"I've got more eggs than I ever did in my life, paid my debts, clothed the children in new dresses, and I paid the pastor his dues. I have money to spare now. "More Eggs" is the remedy for me. I sold 42½ dozen eggs last week, set four dozen, ate some and I have 1½ dozen left." Mrs. Lena McBroom, Woodbury, Tenn.

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, discovered the wonderful tonic "More Eggs" that revitalizes the flock and makes the hens work all the time. This remarkable egg producer means big poultry profits for you. Don't delay. Send a dollar to-day to E. J. Reefer, 3259 Reefer Bld., Kansas City Mo., for a package of "More Eggs." Or better yet, send him $2.25, and he will send you three packages of "More Eggs" tonic prepaid. This is a season's full supply. A Million Dollar Bank guarantees that if you are not absolutely satisfied your money will be returned on request without question. So send either a dollar, or $2.25 to-day for this wonderful egg producer. Or write Mr. Reefer for his FREE Poultry Book that tells the experience of a man who is helping a great many people make money with their poultry, and who, himself, has a made a fortune out of the poultry business.—Adv.

A FEW LINES FROM THE ELLISVILLE CHARGE.

Early on the morning of Wednesday, the 11th of December, a storm cloud began to form in the southeast. It was not so ominous at first; only one sack of potatoes fell in the parsonage from the first gust. But as the clouds began to hurry from every direction, they began to pour in sugar, coffee, rice, flour, meal, meat and more potatoes, molasses, canned fruits, vegetables, baking powders, and a nice sack of apples. And the weather is still threatening. Brother Editor, you should have seen the preacher and his family rejoice, and heard the heart-throbs of gratitude. If the Ellisville people do not get some good work out of the preacher this year, it will be because he is unable to perform.

God bless a people who love their pastor and show it by substantial thoughtfulness. We are planning for a great year. Please lend us your prayers.

Your brother,
P. H. HOWSE, Pastor.

RHEUMATISM AND INDIGESTION.

Practically all physicians and medical writers are agreed that there is a close relationship between Indigestion and Rheumatism. This view is substantiated by the fact that Shivar Spring Water, which is probably the best American mineral water for Dyspepsia and Indigestion, relieves Rheumatism and the Rheumatoid diseases, such as Gout, Sciatica, Neuralgia and Nervous Headache. All of these diseases are probably related and all are probably due in whole or in part to imperfect digestion or to imperfect assimilation of food. Physicians who have studied this water and who have observed its effects in their practice believe that it relieves these maladies by rendering the digestion complete and perfect and thereby preventing the formation of those poisons which inflame the joints and irritate the nerves, and also by eliminating, through the kidneys, such poisons as have already been formed.

The following letters are interesting in this connection:

Dr. Crosby, a South Carolina physician, writes: "I have tested your Spring water in several cases of Rheumatism, Chronic Indigestion, Kidney and Bladder troubles and in Nervous and Sick headaches and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time will give permanent relief. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the Liver and Kidneys and Bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter."

Dr. Avant of Savannah writes: "I suffered for years with a most aggravating form of stomach disorder, and consulted a number of our best local physicians, went to Baltimore and consulted specialists there and still I was not benefited. I had about despaired of living when I began using Shivar Spring Water, and in a short time I was entirely relieved."

Mr. Rhodes of Virginia writes: "Please send me ten gallons of Shivar Spring Water quickly. I want it for Rheumatism. I know of several who were relieved of Rheumatism with this water."

Editor Cunningham writes: "The water has done me more good than any medicine I have ever taken for Rheumatism. Am entirely free from pain."

Mr. McClam of South Carolina writes: "My wife has been a sufferer from Rheumatism and after drinking twenty gallons of your Mineral Water was entirely relieved of the horrible disease."

Mr. Carter of Virginia writes: "Mrs. Carter has had enlarged joints on her hands, caused by Rheumatism. Shivar Spring Water removed every trace of the enlargement. The water is simply excellent."

If you suffer from Rheumatism or any curable disease accept the guarantee offer below by signing your name. Clip and mail to the Shivar Spring,

Box 17D, Shelton, S. C.

Gentlemen:

I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instruction contained in booklet you will send, and if it fails to benefit my case you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return promptly.

WHEN A FAMILY NEEDS A FRIEND

In the Absence of Doctors Nobly Gone to War, After Influenza, the Grip,—

Those wonderfully useful medicines, Hood's Sarsaparilla, Peptiron and Hood's Pills—comprising the new combination family treatment—are warmly recommended.

If taken regularly, Hood's Sarsaparilla before meals, Peptiron after meals, and Hood's Pills at night as needed, they are reasonably sure to keep a family in health and prove to be reliable and always ready friends. They purify the blood, build up strength and regulate the system.

Get all, or any one, as you think you need, from your druggist today.

A PROCLAMATION.

For more than three years American philanthropy has been a large factor in keeping alive Armenian, Syrian, Greek and other exiles and refugees of Western Asia.

On two former occasions I have appealed to the American people in behalf of these homeless sufferers, whom the vicissitudes of war and massacre had brought to the extremest need.

The response has been most generous, but now the period of rehabilitation is at hand. Vastly larger sums will be required to restore these once prosperous, but now impoverished, refugees to their former homes than were required merely to sustain life in their desert exile.

It is estimated that about 4,000,000 Armenian, Syrian, Greek and other war sufferers in the Near East will require outside help to sustain them through the winter. Many of them are now hundreds of miles from their home land. The vast majority of them are helpless women and children, including 400,000 orphans.

The American Commitee for Relief in the Near East is appealing for a minimum of $30,000,000 to be subscribed January 12-19, 1919, with which to meet the most urgent needs of these people.

I, therefore, again call upon the people of the United States to make even more generous contributions than they have made heretofore to sustain through the winter months those who, through no fault of their own, have been left in a starving, shelterless condition, and to help re-establish these ancient and sorely oppressed people in their former homes on a self-supporting basis.

A Treat for the Skin

Freckles, tan, sunburn, pimples, eczema, all can be easily and delightfully vanished with the use of Palmer's Skin Success Ointment. Used for over 80 years. Rev. A. E. Ballard, D. D., President Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Association, Ocean Grove, N. J., writes: "Your Skin Success Ointment completely cured me of an irritative itching eczema and I cheerfully recommend it to all who may be similarly afflicted." It is not only delightfully antiseptic and cleansing, soothing and softening to the skin, but also immediately effective in bleaching the complexion and in vanishing blackheads, freckles and all skin eruptions. THE WORLD'S SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION AT TOKYO.

Now that fighting is over and peace is in sight it will be possible to arrange for the World's Sunday School Convention in Tokyo, which was to have been held in Japan in 1916. After the war began it was seen that any "world convention" would be impossible during the conflict. Officers and Committee Chairmen of the World's Sunday School Association have just concluded an important conference in New York. They directed that a cable be sent to the Sunday school friends in Japan asking when, in their judgment, the convention should be held. Meanwhile plans are developing for a greater gathering of the Sunday school forces of the world. The conference was presided over by the Chairman, H. J. Heinz, of Pittsburgh. John Wanamaker, one of the Vice Presidents, suggested the cablegram. Mr. Wanamaker also proposed that as soon as possible leading ministers and evangelists be invited to a conference which will consider the great opportunity for a series of evangelistic meetings in Japan, and possibly also in China, Korea and the Philippines, preceding the Tokyo Convention, if such a plan was desired by Japanese and missionary leaders.

Much interest has already been manifested in America concerning the Tokyo Convention. More than 3000 requests for information have been received at the office of the World's Association. When their last Convention was held in Zurich, Switzerland, in 1913, 2609 were present. Of that number 221 were missionaries, 447 pastors and 315 superintendents. As soon as the Tokyo Convention date has been decided in conference with the Japanese and British Committees prompt notice will be given.

The conference also discussed plans for an aggressive World Sunday school policy in view of the wide open possibilities in every field. These plans include the training of a native leadership, the extension of Sunday school organization to every national unit and important area within national boundaries, the development of adequate lesson and other literature in the dialects, emphasis upon evangelism and social service and wide foreign publicity for the Sunday school idea. Important commissions will study and outline plans for presentation at the Tokyo Convention.—World's Sunday School Association.

FOOT TROUBLES

No Need of Them, Says Brooklyn Man, Who Has Evidently Solved a Big Problem.

According to the testimony of hundreds of people living in the southland and elsewhere, E. P. Simon of 1589 Broadway, Brooklyn, N. Y., has successfully developed a system of shoe building having for its prime object the conquering of foot and shoe troubles. It appears that Mr. Simon's establishment has become national headquarters for people whose feet require his remarkable comfort shoe, known as the EzWear, but obtainable only of the inventor. Mr. Simon's new catalogue shows several hundred shoes that combine comfort with style at amazingly low prices and is now ready for free distribution.—Adv.

CAN WE HELP THE CHILDREN OF LEPERS?

In the December number of The Missionary Review of the World, Lois E. Danner, the young daughter of Mr. William M. Danner, Secretary of the American Committee of the Mission to Lepers, describes her recent visits to lepers in Hawaii, Japan, Korea, China and the Philippines. She gives some of these impressions as follows:

Over three thousand of the lepers on the island lined the roadside next morning to welcome us while two brass bands furnished lively music. On the day we were there, 4444 patients were living in that model, sanitary city on Culion island. One member of the colony has started an ice plant, manufacturing and selling artificial ice, and another is planning to furnish electricity for the island. A special currency is used at Culion to prevent danger of contagion from money handled by the lepers. Cottages, hospital, public market, outdoor amusement hall—everything is provided by the United States Government to relieve the monotony of their isolation and make their surroundings as home-like as possible. The patients here have a splendid moving-picture machine, but very few good films are obtainable.

On the second floor of a cement building on the side of the island where the well doctors and nurses live, forty brown Filipino babies were taking their mid-day siesta. They were awakened and taken to the lawn for a picture amid loud remonstrances. Then twenty pairs of white rompers scampered away. The other babies were carried in to the nursery to finish their several naps.

In the afternoon an interesting service was held in the little chapel built entirely by the lepers. It was decorated with paper festoons in honor of the visiting party and long before the service began all the seats were filled and the windows packed with eager listeners who stood outside.

Hard Colds—People whose blood is pure are not nearly so likely to take hard colds as are others. Hood's Sarsaparilla makes the blood pure; and this great medicine recovers the system after a cold as no other medicine does. Take Hood's.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS IN MISSION FIELDS HELP STARVING IN PALESTINE.

The Sunday schools of America are about to give $2,000,000 at the coming Christmas season for more than 400,000 starving children in Bible Lands. Last year the Sunday school contribution for this purpose was $1,000,000. This year the need is vastly greater. When preparations were being made for the former gift the various field secretaries of the World's Sunday School Association were asked to cooperate. Liberal support followed their appeals. A total of $4,853.63 came from the following countries: Japan $460, Brazil $1875, Egypt $2518.63. These gifts from Egypt were contributed mostly in coins of less than a cent in value, many of them being as small as one-eighth of a cent. Again these Sunday schools, in what many people still call heathen lands, will join the children in America in giving to those Armenian and Syrians who are in need of immediate help.—S. S. Bulletin.

Ever Salivated By Calomel? Horrible!

Calomel is quicksilver and acts like dynamite on your liver.

Calomel loses you a day! You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into sour bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

When you feel bilious, sluggish, constipated and all knocked out and believe you need a dose of dangerous calomel just remember that your druggist sells for a few cents a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is entirely vegetable and pleasant to take and is a perfect substitute for calomel. It is guaranteed to start your liver without stirring you up inside, and can not salivate.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and doesn't gripe.—Adv.

NUXATED IRON

"To help make strong, keen, red-blooded Americans there is nothing in my experience which I have found so valuable as organic iron—Nuxated Iron," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital. Nuxated Iron often increases the strength and endurance of weak, nervous, run-down people in two weeks' time. It is now being used by over three million people annually, including such men as Hon. Leslie M. Shaw, formerly Secretary of the Treasury, and ex-Governor of Iowa; former United States Senator and Vice-Presidential nominee, Charles A. Towne; General John L. Clem (Retired), the drummer boy of Shiloh, who was sergeant in the U. S. Army when only 12 years of age; also United States Judge G. W. Atkinson of the Court of Claims of Washington and others. Nuxated Iron is dispensed by all good druggists everywhere.

NOTICE TO ALL AUXILIARIES OF THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

The time for the annual meeting at Natchez has been moved up exactly a month, and will be January 14-18, 1919. This was done at the solicitation of Council members and those of the Centenary Committee, who hope to be present; and in order to have the benefit of their assistance, the time was changed.

All auxiliaries are urged by the Conference President to get in all reports by the first of the month, so that the books may be closed promptly.

This bids fair to be an unusually interesting session of Conference, as the Centenary Team will be there with their help and inspiration. Now is the time to plan for a good representation.

Mrs. H. L. McCLESKEY,
Recording Secretary.

Sunday School

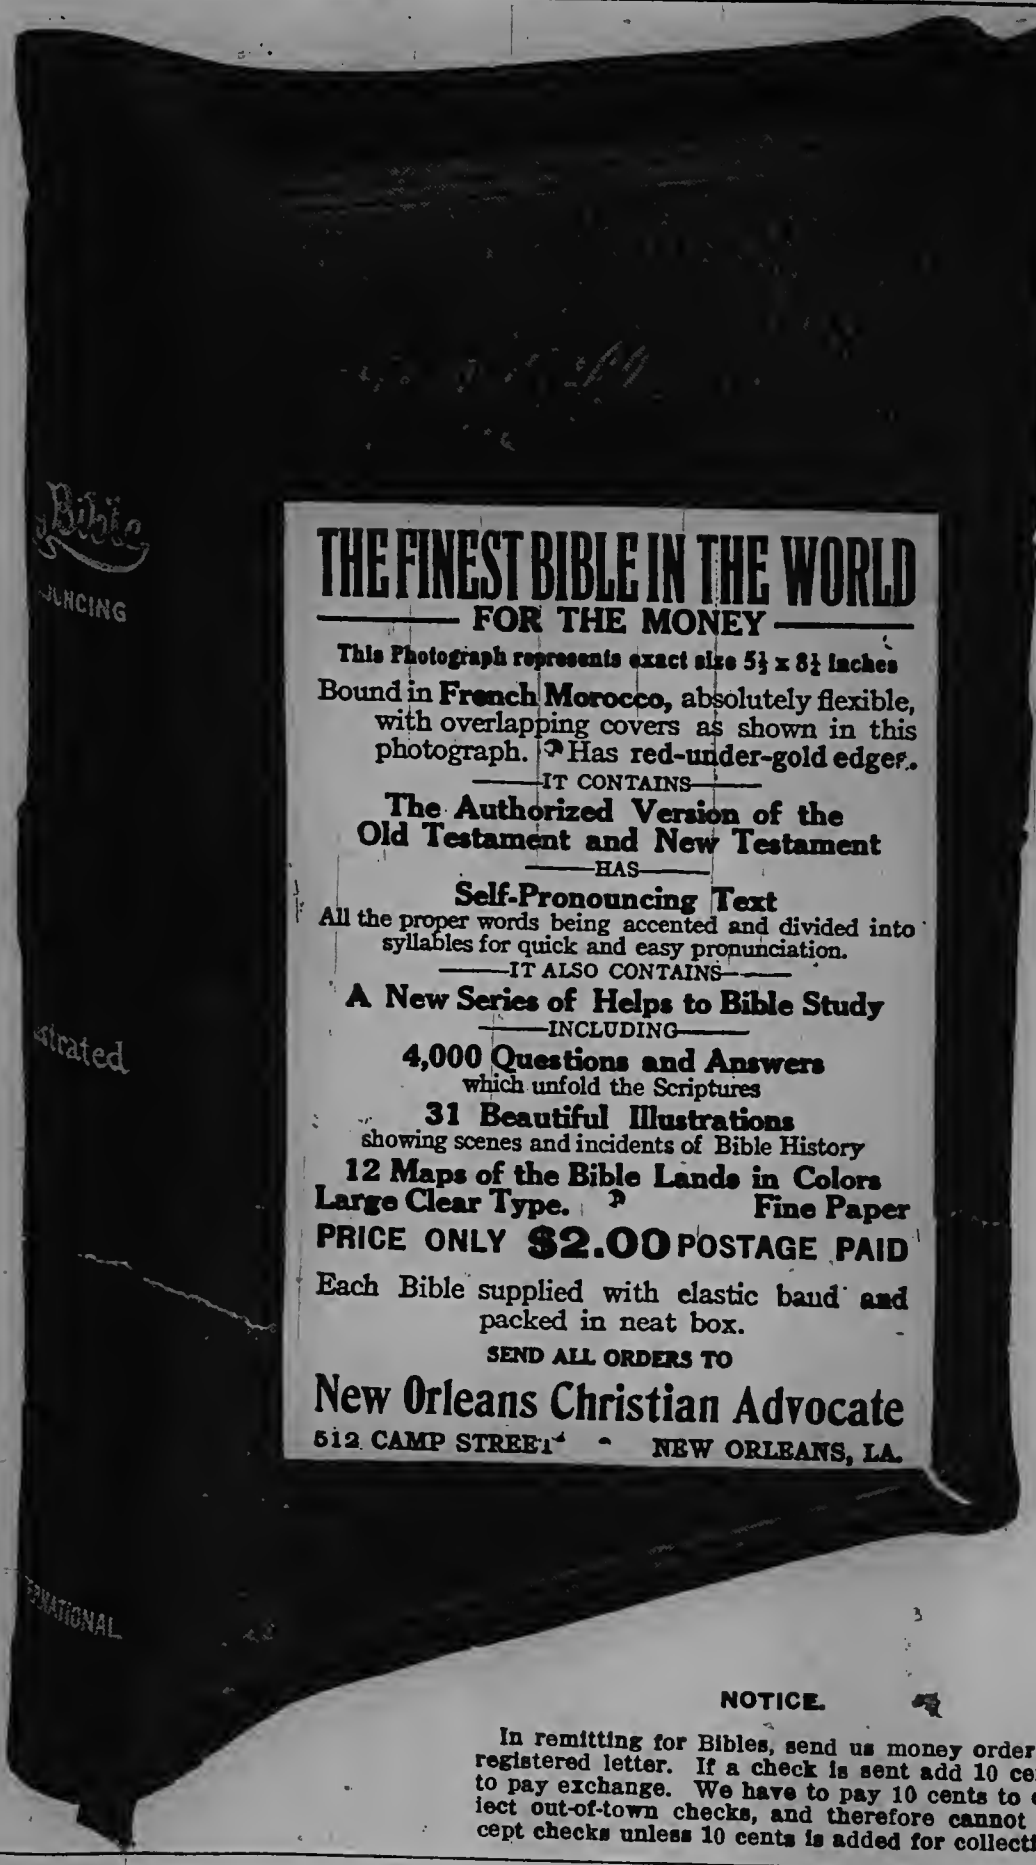
Report of Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sunday School Field Secretary, to the North Mississippi Conference, December 11, 1918.

During the year I have assisted in organizing 13 schools, have done institute work in 151, addressed approximately 13,000 people, ordered 670 books and literature to the amount of $165, sent out 1800 pieces of mail, distributed about 8000 leaflets, traveled on the railroad 9431 miles, and by auto 1400 miles.

A greater portion of the time has been given to country churches. Emphasis has been placed upon teacher-training, for the training of our people for leadership is our greatest need. Forty classes have been enrolled, besides a number of individual students. Mission study as a vital part of the course in religious education has been stressed. Twenty-eight Home Departments have been organized and about 150 family altars have been established in connection with this department.

The Graded Lessons for Beginners have been introduced in every school where it has been practicable. The better schools have been using the graded lessons for some time. The quality of the work being done throughout the Conference is slowly improving.

We shall build character and extend the kingdom of God as we train officers and teachers. I therefore recommend:



1. That we use one day for some phase of teacher-training during the session of our Efficiency Conference to be held in Grenada.

2. That we organize a class for leadership to be taught during the Sunday school hour in all our schools.

3. That we request all teachers and officers to attain at least one unit within six months of their appointment to work in the Sunday school.

That we appoint the Missionary Committee in each school, that we present the missionary program the fourth Sunday in each month, and that we accept as a minimum five cents per member as a monthly offering to the Centenary fund.

5. That we use every means possible to welcome our men as they return from the army, organize them into Wesley Bible classes and give them an opportunity to render as great service for the Church as they have given to the country.

160 Hens—1500 Eggs

Mrs. H. M. Patton, Waverly, Mo., writes: "I fed two boxes of 'More Eggs' to my hens and broke the egg record. I got 1,500 eggs from 160 hens in exactly 21 days." You can do as well. In fact, any poultry raiser can easily double his profits by doubling the egg production of his hens. A scientific tonic has been discovered that revitalizes the flock and makes hens work all the time. The tonic is called "More Eggs." Give your hens a few cents' worth of "More Eggs," and you will be amazed and delighted with results. A dollar's worth of "More Eggs" will double this year's production of eggs, so if you wish to try this great profit maker write E. J. Reefer, poultry man, 6259 Reefer Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., who will send you a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic for $1.00 (prepaid). So confident is Mr. Reefer of the results that a million dollar bank guarantees if you are not absolutely satisfied, your dollar will be returned on request and the "More Eggs" costs you nothing. Send a dollar today or ask Mr. Reefer for his free poultry book that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

SHORT BUSINESS COURSE FOR SOLDIERS—For those who cannot go through college. Special rates for soldiers. Meridian College, Meridian, Miss.

GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" TO CONSTIPATED CHILD.

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.
